CHAMBERLAIN TO RETIRE FROM CABINET

200,000 Welcome Willkie and Wife to Cleveland

G.O.P. Candidate Would Aid Britain Even at Sacrifice Of Defense Plans

Delivers Major Address on Foreign Policy at Cleveland; Hold Nation Must Speed Preparedness

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2 (AP)—A cheering throng estimated by police at 200,000 crowded downtown Cleveland to welcome Wendell L. Willkie, as he arrived for a major campaign speech here tonight.

Willkie drove from the union terminal through the spectator-lined streets for a brief rest at his hotel before the address.

The crowd in public square was so dense that it was some minutes before a troop of mounted police could clear a passageway for the candidate's car.

With Mrs. Willkie, the nominee waved repeatedly to the applauding crowd. At one point, a supporter jumped on the car seeking to shake hands but two accompanying detectives pulled him away.

Throughout the ride, confetti, torn paper and colored streamers fluttered down from business buildings.

Urges Aid for England

Willkie charged tonight that the political theories and ambitions of a few men had exposed the United States "to the aggressors" and urged aid for Britain even at a sacrifice of speed in building up America's air-fleet.

In a major address on foreign policy and defense prepared for delivery in public auditorium, the Republican presidential nominee said, "we are not prepared and we are not getting prepared."

Until the people have an adequate defense system "they don't want any more international incidents," Willkie declared in his first campaign address in this politically-pivotal state, where he formerly worked as an Akron attorney.

Sen. Bridges Replies in Detail to "Smear" Attacks Made on Willkie

DEFENDS WILLKIE

Sen. H. Styles Bridges

Tells Senate There Is No Truth in Radical Magazine

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—Speaking on the floor of the United States Senate today, Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire delivered a detailed reply to recent smear attacks upon Wendell Willkie, Republican nominee for president of the United States.

He charged solicitor general of the United States Francis Biddle with having abused his official position by an attempt to destroy a newspaper whose only rival in the field was one in which Biddle was himself financially interested.

The attacks on Willkie, declared the Senator, have endeavored to imply that he was nominated by the sinister influence of the so-called power trust.

Material for Magazine

The material for the attacks, he added, was chiefly drawn from a recent "special smear issue" of a radical magazine disguising itself as "liberal." The material, advertised as containing 18,000 words, the Senator declared to be "the most colossal tissue of innuendo, propaganda, false inference and plain and fancy lying ever assembled between the covers of this self-proclaimed organ of liberalism. Eighteen thousand words containing 1,800 lies."

"This slimy piece," the Senator points out, was admitted to the Congressional Record.

Mr. Willkie personally prepared a long and detailed statement answering all the charges made or implied and offered a copy for publication in the magazine which, however, did not see fit to print the rebuttal, it was added.

Coming to his charges against U. S. Solicitor General Biddle, Senator Bridges said:

"I here solemnly charge that the present solicitor general of the United States not once but twice has abused his official position, first as counsel for the TVA Investigating Committee, and, second, as solicitor general, in attempts to injure and destroy a newspaper whose only afternoon rival was a paper in which he, Francis Biddle, was financially interested. Had he succeeded, he would have lined his pockets with the resulting dividends.

Injured Newspaper

"Furthermore, for some months he has been using his present position as solicitor general to harass and injure the successful newspaper. He was financially interested in a second newspaper which suspended September 4 of this year.

"And at the same time he takes rank with Harold Ickes as a New Deal Praying Mantis worshipping at the altar of the freedom of the press.

Wendell L. Willkie and Senator Taft (R-Ohio) accused President Roosevelt yesterday of failing to provide a sufficient national defense, while aides of Harold Ickes said that the interior secretary would leave soon on a ten-day swing through the northwest during which he would challenge Willkie's stand on the public power question.

The Republican presidential nominee's remarks on national defense were made to a crowd which gathered about his train at Adrian, Mich., en route to Cleveland.

At Toledo later crowds both cheered and booed him. A tomato was thrown near his car in one industrial section.

Police questioned five high school students at Pontiac, Mich., regarding an egg-throwing episode there Tuesday and the city expressed apologies to Willkie and his wife, who was spattered.

Charge Law Violated

In Washington, meantime, Senator Hill (D-Ala) asked the justice department to investigate whether federal law was violated in registration of voters at Wilmington, Del., a Republican stronghold. Hill said that testimony before a Senate subsommittee disclosed "shocking conditions" there.

Also in Washington Senator Bridges (R-NH) told the Senate that New Deal officials had circulated "an audacious falsehood" to the effect that Willkie was responsible for the suspension of the Chattanooga (Tenn.) News.

Bridges charged in return that Solicitor General Francis Biddle had "abused his official position, first as counsel for the TVA investigating committee and second as solicitor general, in attempts to in-

Dies Committee Reports on Activities of Nazi Sympathizers

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 2 (AP) — A Dies subcommittee spokesman announced today that questioning of visitors to the German American Bund's camp Nordland had disclosed hundreds of Nazi sympathizers employed in munitions, shipbuilding and other national defense industries.

Chairman Joe Starnes (D-Ala) made the charge in a public statement on conclusion of two days of public and private hearings. National leaders of the Bund and state heads of the Ku Klux Klan had been called as witnesses.

During executive hearings, Starnes declared, more than a score of persons, "a cross section" of 2,000 visitors to the Andover Bund camp, were questioned and "without exception every witness was employed in defense work."

Sabotage Evidence Found

The inquiry unearthed evidence of sabotage, Starnes continued, remarking he did not choose to reveal incidents because that might hinder federal and local police inquiries.

Questioned later concerning the September 12 explosion at the Hercules Powder Company plant in Kenvil, several miles from camp Nordland, Starnes said he was "loathe to say anything about that because it might interfere with the FBI investigation." The Kenvil blast killed fifty-one and injured more than 100.

Agent of Foreign Power

Starnes asserted the "abundance of the testimony" showed the Bund was an "agent of a foreign power whose sympathies and allegiance are to another government and its policies. x x x There is no place in American life for such an organization."

The Dies committee's inquiry into unAmerican activities in the metropolitan area was not completed, Starnes said, and further sessions might be held in Newark, New York or Washington.

War Correspondents Predict Parts Of France Will Suffer Privations

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP) — Lloyd Lehrbas, veteran Associated Press war correspondent, declared today that unoccupied sections of France would "suffer very severe privation" during the coming winter due to lack of food and fuel supplies.

Returning from Europe on the Atlantic Clipper, Lehrbas, whose coverage of the bombing of Warsaw at the outset of the European war won him a Pulitzer prize committee honorable mention, said that the day he left Vichy new and severe food restrictions were put into effect.

Butter, eggs, milk, animal and vegetable oils and fuel, he said, were "almost unobtainable in the open market and whenever a dealer in the unoccupied section managed to get in a supply long lines formed and people waited hour after hour to make very limited purchases."

Drastic Restrictions

Under the latest restrictions, he added, persons were allowed to purchase a maximum of sixty-five grams (approximately 2½ ounces) of meat, 350 grams of bread, seventeen grams of sugar and five grams of coffee per day.

"Sugar, coffee, chocolate, and many other items were almost unobtainable," Lehrbas continued, "mainly because of poor transportation facilities, German requisition and purchase of supplies and the effects of the British blockade."

Also returning on the Clipper were Vincent Sheehan and H. R. Knickerbocker, foreign correspondents.

Sheehan described the bombing of London and the damage done to that city as "terrific." Both he and Knickerbocker agreed, however, that the British resistance had shown no sign of weakening and said they doubted there was much danger of an invasion this winter.

Sheehan said he felt German bombing could practically ruin the city "in a year or two," but Knickerbocker said he felt systembatic bombing could virtually wipe out the city and that it would "take only until about spring."

U. S. Navy Plans Newly Organized Fleet in Atlantic

Hopes To Have 125 Ships in Addition to Big Pacific Fleet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—The United States navy, confronted with the new mutual assistance pact signed by Germany, Italy and Japan, plans to establish "a new organized force" of more than 125 ships in the Atlantic ocean in addition to the present big fleet in the Pacific.

This was announced late today by the navy in the following words:

"The navy department will establish in the near future, a newly organized force in the Atlantic. This force will become an integral part of the United States fleet and will be designated as the patrol force, United States fleet. Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, U. S. navy, will command this force.

"The new force will consist of the ships now in the Atlantic, some new ships as they are completed, recently recommissioned vessels, and vessels purchased and converted for naval use. The patrol force will include all types of vessels and aircraft and will number more than 125 ships. Having all the vessels in the Atlantic under one commander will result in increased efficiency in the operations and training of the vessels.

Plan Two-Ocean Defense

Whether the German-Italian-Japanese pact played a part in the decision to strengthen the Atlantic force was not stated, but it was plain that the navy has been thinking increasingly of two-ocean defense.

The new move was regarded as the first step toward creating the "two-ocean navy" about which there has been so much discussion in Congress and elsewhere.

Officials said a primary purpose of the order was to unify command, as well as to strengthen forces in the east coast. Although an Atlantic squadron was created two years ago, some newly completed vessels temporarily in the Atlantic were considered subject to command of the commander-in-chief of the fleet in the Pacific.

Forces now in the Atlantic include three aging battleships, the

State To Help Army of Campers

Will Build Cabins in Savage River and Swallow Falls Woods

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2 (AP) — Marylanders who want to "rough it"—but with most of the modern conveniences—received some good news today from State Forester F. W. Besley.

Thousands of persons camped, visited, or just picnicked this summer at the forestry department's recreational areas, and better things are still in store, he said.

The department's program is making vacation lands especially in two Garrett county areas—Savage River State Forest and Swallow Falls State Forest.

At Herrington manor, headquarters of the Swallow Falls Park, the department plans to build a total of twenty snug log cabins, available at low weekly rentals, with about the same number planned at New Germany in Savage River Forest.

Last summer, Besley said, there were only eight cabins open at Herrington Manor, and five at New Germany, but "they were very popular."

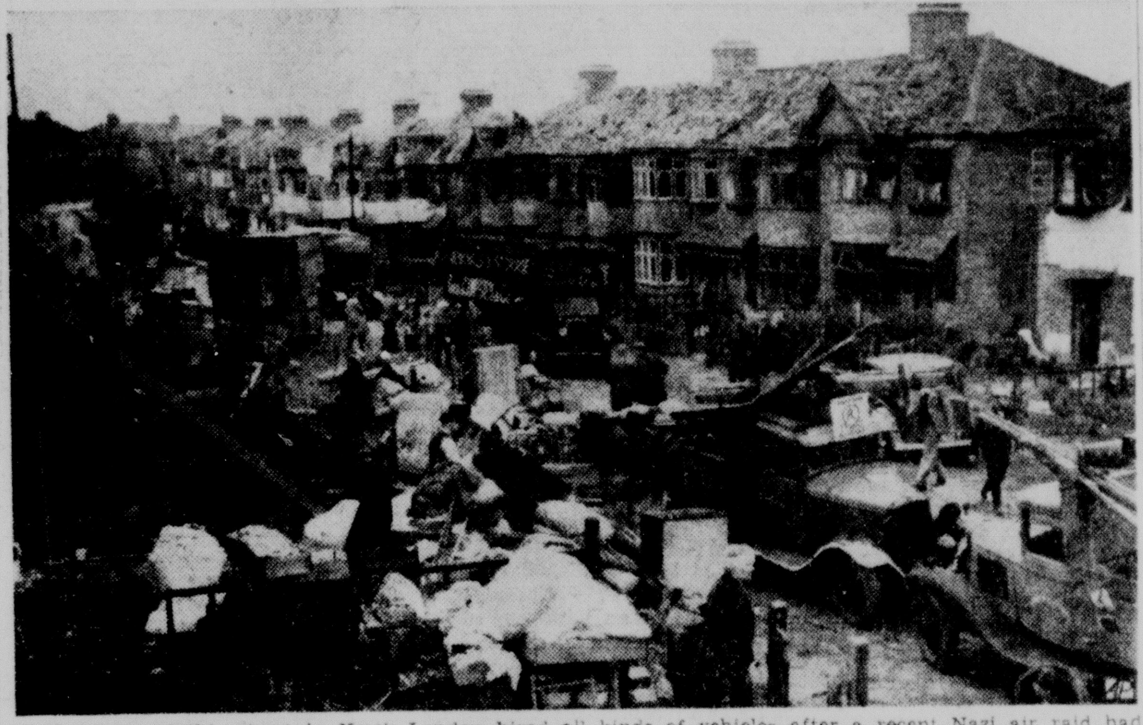
A lake at New Germany will be stocked with bass for "summer fishing". Lodges, social centers, even dining hall facilities are planned at the two areas, Besley added.

Herrington Manor house has a dining room and quarters for overnight guests, while a lodge and dining hall at New Germany would be available for cabin-renters, their friends, and overnight guests. Cabins are rented only for weekly periods. Tennis courts might be built at Herrington, Besley said.

The two areas, he explained, have "hundreds of miles" of trails for hiking and horseback riding, and recreation fields. Lakes at both headquarters offer swimming, boating, and some fishing.

These "vacationlands" are being developed gradually, Besley said, and "offer the people of Maryland an opportunity for healthful, active vacations."

NORTH LONDON HAS MASS MOVING DAY



Residents of this street in North London hired all kinds of vehicles after a recent Nazi air raid had made their homes uninhabitable. They moved their belongings into the streets and waited for the trucks to take them to new homes. Note the shattered windows and wrecked roofs of the houses.

British Aviators Swarm over Large Section of Reich

Bomb Rhineland Refineries and Berlin Power Plants

BERLIN, Oct. 3—(Thursday)—(AP)—Air raid sirens aroused Berliners early today and kept them in shelters for one hour and twelve minutes.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire from the city's outer defenses could be heard.

No damage was reported immediately.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 2—The RAF's night raiders, stabbing methodically deeper into the war storehouse of the Reich, reported today a vast new foray within Germany that spread the hot waste of fire and blast all the way from the Rhineland's refineries to the power plants of Berlin.

With the echo of their salvoes, the British government, through Hugh Dalton, the minister of economic warfare, declared the Nazis "are back where they started" on oil, having "practically exhausted all they have looted from the countries which they overran."

Now, he said, Germany must provide oil for the occupied nations of Europe from her own synthetic plants—"after the RAF has baptized them"—or milk the diminishing supplies of Russia and Rumania anew.

However, Dalton admitted, the Axis powers are "not so short of oil as I would like."

Bomb Refineries

Perhaps the greatest of last night's British bombings, beginning with the early darkness and continuing past midnight, was aimed at the refineries of Cologne, on the Rhine.

The air ministry said "explosions and fires" marked the attacks, and added: "Many vivid bursts were seen."

Again, British bombs lined the channel "invasion ports" from France to the Netherlands; again the raiders were over Berlin.

Other fires and explosions were described at a Berlin munitions factory and elsewhere in the industrial northwest of the German capital.

Big Fuel Plant Hit

Oil refineries at Sterkrade, north of Dusseldorf and at Gelsenkirchen were raided; "at Sterkrade a large fuel plant was hit and great fires broke out," said the air ministry.

"One of our aircraft, having dropped a stick of high explosives on Sterkrade, went to the Fokker airplane works at Amsterdam and emptied his load there.

"At Gelsenkirchen, fires were started that were still visible when our aircraft were sixty miles on their homeward journey, and later aircraft on the scene intensified the fires with incendiaries."

Ignite Dock Area

From above the invasion ports, the pilots reported that bombs straddled the main basin and started fires in the dock area at Dunkerque; that direct hits were scored on two basins at Bologne despite heavy fighter resistance; that high explosive and incendiary bombs were rained on the piers at Flushing and that bombs were seen to

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

German pursuit planes take over bombing chores in unceasing attacks on Britain, for which Nazis claim huge successes; British say raiders driven off repeatedly and tell of damage wrought in Germany by RAF; German channel guns busy again.

Axis oil stocks dwindling, other war essentials severely cut down by tight British blockade, British economic warfare minister reports.

Germans will pitch into Africa to help Italians this winter, some British military men think; Balkans also reported fearful war may yet burst out there.

Britain's former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain reported ready to resign from Churchill cabinet due to ill health, with sweeping reshuffle in prospect.

German Raiders Driven Back by London Barrage

Eighth Attack Since Yesterday Morning Declared Failure

LONDON, Oct. 3—Thursday)—(AP)—Several "Molotoff breadbasket" incendiary bombs burst early today over a famous boys' school in southeastern England.

A fire was started in a roof but it was quickly extinguished and there were no casualties.

(Of the three most famous English boys' schools, Eton and Harrow are in southeast England; the third, Rugby, is in central England. Eton is in the vicinity of Windsor castle, one of the king's homes).

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 3 (Thursday) — A heavy and growing anti-aircraft barrage rose over central London early today, beating back at the second German air raid of the night, the eighth since yesterday morning.

High Nazi planes dodged in and out of the cloud banks.

The assault ended a period of uneasy quiet that had followed an earlier attack — the shortest of the war—which began around dinner-time and ended after several bombs had fallen.

Bombs were reported loosed for the first time—on a southeast town. There were several casualties.

Six times up to nightfall great squadrons of bombers and fighters swept in toward Londan; six times, said the Air Ministry, they were beaten back—intercepted and broken up by our fighters."

These repeated thrusts were supported by German artillery, which shelled the Dover coast heavily from across the channel.

German Fighter Planes Replacing Bombers in Attacks on British

BERLIN, Oct. 2 (AP)—The German command, disclosing that fighter planes are now taking over many of the jobs normally assigned to bomber craft, sent heavy squadrons across the channel today in continuous assaults upon Britain.

Early in the day informed sources had said that full advantage would be taken of the generally favorable weather conditions—including cloud formations—and this forecast was fulfilled.

DNB, the official German news agency, reported tonight that London was under almost ceaseless bombardment, and that targets along the Thames river, in eastern and southeastern areas and across the country to the Irish Sea were attacked heavily.

Oil tanks were fired at Weymouth, DNB said, airports were bombed; harbor facilities at Swansea and Newquay were raided and warehouses burned.

Drop Heavy Bombs

It was resumption of the far-ranging raids of last night in which an official communique several times emphasized, some of the most effective hits were scored "with the heaviest caliber bombs" by fighting plane units.

It was the first statement that fighters were being widely used to drop bombs, and the reason for the adoption of this tactic was not discussed.

(The British of late have been claiming a high percentage of destruction among German bombers, craft much costlier than fighter planes and more difficult to replace.)

Bombed last night and early today, the high command said, were many "war essential targets" in London and in southern and central England.

These were among specific results claimed:

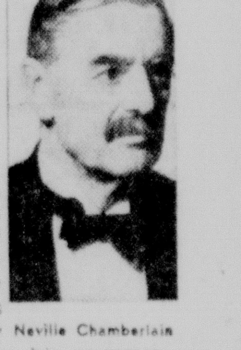
Drastic Shakeup Predicted; Eden Is Mentioned for Important Post

Lord Beaverbrook Also Being Considered; Cooper and Greenwood Scheduled To Lose Posts

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 2—Old and ailing Former Prime Minister Chamberlain, the man who made the ill-fated Munich agreement of September, 1938, will resign shortly as lord president of council in what may become a sweeping readjustment of the Churchill cabinet, political circles reported tonight.



Neville Chamberlain

Lord Halifax, holdover foreign secretary of the Chamberlain government, also may go, London circles said, with Anthony Eden mentioned as his successor.

The same reports said Labor Minister Ernest Bevin probably would become a member of the war cabinet—giving it a strong Socialistic tinge. Bevin is one of the nation's leading Laborites.

Possible Changes

Some politicians predicted that Lord Beaverbrook wuold succeed Chamberlain and that Sir John Anderson would resign as minister of home security, being replaced by Herbert Morrison, now minister of supply.

The reshuffle also may involve Alfred Duff Cooper, and Arthur Greenwood, now minister of information and minister without portfolio, respectively, the reports said.

Chamberlain's resignation would leave vacant the position of conservative party leader, which is expected to go to Churchill, leaving him in full control both of the government and of the party.

The news of Chamberlain's impending departure touched off press criticism of the appeasement influ-

Rumanians Hold British Director Of Oil Company

A. Miller Seized at Bucharest by Alleged Guardists

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 3 (AP) — Director A. Miller, 40, of the British-dominated Astra-Romana Oil Company was seized and carried away early today by four men dressed as civilians.

Official British circles, identifying the four as Iron Guardists, said Miller was kidnaped but there were other theories that he had been arrested by plainclothes police.

(A broadcast by the German radio of a Bucharest dispatch said that, in the lack of an official Rumanian announcement, "details available so far indicate that Miller was arrested on orders of Rumanian authorities as were lately five other Englishmen who were suspected of sabotage activities in Rumanian oil fields.")

Astra-Romana's properties were confiscated by Rumania July 24.

Britons expressed belief that charges by the pro-Nazi Iron Guard of a British plot to blow up oil tankers en route to Germany and to treat gasoline with chemicals to cripple German warplanes were involved.

They said that the four men who took Miller from a suburban sports club, apparently believed he might be able to supply information on the purported plot.

The Astra-Romana Company, the largest oil producer in Rumania, with an output of 1,500,000 tons annually, now is managed by an Iron Guard commissar appointed by the government.

Thousands of persons camped, visited, or just picnicked this summer at the forestry department's recreational areas, and better things are still in store, he said.

The department's program is making vacation lands especially in two Garrett county areas—Savage River State Forest and Swallow Falls State Forest.

At Herrington manor, headquarters of the Swallow Falls Park, the department plans to build a total of twenty snug log cabins, available at low weekly rentals, with about the same number planned at New Germany in Savage River Forest.

Last summer, Besley said, there were only eight cabins open at Herrington Manor, and five at New Germany, but "they were very popular."

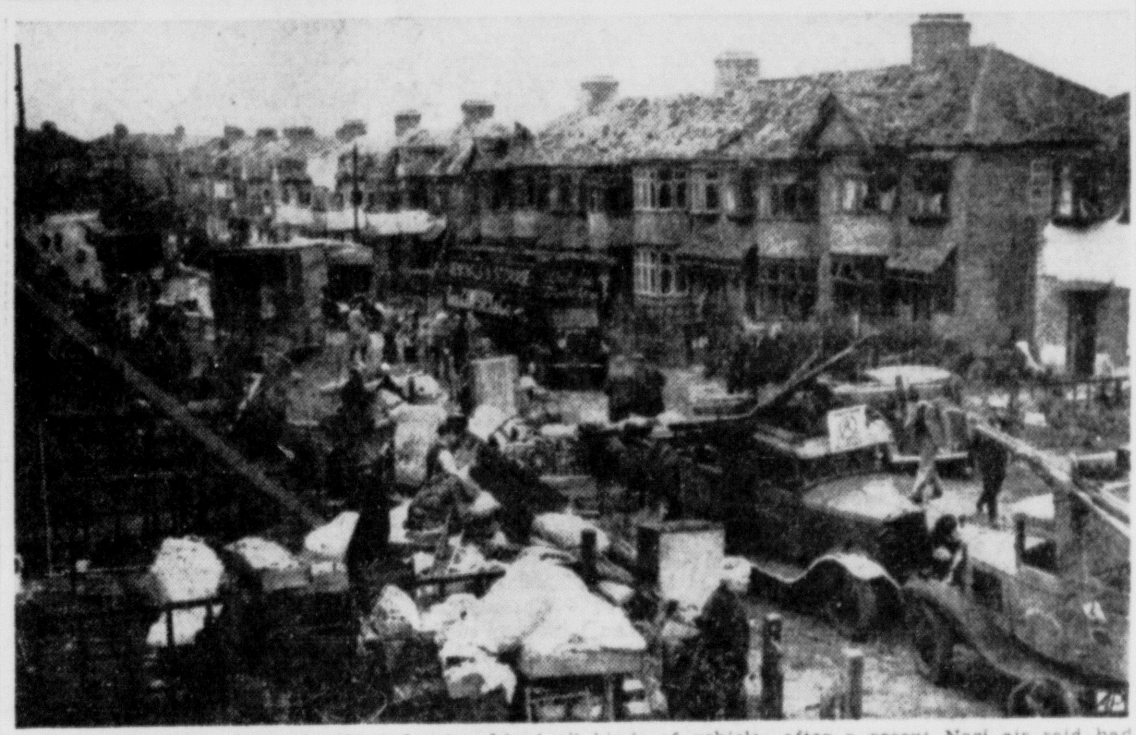
A lake at New Germany will be stocked with bass for "summer fishing". Lodges, social centers, even dining hall facilities are planned at the two areas, Besley added.

Herrington Manor house has a dining room and quarters for overnight guests, while a lodge and dining hall at New Germany would be available for cabin-renters, their friends, and overnight guests. Cabins are rented only for weekly periods. Tennis courts might be built at Herrington, Besley said.

The two areas, he explained, have "hundreds of miles" of trails for hiking and horseback riding, and recreation fields. Lakes at both headquarters offer swimming, boating, and some fishing.

These "vacationlands" are being developed gradually, Besley said, and "offer the people of Maryland an opportunity for healthful, active vacations."

NORTH LONDON HAS MASS MOVING DAY



Residents of this street in North London hired all kinds of vehicles after a recent Nazi air raid had made their homes uninhabitable. They moved their belongings into the streets and waited for the trucks to take them to new homes. Note the shattered windows and wrecked roofs of the houses.

British Aviators Swarm over Large Section of Reich

Bomb Rhineland Refineries and Berlin Power Plants

BERLIN, Oct. 3—(Thursday)—(AP)—Air raid sirens aroused Berliners early today and kept them in shelters for one hour and twelve minutes.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire from the city's outer defenses could be heard.

No damage was reported immediately.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 2—The RAF's night raiders, stabbing methodically deeper into the war storehouse of the Reich, reported today a vast new foray within Germany that spread the hot waste of fire and blast all the way from the Rhineland's refineries to the power plants of Berlin.

With the echo of their salvoes, the British government, through Hugh Dalton, the minister of economic warfare, declared the Nazis "are back where they started" on oil, having "practically exhausted all they have looted from the countries which they overran."

Now, he said, Germany must provide oil for the occupied nations of Europe from her own synthetic plants—"after the RAF has baptized them"—or milk the diminishing supplies of Russia and Rumania anew.

However, Dalton admitted, the Axis powers are "not so short of oil as I would like."

Bomb Refineries

Perhaps the greatest of last night's British bombings, beginning with the early darkness and continuing past midnight, was aimed at the refineries of Cologne, on the Rhine.

The air ministry said "explosions and fires" marked the attacks, and added: "Many vivid bursts were seen."

Again, British bombs lined the channel "invasion ports" from France to the Netherlands; again the raiders were over Berlin.

Other fires and explosions were described at a Berlin munitions factory and elsewhere in the industrial northwest of the German capital.

Big Fuel Plant Hit

Oil refineries at Sterkrade, north of Dusseldorf and at Gelsenkirchen were raided; "at Sterkrade a large fuel plant was hit and great fires broke out," said the air ministry.

"One of our aircraft, having dropped a stick of high explosives on Sterkrade, went to the Fokker airplane works at Amsterdam and emptied his load there.

"At Gelsenkirchen, fires were started that were still visible when our aircraft were sixty miles on their homeward journey, and later aircraft on the scene intensified the fires with incendiaries."

Ignite Dock Area

From above the invasion ports, the pilots reported that bombs straddled the main basin and started fires in the dock area at Dunkerque; that direct hits were scored on two basins at Bologne despite heavy fighter resistance; that high explosive and incendiary bombs were rained on the piers at Flushing and that bombs were seen to

George Ade Believes Willkie Will Clean Up New Deal Mess

George Ade: "I am supporting Wendell L. Willkie because I think he is the man best qualified by wisdom, common sense and executive ability to clean up the awful mess resulting from many years of wasteful and extravagant spending by the New Deal."

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

German pursuit planes take over bombing chores in unceasing attacks on Britain, for which Nazis claim huge successes; British say raiders driven off repeatedly and tell of damage wrought in Germany by RAF; German channel guns busy again.

Axis oil stocks dwindling, other war essentials severely cut down by tight British blockade, British economic warfare minister reports.

Germans will pitch into Africa to help Italians this winter, some British military men think; Balkans also reported fearful war may yet burst out there.

Britain's former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain reported ready to resign from Churchill cabinet due to ill health, with sweeping reshuffle in prospect.

German Raiders Driven Back by London Barrage

Eighth Attack Since Yesterday Morning Declared Failure

LONDON, Oct. 3—Thursday)—(AP)—Several "Molotoff breadbasket" incendiary bombs burst early today over a famous boys' school in southeastern England.

A fire was started in a roof but it was quickly extinguished and there were no casualties.

(Of the three most famous English boys' schools, Eton and Harrow are in southeast England; the third, Rugby, is in central England. Eton is in the vicinity of Windsor castle, one of the king's homes).

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 3 (Thursday) — A heavy and growing anti-aircraft barrage rose over central London early today, beating back at the second German air raid of the night, the eighth since yesterday morning.

High Nazi planes dodged in and out of the cloud banks.

The assault ended a period of uneasy quiet that had followed an earlier attack — the shortest of the war—which began around dinner-time and ended after several bombs had fallen.

Bombs were reported loosed for the first time—on a southeast town. There were several casualties.

Six times up to nightfall great squadrons of bombers and fighters swept in toward Londan; six times, said the Air Ministry, they were beaten back—intercepted and broken up by our fighters."

These repeated thrusts were supported by German artillery, which shelled the Dover coast heavily from across the channel.

German Fighter Planes Replacing Bombers in Attacks on British

BERLIN, Oct. 2 (AP)—The German command, disclosing that fighter planes are now taking over many of the jobs normally assigned to bomber craft, sent heavy squadrons across the channel today in continuous assaults upon Britain.

Early in the day informed sources had said that full advantage would be taken of the generally favorable weather conditions—including cloud formations—and this forecast was fulfilled.

DNB, the official German news agency, reported tonight that London was under almost ceaseless bombardment, and that targets along the Thames river, in eastern and southeastern areas and across the country to the Irish Sea were attacked heavily.

Oil tanks were fired at Weymouth, DNB said, airports were bombed; harbor facilities at Swansea and Newquay were raided and warehouses burned.

Drop Heavy Bombs

It was resumption of the far-ranging raids of last night in which an official communique several times emphasized, some of the most effective hits were scored "with the heaviest caliber bombs" by fighting plane units.

It was the first statement that fighters were being widely used to drop bombs, and the reason for the adoption of this tactic was not discussed.

(The British of late have been claiming a high percentage of destruction among German bombers, craft much costlier than fighter planes and more difficult to replace.)

Bombed last night and early today, the high command said, were many "war essential targets" in London and in southern and central England.

These were among specific results claimed:

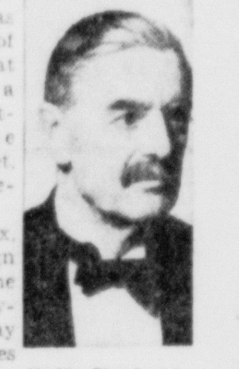
Drastic Shakeup Predicted; Eden Is Mentioned for Important Post

Lord Beaverbrook Also Being Considered; Cooper and Greenwood Scheduled To Lose Posts

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 2—Old and ailing Former Prime Minister Chamberlain, the man who made the ill-fated Munich agreement of September, 1938, will resign shortly as lord president of council in what may become a sweeping readjustment of the Churchill cabinet, political circles reported tonight.



Neville Chamberlain

Lord Halifax, holdover foreign secretary of the Chamberlain government, also may go, London circles said, with Anthony Eden mentioned as his successor.

The same reports said Labor Minister Ernest Bevin probably would become a member of the war cabinet—giving it a strong Socialistic tinge. Bevin is one of the nation's leading Laborites.

Possible Changes

Some politicians predicted that Lord Beaverbrook wuold succeed Chamberlain and that Sir John Anderson would resign as minister of home security, being replaced by Herbert Morrison, now minister of supply.

The reshuffle also may involve Alfred Duff Cooper, and Arthur Greenwood, now minister of information and minister without portfolio, respectively, the reports said.

Chamberlain's resignation would leave vacant the position of conservative party leader, which is expected to go to Churchill, leaving him in full control both of the government and of the party.

The news of Chamberlain's impending departure touched off press criticism of the appeasement influ-

Rumanians Hold British Director Of Oil Company

A. Miller Seized at Bucharest by Alleged Guardists

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 2 (AP) — Director A. Miller, 40, of the British-dominated Astra-Romana Oil Company was seized and carried away early today by four men dressed as civilians.

Official British circles, identifying the four as Iron Guardists, said Miller was kidnaped but there were other theories that he had been arrested by plainclothes police.

(A broadcast by the German radio of a Bucharest dispatch said that, in the lack of an official Rumanian announcement, "details available so far indicate that Miller was arrested on orders of Rumanian authorities as were lately five other Englishmen who were suspected of sabotage activities in Rumanian oil fields.")

Astra-Romana's properties were confiscated by Rumania July 24.

Britons expressed belief that charges by the pro-Nazi Iron Guard of a British plot to blow up oil tankers en route to Germany and to treat gasoline with chemicals to cripple German warplanes were involved.

They said that the four men who took Miller from a suburban sports club, apparently believed he might be able to supply information on the purported plot.

The Astra-Romana Company, the largest oil producer in Rumania, with an output of 1,500,000 tons annually, now is managed by an Iron Guard commissar appointed by the government.

AFL To Endorse No Candidates, Green Declares

But Will Submit Labor Records of Willkie and FDR to Members

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. (AP)—The American Federation of Labor executive council reaffirmed today its traditional policy of endorsing no presidential candidates, and ordered sent to its 4,300,000 members the labor records of both Franklin D. Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie.

President William Green said the federation's policy was broken only once, in 1924, when the organization endorsed the Progressive party ticket headed by Robert M. LaFollette, Jr.

Telling a press conference that the AFL believed it was better off in the political field by not attaching itself to any presidential candidate, Green said:

"When you endorse a candidate for president, you are practically endorsing his party."

Instead of endorsing either candidate in the present contest, the AFL will distribute all the information it has on the labor records and views of each.

Because Willkie has not held any public office, the AFL publication will contain excerpts from his speeches since he won the Republican nomination.

Green said the Willkie report would mention that many subsidiaries of Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, which Willkie formerly headed, had entered into collective bargaining agreements with AFL unions.

G.O.P. Candidate

prepared, Willkie said that in 1936, "an election year," the ratio of defense expenditures to other spending dropped to its lowest point.

"There were other, more attractive ways to spend the money," he asserted, adding:

Exposed to Aggressors

"I say that we are now exposed to the aggressors because of the political theories and the political ambitions of a few men."

Declaring "the defense job that lies ahead of us is appalling in magnitude," Willkie said, "we can not make ourselves strong by a patchwork method."

In his foreign policy outline, Willkie asserted:

"I would continue my efforts to aid the heroic British people. I would aid the British even if it meant the sacrifice of some speed in building up our own air fleet. I would do so because the longer Britain held out the more time we have in which to prepare ourselves."

Scores Administration

The nominee reiterated his contentions, advanced earlier in the day, that the new German-Italian-Japanese pact demonstrated those countries regarded the United States "in terms of war" and that the administration had not taken adequate defense steps when Hitler came to power.

With the assertion that the people don't want "any more dramatic gestures" or "swashbuckling words," until a defense system is set up, Willkie observed that with only a one-ocean navy "we need to make the Panama canal safe by building two sets of locks so that if one is destroyed we may use the other. To get these locks will take six years.

"And, of course, eventually we need a two-ocean navy, but that will take seven years."

He asserted that "there are not even any paper plans" available to local officials instructing how to protect the public from air raid damage to waterworks, gas mains or sewage.

Chance of Air Attacks

"In these matters so vital to health and life we are as unprepared as if Adolf Hitler had never existed," Willkie continued. "That we should be exposed to air attacks may sound improbable, but my authority is the third term candidate, who described the danger so vividly some months ago in a radio talk.

"The plain fact is that we are late. We are terribly late."

Reciting the equipment needs of an army of 750,000 men, Willkie changed his text to say he believed the nation now had one ninety MM anti-aircraft gun. The prepared text said there now were none in this country. The candidate declared that testimony before Congressional committees had demonstrated 300 were necessary.

When Willkie mentioned "the third term candidate," the audience booed. There was applause when he added that the chief executive had little time for many defense decisions because his desk "is already crowded with non-political speeches."

That Munich Conference

When Willkie read from his prepared text that the administration had been "very proud of the results" of the Munich conference, he interpolated a sentence saying "it is not so proud today and it would like to repudiate its action."

Willkie frequently has contended that the administration partially was responsible for the conference, a year before the European war broke out.

Among other things, Willkie contended, the dissolution of the war resources board headed by Edward R. Stettinius in 1939 delayed the defense program nine months.

Before coming here, the Republican nominee expressed belief before audiences at Adrian, Mich., and Toledo, Ohio, that "nobody in this country wants war."

To avoid it, he said, "the nation must become strong in its domestic economy and in its military defense. In both respects we are presently very weak."

Before his Toledo address at the court square Willkie drove more than twenty miles through the city's manufacturing and business districts.

Workers gathered at some factories booed as the candidate passed, and a tomato was thrown near his car at the Electric Auto Lite Company. Through other districts, particularly downtown, the nominee was cheered loudly.

Before a trainside crowd at Oak Harbor, Ohio, Willkie reiterated his contention that "this is the most important campaign in the history of the United States" because "the Democratic way of life is in test."

This administration has "not yet even built the plants" with which to construct an adequate defense, he said.

"That's got to end, but this administration can't end it," he added. "This administration simply does not know how to do things. It knows how to talk about things beautifully."

of the New Deal in Philadelphia. It was followed up shortly afterward by John Carmody, Federal Works Administrator, who yields only to Harold Ickes as a New Deal political hatchetman.

"Little Diddle" Biddle

"Thereafter, 'Little Diddle' Biddle, still throwing paperwads after all these years, retold the tale in an admittedly political speech in Seattle. After that it was renewed in the New Deal 'March of Slime' recently published by the leftist New Republic. They were repeated on this floor by the Senior Senator from Nebraska, who no doubt drew them from the New Republic.

"The burden of these charges is that Mr. Willkie destroyed this newspaper because it opposed him. It is an audacious falsehood. It is audacious because it is predicated wholly on the assumption that denials can never outrun a slander. It is a venomous falsehood because its originator, Mr. Francis 'Little Diddle' Biddle, was guilty of attempting what he now charges Mr. Willkie with having accomplished."

"Every effort of the New Deal party to inject the alleged power issue into the campaign has failed," continued Senator Bridges. "It doesn't click. The man who locked horns in personal dispute with Sam Insull cannot be identified in the public mind with the sort of speculator that Insull typified. It won't stick; the power issue is a dud.

"Perhaps one additional reason for this is that the New Deal does not come before the bar of public opinion with clean hands. Its record on power is nothing to brag about."

Replies to Norris

Senator Bridges replied to the recent attack on Willkie by Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, the once anti-third term Progressive, by declaring:

"Perhaps the Senator from Nebraska will explain to this body why there are eleven counties in west central Nebraska that have the local name of the 'Norris Desert'. A man made desert, made by the New Deal at the insistence of the distinguished gentleman from Nebraska. They are three hydro-electric projects. Two of them are on a stream that in very recent times has been dry for more than a hundred miles and for as much as 222 days in a single year.

"The three projects have been reorganized by the WPA so that the four per cent bonds, with a thirty year maturity, are exchanged for bonds, the last of which will mature sometime in the next century (2004 A. D.). Instead of four per cent the federal treasury will receive, at first, half of one per cent. And bear in mind the New Deal gave these projects as outright gifts from 30 to 45 per cent of the cost, accepting the bonds that were defaulted for the balance."

"Sixty million dollars were poured down that Nebraska rat hole", said the Senator.

Never Too Old To Play, Vassar Head Declares In Cleveland Address

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2 (AP)—You're too old to play? Don't you believe it!

That advice came today from Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar college for twenty-six of his fifty-nine years. He told the National Recreation Congress:

"Play is as much a part of our nature as thought. We all take ourselves too seriously.

"The silliest of all the silly notions that we descendants of the Puritans have inherited about this matter of recreation is that it is somehow undignified to play.

"Of course it is undignified, but dignity is a garment we can safely leave to hang upon a closet hook along with academic robes and hoods.

"There is a hideous notion abroad that it doesn't do to see old people in an undignified attitude. If a grandma indulges in recreation people say: 'What does the old thing mean?'

"We practically chloroform our old people when we leave them out of our designs. They go to Florida or California and become practically vegetation—waiting for the reaper to com along and mow them down. I don't want to die that way. I think the next step in public recreation is to do something about old folks, instead of always leaving them at home."

ence in the government, of which Lord Halifax was declared to be a symbol.

The Halifax diplomacy, said the London News - Chronicle, "has brought us an unbroken succession of serious defeats," adding that his resignation was long overdue "in the public interest."

Two behind-the-scenes factors have complicated the Churchill-Chamberlain drama.

Blow to Conservatives

First and foremost is the fact that Chamberlain has continued as leader of the Conservative party, the biggest group in the House and controlling enough votes to make or break any government.

Second, Churchill before the war was distinctly unpopular with the conservative heirarchy because of his independent views on rearmament, appeasement, air supremacy over Germany and German preparations for war.

True, these factors have become less acute under the impact of the war's turn and it is doubtful if any prime minister has captured the popular support of the British people as Churchill has—certainly not since David Lloyd George guided the country through the critical years of the last war.

If there ever was a danger of the conservatives turning against Churchill in the House for any reason involving Chamberlain, that danger now is believed passed because most people agree any party that tried it would be wrecked.

Loyalty Never Doubted

No one has ever doubted Chamberlain's loyalty to his successor, or questioned his willingness to cooperate, but parliamentary observers say there is no doubt many of his followers in the early days of the Churchill government believed their chief had received a raw deal. Some were hostile, at least in speech, and openly avowed their loyalty to Chamberlain, not Churchill.

Most political observers agree Chamberlain no longer is a political force, almost as dead politically as his predecessor at the head of the government, Earl Baldwin, whose name rarely if ever is mentioned now in affairs of state.

When he went into office, Chamberlain is known to have felt Baldwin was too insular; not interested in foreign affairs.

Richardson Coming Back

Secretary of the Navy Knox disclosed that Admiral James O. Richardson, commander-in-chief of the fleet, stationed in the Pacific, was coming to Washington for a "talk on the general situation" in that ocean.

Knox also reported at a press conference that the navy was working on plans for a base in Newfoundland and promised that "we won't let any grass grow under our feet" in developing this and other sites acquired from Great Britain.

He added that as areas were defined for the other bases and data was forthcoming from the navy's survey board, now in the Bahamas, plans would be developed for seven other bases in the Atlantic and Caribbean.

The army and navy, Knox said at another point, were cooperating with Great Britain to speed up production of war planes where possible by eliminating "minor differences" in models of planes all have ordered.

Papa Jones and His Big Family Not Overly Pleased in New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—Keeping up with the Joneses proved quite a trick today as the Jones family—seventeen strong—arrived in town to see the World's Fair.

As their train from Peterstown, W. Va., pulled into Pennsylvania station, press agents grabbed Grover Jones, Mrs. Jones and their fifteen sons and attempted to rush them off to the fair before they could even stretch their collective legs.

Followed much ado, and the Joneses finally were granted a few moments for interviews. Then to the fair in two limousine buses, and the fun began—but not for the Joneses.

All were pretty weary from the train trip and Papa Jones, forty-nine-year old schoolmaster, was hungry.

So in the national advisory building they attempted to eat. The cream of tomato soup was scarcely set out, however, before curious fair-goers began to interrupt. Up jumped Mr. Jones and he laid down the law; no more interruptions until after lunch.

Well, that was all righ, and they began dining. Lamb chops, green peas and boiled potatoes were followed by pudding, coffee and milk. But Papa Jones was still a bit peeved over all the attention and besides, Tad, twelve, developed a stomach ache.

By the time luncheon was over, just before 4 o'clock, everyone from the parents and William, 23, down to the youngest son, 2½ months, was worn out.

Over myriad protests, they dragged themselves into their buses and made off for their hotel.

"The fair," said Papa Jones, "will simply have to wait until tomorrow. We'll be back around noon."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The battle of Britain roars on amid an exchange of lethal and verbal bomb blasts by the belligerents; but Spain has voted to stay out. She is not convinced that her Nazi-Fascist friends have yet licked John Bull and his navy.

That is the crux of the war news on the political front. It has military potentialties far deeper than the mere matter of Spain's future role in the struggle. It could go far toward reshaping the course of the war either in the west, or in the Mediterranean theater.

London, Berlin, Rome and Madrid are agreed in saying that Spain is to keep out, even if they do not agree as to the reason for her continued non-belligerency. The most obvious explanation is General Franco's apprehension that an air-tight British blockade of Spain would invite starvation-bred disorders there that could unseat him as military dictator. He has no intention of stepping in to grasp at the Axis-proffered Gibraltar prize until it is far more certain that Britain has been beaten.

Good News for Britain

As the nation in Europe occupying the best ringside seat to observe the battle of Britain, Spain's indicated decision to stay out of it is an important development. It means Britain faces only a two-front, not a three-front attack this winter.

There is not going to be a siege of her Gibraltar sentry-box at the western outlet of the Mediterranean. It could be attacked by land only from Spain. That, added to rising doubts that Hitler will dare to invade England in the near future, is as cheering for Britons as a draft of their famous brown October ale.

Invasion Still Possible

Yet they can not dismiss the invasion danger entirely. If Hitler loses confidence that Italy, with what additional help he can supply, can crack Britain's hold on the eastern gateway to the Mediterranean, the Suez canal, he may be forced to risk invasion despite ever-mounting odds against success.

Autumn and winter are the seasons of military hibernation in all schools of strategy. To military minds, an indian summer attempt on England would be an evidence of German desperation, not strength. A few days' repeat-performance of summer weather in mid-October would hardly suffice for as big a job as invading Britannia, who still rules the English air in daylight, in addition to holding sway on the waves.

Italians Consolidating

The Italians are "consolidating" at the Sidi Barrani spearhead of their Egyptian thrust. In lay language that means digging in for defense, not offense. It may be that Rome never expected to go farther; that she expected the fall of England weeks ago. Taking on a full size desert campaign with hundreds of waterless miles still to go is something else, particularly if Nazi abandonment of the invasion threat frees Britain to reinforce her eastern Mediterranean flank.

British Aviators

burst close to the "big bertha" emplacements at Cap Gris Nez.

The attacks here were carried out under intense fire from coastal batteries.

At Le Havre, the pilots said, two raids within an hour by separate forces of bombers left damage from high explosive bombs in the carnot basin, on the quays of the tidal harbor . . . "and one big explosion broke out in several parts of the harbor."

A plane factory at Rotterdam, an airdrome at Hammstede, The Netherlands, and the Veere, Netherlands seaplane base, also were raided.

and in industrial Manchester; big bombs loosed upon an armament plant north of London, and on a nearby airport, in a surprise attack by single fighting planes.

Great fire damage wrought by British attacks in Western German cities was acknowledged, but it was said to have been confined to "numerous aparament houses."

Anti-aircraft fire was declared to have forced abandonment of the British night assault upon Berlin, although it was added that incendiary and explosive bombs fell on a brick works west of the city.

British attacks were hindered, the high command said, "by specially developed tactics of night chasers and anti-aircraft artillery."

Farmer Injured By Angry Boar

DAWSONVILLE, Md., Oct. 2. (AP)—Edward Lester, Montgomery county farmer, was recovering today from injuries received when he was attacked by a maddened boar, while his rescuer nursed slighter wounds.

Dr. Upton D. Nourse said Lester received a six-inch gash in his thigh from the animal's tusks. The wound was about four inches deep and thigh muscles were severed.

Lester, about fifty, saw the boar destroying corn in a field, Nourse said, and set his dogs on the animal.

The boar singled out a police dog, one of Lester's favorites, and the farmer attacked the hog with a stick.

Dr. Nourse said the boar charged Lester, knocking him down and inflicting the thigh injury as he lay helpless on the ground, the boar prepared to charge again, when a neighbor, Reese Waddell, came to the rescue and beat off the enraged animal with a club. Waddell, who stands 6 feet, 6½ inches and weighs close to 225 pounds, received a knee injury.

Waddell carried Lester to the physician for treatment.

Farm hands later caught the hog and removed its tusks to prevent further damage.

Constance Bennett To Sue for Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2. (AP)—Constance Bennett left last night for Reno, her representative said, to establish residence so that she may divorce the Marquise De La Falaise De La Coudray.

The Marquise is the actress' third husband. Last reports had the Marquise in Europe, making films.

Miss Bennett, eldest of the three daughters of Richard Bennett, eloped with Chester Moorehead in 1921. That marriage was annulled two years later. In 1924, she became the wife of Philip Plant; she divorced him in 1929. Constance and the Marquise were married in 1931. He was the third husband of Gloria Swanson.

German Raiders

Wales as well — the day had been noisy with a series of sharp, desperate engagements in the clouds.

By early evening, it was officially announced, at least ten German raiders had gone down to destruction, against one British plane acknowledged lost.

But despite all this, despite the magnitude and angry persistance of the assault, certain British military circles said it appeared certain now that the time for an attempt at invasion had passed for this year, and that the main theater of the battle for Britain would be transferred soon to Africa.

Nazis Aid Italians

They added it was quite possible that the Germans already had taken over from Italy the direction of operations in North Africa and that the Nazis likely had moved troops into Italy to support the Fascist columns.

They suggested that Egypt would be the great winter battleground, with the British bases at Mersa Matruh and Alexandria the likely first objectives of a joint German-Italian push. If it came, these sources added, it would be "rough going" for the Axis.

Here in London today, despite the general success officially claimed for the defense, civilians lied under the bombs of small groups of German planes which managed to break through the British line of fighter lanes maintained along the coast.

Job Question Discussed

Oscar R. Ewing, assistant to Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, told a press conference in New York that the Roosevelt administration had found jobs for 13,000,000 persons. His figure was based upon an estimate of 16,000,000 out of work when Mr. Roosevelt took office, 500,000 young people reaching working age annually , and some 7,000,000 unemployed now.

The statement was in reply to assertions made by Willkie, who, Ewing said, used 9,600,000 as the present unemployment figure .

"If we take Mr. Willkie's figure, about 11,500,000 have been put to work," he said. "That sounds like a pretty good handling of the employment situation."

Taft Flays New Deal

Taft, speaking at Milwaukee, said that "in spite of the president's protestations that he knew all about what was going to happen and predicted it, he failed to propose, or even to plan, a defense program." The Roosevelt administration, he asserted, was "a government incompetent to be trusted with American defense."

No man "more competent to meet the present situation than Wendell L. Willkie," could be found, Taft said, adding that "he knows what it is to get results without economical administration."

In New York, Senator Wagner (D-NY) said there was "no significance" in the fact that James A. Farley in addressing the New York State Democratic convention recently, made no mention of President Roosevelt's third-term candidacy, although he highly praised the state administration of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

Willkie Sends New Year Message to Jews of America

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Wendell L. Willkie has sent the following New Year's greetings to the Jews of America on Rosh Hashonah:

"I am happy to send my greetings to the Jewish people of America on the occasion of their celebration of the Hebrew New Year 5701. I am deeply impressed by an occasion, which commemorates more than fifty-seven centuries of recorded experience, reaching back to the roots of our civilization.

"I know what Rosh Hashonah means to the people of your faith. I know that on that day in every land, the Jewish people gather in their synagogues, praying for peace and for the ultimate victory of right and justice. I ask the privilege of joining in your prayers and of pledging to you today that, in so far as it is within my capacity to keep so sacred a pledge, the United States of America will never harbor racial or religious intolerance and persecution. Upon this principle our country was founded and upon it depends the perpetuation of democracy.

"God grant that the Hebrew New Year 5701 may bring to Israel throughout the world the same peace and protection that the Jews of our democracy have always enjoyed and shall continue to enjoy in the United States of America."

Schoolboys Questioned About Throwing Eggs At Willkie Party

PONTIAC, Mich., Oct. 2 (AP)—Formal apologists for the egg-throwing incident that marred the campaign visit of Wendell L. Willkie yesterday followed the Republican presidential nominee's special train out of the state today.

Five high school students were questioned in connection with the egg-throwing. Bruce Bragan, 17-year-old son of an automobile factory employe, pleaded guilty to a part in the disturbance, although he denied tossing the egg that spattered Mrs. Willkie's dress. Municipal Judge Milton F. Cooney released him to return for sentencing on a disorderly charge October 14. Four younger boys were held for juvenile court.

The city commission forwarded a resolution to Mr. and Mrs. Willkie expressing Pontiac's official regret over the incident. The High school student council followed suit today, voicing "sincere apologies" for the action of "a few irresponsible individuals."

In Detroit Miss Doris M Le Roue, 31-year-old typist for the RFC, accused of hurling a wastepaper basket from an eighteenth-floor hotel room during the Willkie visit here Monday evening, was released on $500 bond in a habeas corpus proceeding. Betty Wilson, 19-year-old autograph hunter, struck on the head by the basket, was discharged from receiving hospital, where she was treated for scalp lacerations.

AFL To Endorse No Candidates, Green Declares

But Will Submit Labor Records of Willkie and FDR to Members

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. (AP)—The American Federation of Labor executive council reaffirmed today its traditional policy of endorsing no presidential candidates, and ordered sent to its 4,300,000 members the labor records of both Franklin D. Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie.

President William Green said the federation's policy was broken only once, in 1924, when the organization endorsed the Progressive party ticket headed by Robert M. LaFollette, Jr.

Telling a press conference that the AFL believed it was better off in the political field by not attaching itself to any presidential candidate, Green said:

"When you endorse a candidate for president, you are practically endorsing his party."

Instead of endorsing either candidate in the present contest, the AFL will distribute all the information it has on the labor records and views of each.

Because Willkie has not held any public office, the AFL publication will contain excerpts from his speeches since he won the Republican nomination.

Green said the Willkie report would mention that many subsidiaries of Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, which Willkie formerly headed, had entered into collective bargaining agreements with AFL unions.

G.O.P. Candidate

prepared, Willkie said that in 1936, "an election year," the ratio of defense expenditures to other spending dropped to its lowest point.

"There were other, more attractive ways to spend the money," he asserted, adding:

Exposed to Aggressors

"I say that we are now exposed to the aggressors because of the political theories and the political ambitions of a few men."

Declaring "the defense job that lies ahead of us is appalling in magnitude," Willkie said, "we can not make ourselves strong by a patchwork method."

In his foreign policy outline, Willkie asserted:

"I would continue my efforts to aid the heroic British people. I would aid the British even if it meant the sacrifice of some speed in building up our own air fleet. I would do so because the longer Britain held out the more time we have in which to prepare ourselves."

Scores Administration

The nominee reiterated his contentions, advanced earlier in the day, that the new German-Italian-Japanese pact demonstrated those countries regarded the United States "in terms of war" and that the administration had not taken adequate defense steps when Hitler came to power.

With the assertion that the people don't want "any more dramatic gestures" or "swashbuckling words," until a defense system is set up, Willkie observed that with only a one-ocean navy "we need to make the Panama canal safe by building two sets of locks so that if one is destroyed we may use the other. To get these locks will take six years.

"And, of course, eventually we need a two-ocean navy, but that will take seven years."

He asserted that "there are not even any paper plans" available to local officials instructing how to protect the public from air raid damage to waterworks, gas mains or sewage.

Chance of Air Attacks

"In these matters so vital to health and life we are as unprepared as if Adolf Hitler had never existed," Willkie continued. "That we should be exposed to air attacks may sound improbable, but my authority is the third term candidate who described the danger so vividly some months ago in a radio talk.

"The plain fact is that we are late. We are terribly late."

Reciting the equipment needs of an army of 750,000 men, Willkie changed his text to say he believed the nation now had one ninety MM anti-aircraft gun. The prepared text said there now were none in this country. The candidate declared that testimony before Congressional committees had demonstrated 300 were necessary.

When Willkie mentioned "the third term candidate," the audience booed. There was applause when he added that the chief executive had little time for many defense decisions because his desk "is already crowded with non-political speeches."

That Munich Conference

When Willkie read from his prepared text that the administration had been "very proud of the results" of the Munich conference, he interpolated a sentence saying "it is not so proud today and it would like to repudiate its action."

Willkie frequently has contended that the administration partially was responsible for the conference, a year before the European war broke out.

Among other things, Willkie contended, the dissolution of the war resources board headed by Edward R. Stettinius in 1939 delayed the defense program nine months.

Before coming here, the Republican nominee expressed belief before audiences at Adrian, Mich., and Toledo, Ohio, that "nobody in this country wants war."

To avoid it, he said, "the nation must become strong in its domestic economy and in its military defense. In both respects we are presently very weak."

Before his Toledo address at the court square Willkie drove more than twenty miles through the city's manufacturing and business districts.

Workers gathered at some factories booed as the candidate passed, and a tomato was thrown near his car at the Electric Auto Lite Company. Through other districts, particularly downtown, the nominee was cheered loudly.

Before a trainside crowd at Oak Harbor, Ohio, Willkie reiterated his contention that "this is the most important campaign in the history of the United States" because "the Democratic way of life is in test."

This administration has "not yet even built the plants" with which to construct an adequate defense he said.

"That's got to end, but this administration can't end it," he added. "This administration simply does not know how to do things. It knows how to talk about things beautifully."

of the New Deal in Philadelphia. It was followed up shortly afterward by John Carmody, Federal Works Administrator, who yields only to Harold Ickes as a New Deal political hatchetman.

"Little Diddle" Biddle

"Thereafter, 'Little Diddle' Biddle, still throwing paperwads after all these years, retold the tale in an admittedly political speech in Seattle. After that it was renewed in the New Deal 'March of Slime' recently published by the leftist New Republic. They were repeated on this floor by the Senior Senator from Nebraska, who no doubt drew them from the New Republic.

"The burden of these charges is that Mr. Willkie destroyed this newspaper because it opposed him. It is an audacious falsehood. It is audacious because it is predicated wholly on the assumption that denials can never outrun a slander. It is a venomous falsehood because its originator, Mr. Francis 'Little Diddle' Biddle, was guilty of attempting what he now charges Mr. Willkie with having accomplished.

"Every effort of the New Deal party to inject the alleged power issue into the campaign has failed," continued Senator Bridges. "It doesn't click. The man who locked horns in personal dispute with Sam Insull cannot be identified in the public mind with the sort of speculator that Insull typified. It won't stick; the power issue is a dud.

"Perhaps one additional reason for this is that the New Deal does not come before the bar of public opinion with clean hands. Its record on power is nothing to brag about."

Replies to Norris

Senator Bridges replied to the recent attack on Willkie by Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, the once anti-third term Progressive, by declaring:

"Perhaps the Senator from Nebraska will explain to this body why there are eleven counties in west central Nebraska that have the local name of the 'Norris Desert'. A man made desert, made by the New Deal at the insistence of the distinguished gentleman from Nebraska. They are three hydro-electric projects. Two of them are on a stream that in very recent times has been dry for more than a hundred miles and for as much as 222 days in a single year.

"The three projects have been reorganized by the WPA so that the four per cent bonds, with a thirty year maturity, are exchanged for bonds, the last of which will mature sometime in the next century (2004 A. D.). Instead of four per cent the federal treasury will receive, at first, half of one per cent. And bear in mind the New Deal gave these projects as outright gifts from 30 to 45 per cent of the cost, accepting the bonds that were defaulted for the balance."

"Sixty million dollars were poured down that Nebraska rat hole", said the Senator.

Never Too Old To Play, Vassar Head Declares In Cleveland Address

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2 (AP) —You're too old to play? Don't you believe it!

That advice came today from Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar college for twenty-six of his fifty-nine years. He told the National Recreation Congress:

"Play is as much a part of our nature as thought. We all take ourselves too seriously.

"The silliest of all the silly notions that we descendants of the Puritans have inherited about this matter of recreation is that it is somehow undignified to play.

"Of course it is undignified, but dignity is a garment we can safely leave to hang upon a closet hook along with academic robes and hoods.

"There is a hideous notion abroad that it doesn't do to see old people in an undignified attitude. If a grandma indulges in recreation people say: 'What does the old thing mean?'

"We practically chloroform our old people when we leave them out of our designs. They go to Florida or California and become practically vegetation—waiting for the reaper to com along and mow them down. I don't want to die that way. I think the next step in public recreation is to do something about old folks, instead of always leaving tnem at home."

ence in the government, of which Lord Halifax was declared to be a symbol.

The Halifax diplomacy, said the London News - Chronicle, "has brought us an unbroken succession of serious defeats," adding that his resignation was long overdue "in the public interest."

Two behind-the-scenes factors have complicated the Churchill-Chamberlain drama.

Blow to Conservatives

First and foremost is the fact that Chamberlain has continued as leader of the Conservative party, the biggest group in the House and controlling enough votes to make or break any government.

Second, Churchill before the war was distinctly unpopular with the conservative heirarchy because of his independent views on rearmament, appeasement, air supremacy over Germany and German preparations for war.

True, these factors have become less acute under the impact of the war's turn and it is doubtful if any prime minister has captured the popular support of the British people as Churchill has—certainly not since David Lloyd George guided the country through the critical years of the last war.

If there ever was a danger of the conservatives turning against Churchill in the House for any reason involving Chamberlain, that danger now is believed passed because most people agree any party that tried it would be wrecked.

Loyalty Never Doubted

No one has ever doubted Chamberlain's loyalty to his successor, or questioned his willingness to cooperate, but parliamentary observers say there is no doubt many of his followers in the early days of the Churchill government believed their chief had received a raw deal. Some were hostile, at least in speech, and openly avowed their loyalty to Chamberlain, not Churchill.

Most political observers agree Chamberlain no longer is a political force, almost as dead politically as his predecessor at the head of the government, Earl Baldwin, whose name rarely if ever is mentioned now in affairs of state.

When he went into office, Chamberlain is known to have felt Baldwin was too insular; not interested in foreign affairs.

Richardson Coming Back

Secretary of the Navy Knox disclosed that Admiral James O. Richardson, commander-in-chief of the fleet, stationed in the Pacific, was coming to Washington for a "talk on the general situation" in that ocean.

Knox also reported at a press conference that the navy was working on plans for a base in Newfoundland and promised that "we won't let any grass grow under our feet" in developing this and other sites acquired from Great Britain.

He added that as areas were defined for the other bases and data was forthcoming from the navy's survey board, now in the Bahamas, plans would be developed for seven other bases in the Atlantic and Caribbean.

The army and navy, Knox said at another point, were cooperating with Great Britain to speed up production of war planes where possible by eliminating "minor differences" in models of planes all have ordered.

Papa Jones and His Big Family Not Overly Pleased in New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—Keeping up with the Joneses proved quite a trick today as the Jones family—seventeen strong—arrived in town to see the World's Fair.

As their train from Peterstown, W. Va., pulled into Pennsylvania station, press agents grabbed Grover Jones, Mrs. Jones and their fifteen sons and attempted to rush them off to the fair before they could even stretch their collective legs.

Followed much ado, and the Joneses finally were granted a few moments for interviews. Then to the fair in two limousine buses, and the fun began—but not for the Joneses.

All were pretty weary from the train trip and Papa Jones, forty-nine-year old schoolmaster, was hungry.

So in the national advisory building they attempted to eat. The cream of tomato soup was scarcely set out, however, before curious fair-goers began to interrupt. Up jumped Mr. Jones and he laid down the law; no more interruptions until after lunch.

Well, that was all righ, and they began dining. Lamb chops, green peas and boiled potatoes were followed by pudding, coffee and milk. But Papa Jones was still a bit peeved over all the attention and besides, Tad, twelve, developed a stomach ache.

By the time luncheon was over, just before 4 o'clock, everyone from the parents and William, 23, down to the youngest son, 2½ months, was worn out.

Over myriad protests, they dragged themselves into their buses and made off for their hotel.

"The fair," said Papa Jones, "will simply have to wait until tomorrow. We'll be back around noon."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The battle of Britain roars on amid an exchange of lethal and verbal bomb blasts by the belligerents; but Spain has voted to stay out. She is not convinced that her Nazi-Fascist friends have yet licked John Bull and his navy.

That is the crux of the war news on the political front. It has military potentialties far deeper than the mere matter of Spain's future role in the struggle. It could go far toward reshaping the course of the war either in the west, or in the Mediterranean theater.

London, Berlin, Rome and Madrid are agreed in saying that Spain is to keep out, even if they do not agree as to the reason for her continued non-belligerency. The most obvious explanation is General Franco's apprehension that an air-tight British blockade of Spain would invite starvation-bred disorders there that could unseat him as military dictator. He has no intention of stepping in to grasp at the Axis-proffered Gibraltar prize until it is far more certain that Britain has been beaten.

Good News for Britain

As the nation in Europe occupying the best ringside seat to observe the battle of Britain, Spain's indicated decision to stay out of it is an important development. It means Britain faces only a two-front, not a three-front attack this winter.

There is not going to be a siege of her Gibraltar sentry-box at the western outlet of the Mediterranean. It could be attacked by land only from Spain. That, added to rising doubts that Hitler will dare to invade England in the near future, is as cheering for Britons as a draft of their famous brown October ale.

Invasion Still Possible

Yet they can not dismiss the invasion danger entirely. If Hitler loses confidence that Italy, with what additional help he can supply, can crack Britain's hold on the eastern gateway to the Mediterranean, the Suez canal, he may be forced to risk invasion despite ever-mounting odds against success.

Autumn and winter are the seasons of military hibernation in all schools of strategy. To military minds, an indian summer attempt on England would be an evidence of German desperation, not strength. A few days' repeat-performance of summer weather in mid-October would hardly suffice for as big a job as invading Britannia, who still rules the English air in daylight, in addition to holding sway on the waves.

Italians Consolidating

The Italians are "consolidating" at the Sidi Barrani spearhead of their Egyptian thrust. In lay language that means digging in for defense, not offense. It may be that Rome never expected to go farther; that she expected the fall of England weeks ago. Taking on a full size desert campaign with hundreds of waterless miles still to go is something else, particularly if Nazi abandonment of the invasion threat frees Britain to reinforce her eastern Mediterranean flank.

British Aviators

burst close to the "big bertha" emplacements at Cap Gris Nez.

The attacks here were carried out under intense fire from coastal batteries.

At Le Havre, the pilots said, two raids within an hour by separate forces of bombers left damage from high explosive bombs in the carnot basin, on the quays of the tidal harbor . . . "and one big explosion broke out in several parts of the harbor."

A plane factory at Rotterdam, an airdrome at Hammstede, The Netherlands, and the Veere, Netherlands seaplane base, also were raided.

and in industrial Manchester; big bombs loosed upon an armament plant north of London, and on a nearby airport, in a surprise attack by single fighting planes.

Great fire damage wrought by British attacks in Western German cities was acknowledged, but it was said to have been confined to "numerous aparament houses."

Anti-aircraft fire was declared to have forced abandonment of the British night assault upon Berlin, although it was added that incendiary and explosive bombs fell on a brick works west of the city.

British attacks were hindered, the high command said, "by specially developed tactics of night chasers and anti-aircraft artillery."

Farmer Injured By Angry Boar

DAWSONVILLE, Md., Oct. 2. (AP)—Edward Lester, Montgomery county farmer, was recovering today from injuries received when he was attacked by a maddened boar, while his rescuer nursed slighter wounds.

Dr. Upton D. Nourse said Lester received a six-inch gash in his thigh from the animal's tusks. The wound was about four inches deep and thigh muscles were severed.

Lester, about fifty, saw the boar destroying corn in a field, Nourse said, and set his dogs on the animal.

The boar singled out a police dog, one of Lester's favorites, and the farmer attacked the hog with a stick.

Dr. Nourse said the boar charged Lester, knocking him down and inflicting the thigh injury as he lay helpless on the ground, the boar prepared to charge again, when a neighbor, Reese Waddell, came to the rescue and beat off the enraged animal with a club. Waddell, who stands 6 feet, 6½ inches and weighs close to 225 pounds, received a knee injury.

Waddell carried Lester to the physician for treatment.

Farm hands later caught the hog and removed its tusks to prevent further damage.

Constance Bennett To Sue for Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2. (AP)—Constance Bennett left last night for Reno, her representative said, to establish residence so that she may divorce the Marquise De La Falaise De La Coudray.

The Marquise is the actress' third husband. Last reports had the Marquise in Europe, making films.

Miss Bennett, eldest of the three daughters of Richard Bennett, eloped with Chester Moorehead in 1921. That marriage was annulled two years later. In 1924 she became the wife of Philip Plant; she divorced him in 1929. Constance and the Marquise were married in 1931. He was the third husband of Gloria Swanson.

German Raiders

Wales as well — the day had been noisy with a series of sharp, desperate engagements in the clouds.

By early evening, it was officially announced, at least ten German raiders had gone down to destruction, against one British plane acknowledged lost.

But despite all this, despite the magnitude and angry persistance of the assault, certain British military circles said it appeared certain now that the time for an attempt at invasion had passed for this year, and that the main theater of the battle for Britain would be transferred soon to Africa.

Nazis Aid Italians

They added it was quite possible that the Germans already had taken over from Italy the direction of operations in North Africa and that the Nazis likely had moved troops into Italy to support the Fascist columns.

They suggested that Egypt would be the great winter battleground, with the British bases at Mersa Matruh and Alexandria the likely first objectives of a joint German-Italian push. If it came, these sources added, it would be "rough going" for the Axis.

Here in London today, despite the general success officially claimed for the defense, civilians lied under the bombs of small groups of German planes which managed to break through the British line of fighter lanes maintained along the coast.

Job Question Discussed

Oscar R. Ewing, assistant to Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, told a press conference in New York that the Roosevelt administration had found jobs for 13,000,000 persons. His figure was based upon an estimate of 16,000,000 out of work when Mr. Roosevelt took office, 500,000 young people reaching working age annually, and some 7,000,000 unemployed now.

The statement was in reply to assertions made by Willkie, who, Ewing said, used 9,600,000 as the present unemployment figure.

"If we take Mr. Willkie's figure, about 11,500,000 have been put to work," he said. "That sounds like a pretty good handling of the employment situation."

Taft Flays New Deal

Taft, speaking at Milwaukee, said that "in spite of the president's protestations that he knew all about what was going to happen and predicted it, he failed to propose, or even to plan, a defense program." The Roosevelt administration, he asserted, was "a government incompetent to be trusted with American defense."

No man "more competent to meet the present situation than Wendell L. Willkie," could be found, Taft said, adding that "he knows what it is to get results without economical administration."

In New York, Senator Wagner (D-NY) said there was "no significance" in the fact that James A. Farley in addressing the New York State Democratic convention recently, made no mention of President Roosevelt's third-term candidacy, although he highly praised the state administration of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

Willkie Sends New Year Message to Jews of America

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Wendell L. Willkie has sent the following New Year's greetings to the Jews of America on Rosh Hashonah:

"I am happy to send my greetings to the Jewish people of America on the occasion of their celebration of the Hebrew New Year 5701. I am deeply impressed by an occasion, which commemorates more than fifty-seven centuries of recorded experience, reaching back to the roots of our civilization.

"I know what Rosh Hashonah means to the people of your faith. I know that on that day in every land, the Jewish people gather in their synagogues, praying for peace and for the ultimate victory of right and justice. I ask the privilege of joining in your prayers and of pledging to you today that, in so far as it is within my capacity to keep so sacred a pledge, the United States of America will never harbor racial or religious intolerance and persecution. Upon this principle our country was founded and upon it depends the perpetuation of democracy.

"God grant that the Hebrew New Year 5701 may bring to Israel throughout the world the same peace and protection that the Jews of our democracy have always enjoyed and shall continue to enjoy in the United States of America."

Schoolboys Questioned About Throwing Eggs At Willkie Party

PONTIAC, Mich., Oct. 2 (AP)—Formal apologists for the egg-throwing incident that marred the campaign visit of Wendell L. Willkie yesterday followed the Republican presidential nominee's special train out of the state today.

Five high school students were questioned in connection with the egg-throwing. Bruce Bragan, 17-year-old son of an automobile factory employe, pleaded guilty to a part in the disturbance, although he denied tossing the egg that spattered Mrs. Willkie's dress. Municipal Judge Milton F. Cooney released him to return for sentencing on a disorderly charge October 14. Four younger boys were held for juvenile court.

The city commission forwarded a resolution to Mr. and Mrs. Willkie expressing Pontiac's official regret over the incident. The High school student council followed suit today, voicing "sincere apologies" for the action of "a few irresponsible individuals."

In Detroit Miss Doris M Le Roue, 31-year-old typist for the RFC, accused of hurling a wastepaper basket from an eighteenth-floor hotel room during the Willkie visit here Monday evening, was released on $500 bond in a habeas corpus proceeding. Betty Wilson, 19-year-old autograph hunter, struck on the head by the basket, was discharged from receiving hospital, where she was treated for scalp lacerations.

"We have no feeling against th boy, and I hope you can in you judgment lighten his punishment. He was probably more misled than offending. My respects."

Five Vitamins Are Found in Plant Food

Vitamin D Is Found Exclusively In Animal Food

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Of the six most thoroughly studied vitamins—those substances so necessary for our physical and mental welfare—five are found in plant food. Only one — Vitamin D — is found exclusively in animal food. And the human body itself, like the animals from whose flesh we get our supply, can manufacture Vitamin D out of simple chemical elements with the help of sunshine.

Plants themselves are greatly affected by vitamins in the soil. We have all heard stories lately about adding Vitamin B to soil and the marvelous giant plants that result. But B is only one of the hormones and vitamins necessary to plants.

The experiments with Vitamin B on plants are, however, of great interest. This vitamin can be isolated in pure crystalline form so experimenters can know what they are doing. It stimulates root growth particularly. The roots of flax, for instance, placed in nutrient solution of mineral salts, nitrogen and surcose will not grow, but if one in 10,000,000 parts of Vitamin B is added to the mixture, the root tips will grow an inch a day indefinitely, or as long as the nutrient material holds out.

Power of Fertilizers

Amateur gardeners, moreover, find that Vitamin B added to soil will result in large and hardier plants. Unknown to agriculturists the secret of the power of fertilizers has been the vitamin content. The amount of vitamins present need be very small—eight five-grain tablets of selected vitamins, I am told, might be dissolved in the water required to irrigate an acre of land for a year. Excesses of the vitamin, indeed, seem to do more harm than good. Important economic crops like corn, wheat and tomatoes do not require any extra vitamin fertilization. Through a long process of selection they seem to have acquired the ability to manufacture their own vitamins for soil fertilization.

Of course that is the natural way for plants to obtain their vitamins. Plants are isolationists. They do not need to enter into reciprocal trade agreements. From air and sunlight they manufacture the substance of their bodies. Man and the animals have to depend on the products of the plants to build up their body substance.

Apply It to Man

Some hormones added to plants affect not the growth of the plant but the reproductive functions—sexual fruiting can thus be produced without natural pollination. The period of dormancy may be prolonged or shortened so that the seasonal cyclic changes in the plant world are varied, even obliterated. Leaves may be caused to grow upward (hyponasty) or downward (epinasty) contrary to the plant's usual habit.

All this experimental work—so new and surprising and stimulating—makes us wish to apply it to man and his growth and functions. Undoubtedly that is one of the strong tendencies of the science of the age, and our attack in the future will not be so much towards intensive study of the cause and cure of particular diseases as of influencing growth and fertility of new generations.

Congress Renders Some Good Service to the Country

ALTHOUGH the Congress is obliged to assent to numerous presidential requests, it is now and then giving evidence of a return to its rightful independence in our scheme of government.

One instance is the defeat by the House of Representatives of legislation approved by the State department, which would have empowered the president to bar from this country any goods confiscated by foreign nations "by force" and without "just compensation." The measure would have permitted the president to exclude oil from expropriated Mexican wells.

Why did the House thus turn on the president in the face of the approval by the State department? Simply because of the cogent objections offered by Republican members, who declared that the bill was objectionable because it delegated more powers to the president. Representative Wadsworth, of New York, declared that the bill would give the president "the right to pass upon the type of government chosen by the citizens of other nations," and would give "the president the right to police foreign governments."

That is to say, the president is reaching out for entirely too much additional authority, and the feeling obtains that this has gone far enough, if, indeed, not too far.

Such obstructions to the presidential thirst for more power is one of the reasons why the Congress has decided to remain in session contrary to his wishes. He doesn't want Congress on his hands now any more than he did last June when he urged it to pack up, go home and leave things to him. The New York Herald Tribune sets forth what Mr. Roosevelt has, in effect, said to Congress and the nation in this respect.

"I know more about the world situation than you ever can learn," the Herald Tribune declares Mr. Roosevelt says in effect, "and I have daily access to sources of information which are closed to you. Therefore you must trust in my good judgment. If you try to restrict me you merely make my task more difficult. In due time I will tell you what it is proper for you to learn about my stewardship and will inform you about what you should do to back me up. In the meantime don't ask questions and don't bother me by giving me your views on world or domestic problems, and don't take up my time with new bills. Go home and help elect a docile Democratic Congress. That's the best way you can serve me. I have called the turn right so many times that you must believe me when I tell you that I know best."

The Congress has rendered the country an excellent service in calling a turn on that egotistical notion of indispensability.

Contention on Volunteering Seems To Be Proving Itself

THIS NEWSPAPER was numbered among those that argued for a reasonable suspension of actual conscription pending a trial period of voluntary enlistments. Along with many others it was of the belief that voluntary enlistments would suffice to meet the facilities that could be provided for caring for the new army at the outset.

That this stand was not devoid of sense has been demonstrated by the fact that enlistments have been so numerous of late that it will be unnecessary to draft many men, if indeed, any at all, for the first contingent to be filled by the first of the year. Washington press dispatches credit well informed officials with the prediction that enlistments will fill most of the need. Reports from New York city state that army headquarters in that area have been overwhelmed with applicants, with hundreds standing in line and being compelled to wait over into succeeding days. At the same time facilities for taking care of those already taken have proved inadequate.

Of course, if our troop requirements can be filled without conscription, or with a minimum of the conscription list, it will be better all around for the national economy. Besides giving less interference with the economic system, it is better to take men who really want to go into the service than those who go only because they must.

That Life Insurance Menace Still Obtains

IF you are one of the 64,000,000 life insurance policy holders of the country and have been troubled by the New Deal attitude toward the life insurance companies, you should not let your qualms subside in a belief that the danger you have feared is past.

The administration is going ahead with its probe of the life insurance companies just the same, although it is stated that matters will be deferred until after the election. Of course, if the election goes the administration's way, they will be taken up.

Officials of four large life insurance companies were brought into conference this week with Sumner T. Pike, member of the Securities and Exchange Commission and its representative on the Temporary National Economic Committee. It was learned, following the meeting, that the conferees discussed the commission's reports on life insurance. Recently the SEC published its WPA study on the insurance coverage of a certain sector of the population residing in the Boston area.

A Washington dispatch on the financial page of a New York paper says this report was "highly critical" of the selling methods employed by some of the companies, especially those underwriting industrial insurance.

A summary of a report which the commission has prepared on the overall study of life insurance has also been critical of certain practices of the companies. This document has not been released to date, but its contents indicate that some form of federal regulation may be sought in the future.

So it can be seen that the New Deal forces are still looking with hungry eyes upon the vast resources of the life insurance companies, control of which they would very much like to have, and which control they will undoubtedly set about to obtain if the November election goes their way.

Policyholders should guard against this menace in the most effective manner in which they can do so, which is by registering their disapproval at the polls November 5.

A House Cleaning That Is Direly Needed

ONE of the best things that could happen to this country would be a wholesale cleaning out of the "cynics and unbelievers, the nuts and the bunk artists" in Washington, which Wendell Willkie promises the people he will do in the event of his election to the presidency.

The group of radical theorists with which President Roosevelt long since surrounded himself has wrought irreparable harm to the nation, its ideals and its representative plan of government by reason of the influence they have brought to bear upon an executive who is so susceptible to flattery and smart wisecracking, and who possesses an irresistible flair for novelty in all directions.

This little group of cynics, called the New Dealers, has as Willkie says, encouraged American youth to dismiss "the moral and spiritual standards of our American tradition." They have encouraged it in elders, too, but what is most unfortunate, they have wielded a like influence upon the president, whom they have persuaded, slyly, subtly, step by step, to depart from the solemn pledges made by his party and set down in its platform, on which program he won such overwhelming support at the outset of his administration.

Had this group never been placed in posts of authority and influence in Washington, conditions would be vastly different in this country today. These fellows have wrought incalculable damage to the nation and its institutions, its laws, its economics and its democratic tenets. The progress of the country has been retarded, indeed, all but halted, through the fantastical concoctions of their "new" school of political thought, which runs counter to that which made it great and prosperous over a century and a half.

These machinators should be swept out of their high places with a new broom. Wendell Willkie promises to wield the broom. He should be given a chance to use it. And he should be given also the support he requires to make the sweeping thorough and effective in the election of a Congress that will not tie his hands.

"Thirty" Is Written For an Old Friend

THE LATE "HANK" HAYWARD, as he was affectionately known in the community, whose passing at Wellsley Farms, Mass., has been chronicled, was a lovable man, and the many who knew him in Cumberland and its surrounding territory are naturally made sorrowful that he is no more on earth.

Henry Sidney Hayward was a gentleman of the old school, always friendly, ever good-hearted and constantly loyal to his work and friends. He labored long and faithfully on the editorial staff of the old Daily News, and many Cumberlanders, as well as those who were formerly associated with him in work, can recall with pleasure many interesting events and incidences of his career here.

Failing health during the last few years forced "Hank" to forego the tempo of his former days, and that grieved him much, but he retained his even philosophy of life to the end. Cumberland knew him well; it feels the loss of a good friend in his passing.

If you haven't received cheerful letters from California friends recently, this may be the reason—the 1940 census shows Florida to be the fastest growing state.

Blackbird with a Scarlet Wing

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Long ago, in the spring of a year, between green fields where wild flowers grew, I walked barefooted down a dusty road.

Marshall Maslin

And suddenly out of one field and over my head and down into another field a blackbird flew.

A shiny blackbird with a slash of scarlet on his coal black wings. Just like that. Into my sight and out again and hardly noticed. And for all I knew, soon forgotten. . . . It had no obvious significance for me then. He was just a blackbird and I'd seen thousands of them in my few years. Seen them in great mobs flying in the twilight. Seen them in long lines on the telephone wires. Seen them following the farmer's plough in many a field. Seen them stealing the grain from the chickens in my own back yard. . . . So why should I remember this impudent fellow merely because he had a touch of scarlet on his wing?

And yet I remember HIM and forget all the rest. This one bird, a little different from those I usually saw, but still a blackbird, has come into my memory again and again at the oddest moments. . . . Once in a classroom in college. Once in a dugout in France. Once when I was walking through a crowded store. Once when I saw a baby acting "silly" to make his parents laugh. . . . Many a time that blackbird with the scarlet wing has flown across my life.

He's been dead these many years. All his aucacity and impudence are gone, have been gone, and his little body is part of the fields from whence he flew. . . . And yet, for me he is still alive.

I think he returns to me whenever I see a man or woman or even a child that wears a dash of scarlet on his spirit. . . . When I see an old woman who has known many sorrows lift her head in challenge to the darkness. When I see a man surrounded by enemies flash challenge from his story eyes. When I see youth or maiden or even a crawling baby make a gallant gesture. Whenever I catch a glimpse of that invisible plume that waves above the dauntless brow, I'm likely to think of that small bird with the scarlet on his wing — and wear for an instant that same brave badge upon my sleeve!

Free Leadership Is Defense Need, Gen. Johnson Says

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

NEW YOR KCITY, Oct. 2.—Some of my columnar war crying colleagues say that American industry ought to be put on a war basis right now. Their argument is that one reason why France fell was that, under a peace structure, she couldn't mobilize her industry for war production, had to declare war to pep up the nation and did it all leisurely and far too late. They say also that "business as usual" kept England from getting ready soon enough and, finally, they point to the snail-like slowness of our present rearmament program.

With all that about France, England and our slow progress I agree. Perhaps I could agree also with the conclusion about putting our industry on a "war basis", if I knew what the words mean—or if they did. Of that I am in doubt.

Two Meanings Seen

If it means that American industry should now be put under an imitation Nazi yoke to this inept and bureaucratic administration of industrial amateurs, I know of no more certain way to slow or even paralyze war production. If it means that we should get some dynamic and experienced leadership of the industrial war effort and give it appropriate authority, no comment was ever more significant—or more correct.

The kind of leadership and administration would not, however, as some of this comment suggests, be obliged just to set all peacetime production aside in a kind of adjournment to make way for our war needs. There is plenty of industrial capacity in this country for both needs. For eleven years, our great economic machine has been dreamily waltzing along in a sort of "Love in Three-Quarter Time" tempo. That was because demand lagged behind supply.

Must Be Managed

The war effort will give plenty of increased demand and the sudden advance must be managed. Our industry needs an orchestra leader with a real baton who can keep it in harmony and rhythm for the new tune—but it doesn't need to be chained to the benches of any slave galley with a sort of Romanized Simon Legree to increase the stroke with a cat-o'-nine-tails.

One trivial World war experience may be informing. Our speedup of shipbuilding, both of merchant and warcraft, approached the miraculous. Charlie Schwab had charge of it. In a plant where all parts of a fabricated ship were being assembled and the engine department was far ahead of the coordinated schedule for it and other departments, he took time out for a short picnic for the workers in the yards.

A Big Incentive

There were no speeches but, when the time for them, Charlie pulled a surprise — the complete engine, mounted on truck wheels, gay with flags and preceded by a band came rolling out under a large transparency which read "All dressed up and no place to go." That is the first secret of all such major efforts in either war or industry. We use it in both army and navy but we certainly do not use in our present hodge-podge of divided and powerless leadership of our industrial effort on which everything now depends. Tragedy for Country Is Traced Back To New York Gubernatorial Election

By ALBERT FRANKLIN,
Bedford, Pa.

The greatest calamity that ever happened this great United States was the election to the presidency in 1932, of Governor Roosevelt, of New York. The only greater tragedy would be his reelection to a third term in 1940.

If Hoover could have won for a second term and then been succeeded by any safe man, of either great party, we could now look back on eight years of prosperous times, instead of the sorry mess, the "God-awful failure," as Hugh Johnson calls it.

Started on Recovery

We were well started towards recovery in 1932, three years after the 1929 upset. That was a collapse of wild speculation, and readjustment was nearly completed in 1932. All that was needed was a few years of a Calvin Coolidge sane brand of federal administration. Instead, we launched a mad campaign of so-called reform, trying to cure the incurable, put on trial a lot of crazy theories about finance and industry, hatched out of the scrambled thinking of slant-brained college professors, and executed by a radical president.

Platform Not Radical

To be sure he did not run on a radical platform; quite the opposite, as that was largely the work of old line conservative Democrats. While the twenty-odd million, who thought they were voting for a safe executive, the radical knew better. They were strong for Roosevelt from the start. By some grape-vine, underground route, they got wise to the Roosevelt political creed. By 1934 all of us got our eyes open and could see we were in for trouble galore.

Yes, there was a spurt of recovery under the NRA, but after six months that bogged down and later the United States supreme court threw it out of the window, as it did the Wallace first AAA. This cleared the way for real recovery, encouraging business to go ahead, which it did up to 1937. Then came the supreme court packing bomb, to be followed by the reorganization plan of federal departments, and all the "must" laws, originating in the White House, contrary to the explicit constitutional commandment, "that all legislation shall originate in congress."

Downward Ever Since

Here is where we "all fell down and crazy reformers triumphed over us." And the trend has been down ever since. Believe it or not, call money in New York has been down to one percent for the past four consecutive years. When money and credit go at that bottom rate, business is flat, and "don't let anyone tell you differently." Have you heard that expression before? It was made by the same man who said, "We planned it that way." He was referring to the recovery in 1936, not to the slump since 1937.

Disconcerting Figures

A few special lines are showing improvement, but what of general business? Read these figures and make up your mind to vote for Willkie:

Total bank transactions, as reported to the Federal Reserve Board, are running about eight billions a week, almost as low as in 1933. Early in 1937, before the big scare, they had increased to ten billions a week. But that figure was only about one half of the volume of bank business in 1929, when it averaged twenty billions a week.

Yes, this was a trillion dollar country once; that was the total annual volume going through banks. Now it is not much more than one third of that vast amount!

Win with Willkie and switch the business car into high.

What Cheap Money Means

From the Wheeling,
W. Va., Intelligencer

While the New Deal is not modest in its claims of having restored to all of the people good health, peace and prosperity, the keystone of its whole asserted success is its thrilling rescue of the forgotten man and the laborer from serfdom.

Much is said about the higher wages which have been enforced and the reduction of hours, neither of which really amounts to much in view of the fact that ten million men still can't find work at any wage for any hour. But we are discussing now that fortunate man who still has employment and is able, above the present high cost of living, to save a little money.

It is too much to expect this man to understand the fiscal policies of the New Deal. Nobody, including the higher-ups in the administration, really pretends to do that. But it seems to be the idea to enforce low interest rates to enable the government to obtain cheap money and by creating artificially low rates on all forms of legal investments to force financial institutions to invest heavily in government securities through the lack of other state investments which pay as well.

Naturally, the banks cannot invest much money at the current yields of government securities and earn a profit. And it must be recalled that fine commercial loans, always available before the New Deal when the small business man had a business, are now almost a thing of the past.

Now this worker, whose case we are discussing, was taught in his youth to believe a savings account was a good place for his money. He saw the time when some banks paid as high as five per cent and none of them less than four per cent.

But the banks can't invest at one and a half or two per cent and pay four, so step by step the interest paid on savings has been reduced until today many are paying only one per cent interest.

So the worker who in the twenties and earlier was getting $40 or more every year for his $1,000 in savings is now getting $10.

If it makes him any happier, he can charge the other $30 as a contribution to the continuance of Mr. Roosevelt and his starry-eyed young advisors in office all of these years.

Third Term a Vital Issue

From the Johnstown,
Pa., Tribune

The European situation is being heavily underscored by the New Deal in its efforts to divert the attention of the American voters from the third-term issue. Domestic affairs, we have been given to understand, are of small moment compared with the Hitler threat to democracy and possible invasion of the United States.

We have no wish to minimize the seriousness of the situation in Europe, although we do believe the possibility of Hitler sending troops across the Atlantic to seize the United States is somewhat remote. We believe this country should give every possible aid to England, short of sending troops to Europe, to the end that Hitlerism and all that it stands for may be crushed and peace restored to the suffering peoples of that continent. Both candidates for the presidency are pledged on that issue.

Of primary concern to the American people just now, however, is the issue on which the two candidates are poles apart—the third-term issue with its threat of a dictatorship as repugnant to free Americans as that of Hitler to the democracies of Europe. Wendell Willkie has declared his unequivocal opposition to more than two terms for a President; he favors preservation of the American ideal of government. Franklin Delano Roosevelt has cast aside tradition and his stooges poke fun at those who cherish the ideals of the Founding Fathers. They pretend deep concern for the preservation of democracy in Europe while nursing the hope that it may be succeeded by a Roosevelt dictatorship in the United States.

The entire future of America rests upon the decision reached by the voters on November 5.

Political Hokum May Have Some Value, Hill Finds

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

If we were an Addison or a Swift we might try a serious essay to be called "In Defense of Political Hokum." This stray raveling of fancy is due to the fact that Wendell Willkie returns from his western trip without having worn a cowboy hat or having been made a member of an Indian tribe. We joined in the general chorus of approval for Mr. Willkie's decorum and restraint, but for reasons to be set forth we are inclined to believe that, taking the world as it is, a great deal of our political flummery is soundly based and defensible in democratic political tradition.

May Need Bolstering

At a time when the demand of the hour is for straightforward behavior and simple speech, this idea may require a bit of bolstering up. I believe sound sanctions for our inclination to campaign clowning will be found in an examination of our early beginnings.

It will be noticed that we rounded a sharp hairpin turn at the time when the Society of the Cincinnati was trying to get us rigged up in the trappings of royalty, and mighty near succeeding. After this narrow escape, our symbols, our ideals and our political techniques were those of unification, of fraternity and of genial, common, human intercourse rather than the fetiches of class distinction and authority.

In Sharp Contrast

There was a great deal of the essence of real democracy in the political intuition which led our early-day statesmen to try to be like as many people as possible rather than different from them.

We put this down in sharp contrast to the European model of statesmanship which always has been sharply set apart from the multitude rather than identified with it. There are some tricky psychological equations here. Many men have won votes and gained political eminence, even in our United States of America, by setting themselves apart from the mass and arousing admiration for their clothes, their possessions and their power.

Modern Force

It is true that it is a human inclination to "string with the winner." But perhaps an even stronger psychological force is that which is called, in modern times, the principle of sympathetic identification. People like to believe that the man who asks for their suffrage is one of them; that he is human, that he is unpretentious, that he is not set apart by pelf and power.

Calvin Coolidge was perhaps a bit ridiculous in that monstrous cowboy hat or the feathered bonnet of the Sioux. Nothing could have been more distasteful to Mr. Coolidge than such shenanigans, as the rotogravure pictures of his day clearly show ,but he bravely took his medicine. It was his concession to the democratic process which brings men together rather than draws them apart.

I believe that this view implies no concession to demagoguery. If there ever was a man in the world who was not a demagogue it was Calvin Coolidge, but he had a deep realization of our fundamental ideal of unity and a deep regard for our symbols of fraternity and common understanding.

Between Few and Many

At this unhappy and critical turn of world history, the cleavage is between a strong few at the top and a voiceless multitude at the bottom. The few at the top decree the symbols and the behavior of the multitude. Right here is where, if we were writing that serious essay, we would swing in with our thesis on the efficacy of political hokum.

When the voters induce the candidate to go through a slap-stick lodge ritual, to don a ten-gallon hat, to wolf hot dogs or pie before the newsreel camera, to kiss babies, to address them in rough-and-ready speech, to be made a chief of the Kickapoos, they are imposing their symbols and their behaviour on the would-we top man, and that is a salutary proceeding in a democracy.

We would need a lot more space, probably, to make this seem plausible. Boiled down, the idea is that there is no harm in healthy tomfoolery when it tends to keep the political careerist down to the crowd level. And there is great virtue in it when it exalts, but forever holds close, an Abraham Lincoln.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The sooner the Congress and the country realize that a business-like and sensible revision of the tax system must be effected, the better prepared we will be to prevent a collapse of our financial system, which is inevitable unless our fiscal policies are reformed and the operation of the government placed on a sounder basis.

Congress Renders Some Good Service to the Country

ALTHOUGH the Congress is obliged to assent to numerous presidential requests, it is now and then giving evidence of a return to its rightful independence in our scheme of government.

One instance is the defeat by the House of Representatives of legislation approved by the State department, which would have empowered the president to bar from this country any goods confiscated by foreign nations "by force" and without "just compensation." The measure would have permitted the president to exclude oil from expropriated Mexican wells.

Why did the House thus turn on the president in the face of the approval by the State department? Simply because of the cogent objections offered by Republican members, who declared that the bill was objectionable because it delegated more powers to the president. Representative Wadsworth, of New York, declared that the bill would give the president "the right to pass upon the type of government chosen by the citizens of other nations," and would give "the president the right to police foreign governments."

That is to say, the president is reaching out for entirely too much additional authority, and the feeling obtains that this has gone far enough, if, indeed, not too far.

Such obstructions to the presidential thirst for more power is one of the reasons why the Congress has decided to remain in session contrary to his wishes. He doesn't want Congress on his hands now any more than he did last June when he urged it to pack up, go home and leave things to him. The New York Herald Tribune sets forth what Mr. Roosevelt has, in effect, said to Congress and the nation in this respect.

"I know more about the world situation than you ever can learn," the Herald Tribune declares Mr. Roosevelt says in effect, "and I have daily access to sources of information which are closed to you. Therefore you must trust in my good judgment. If you try to restrict me you merely make my task more difficult. In due time I will tell you what it is proper for you to learn about my stewardship and will inform you about what you should do to back me up. In the meantime don't ask questions and don't bother me by giving me your views on world or domestic problems, and don't take up my time with new bills. Go home and help elect a docile Democratic Congress. That's the best way you can serve me. I have called the turn right so many times that you must believe me when I tell you that I know best."

The Congress has rendered the country an excellent service in calling a turn on that egotistical notion of indispensability.

Contention on Volunteering Seems To Be Proving Itself

THIS NEWSPAPER was numbered among those that argued for a reasonable suspension of actual conscription pending a trial period of voluntary enlistments. Along with many others it was of the belief that voluntary enlistments would suffice to meet the facilities that could be provided for caring for the new army at the outset.

That this stand was not devoid of sense has been demonstrated by the fact that enlistments have been so numerous of late that it will be unnecessary to draft many men, if indeed, any at all, for the first contingent to be filled by the first of the year. Washington press dispatches credit well informed officials with the prediction that enlistments will fill most of the need. Reports from New York city state that army headquarters in that area have been overwhelmed with applicants, with hundreds standing in line and being compelled to wait over into succeeding days. At the same time facilities for taking care of those already taken have proved inadequate.

Of course, if our troop requirements can be filled without conscription, or with a minimum of the conscription list, it will be better all around for the national economy. Besides giving less interference with the economic system, it is better to take men who really want to go into the service than those who go only because they must.

That Life Insurance Menace Still Obtains

IF you are one of the 64,000,000 life insurance policy holders of the country and have been troubled by the New Deal attitude toward the life insurance companies, you should not let your qualms subside in a belief that the danger you have feared is past.

The administration is going ahead with its probe of the life insurance companies just the same, although it is stated that matters will be deferred until after the election. Of course, if the election goes the administration's way, they will be taken up.

Officials of four large life insurance companies were brought into conference this week with Sumner T. Pike, member of the Securities and Exchange Commission and its representative on the Temporary National Economic Committee. It was learned, following the meeting, that the conferees discussed the commission's reports on life insurance. Recently the SEC published its WPA study on the insurance coverage of a certain sector of the population residing in the Boston area.

A Washington dispatch on the financial page of a New York paper says this report was "highly critical" of the selling methods employed by some of the companies, especially those underwriting industrial insurance.

A summary of a report which the commission has prepared on the overall study of life insurance has also been critical of certain practices of the companies. This document has not been released to date, but its contents indicate that some form of federal regulation may be sought in the future.

So it can be seen that the New Deal forces are still looking with hungry eyes upon the vast resources of the life insurance companies, control of which they would very much like to have, and which control they will undoubtedly set about to obtain if the November election goes their way.

Policyholders should guard against this menace in the most effective manner in which they can do so, which is by registering their disapproval at the polls November 5.

A House Cleaning That Is Direly Needed

ONE of the best things that could happen to this country would be a wholesale cleaning out of the "cynics and unbelievers, the nuts and the bunk artists" in Washington, which Wendell Willkie promises the people he will do in the event of his election to the presidency.

The group of radical theorists with which President Roosevelt long since surrounded himself has wrought irreparable harm to the nation, its ideals and its representative plan of government by reason of the influence they have brought to bear upon an executive who is so susceptible to flattery and smart wisecracking, and who possesses an irresistible flair for novelty in all directions.

This little group of cynics, called the New Dealers, has as Willkie says, encouraged American youth to dismiss "the moral and spiritual standards of our American tradition." They have encouraged it in elders, too, but what is most unfortunate, they have wielded a like influence upon the president, whom they have persuaded, slyly, subtly, step by step, to depart from the solemn pledges made by his party and set down in its platform, on which program he won such overwhelming support at the outset of his administration.

Had this group never been placed in posts of authority and influence in Washington, conditions would be vastly different in this country today. These fellows have wrought incalculable damage to the nation and its institutions, its laws, its economics and its democratic tenets. The progress of the country has been retarded, indeed, all but halted, through the fantastical concoctions of their "new" school of political thought, which runs counter to that which made it great and prosperous over a century and a half.

These machinators should be swept out of their high places with a new broom. Wendell Willkie promises to wield the broom. He should be given a chance to use it. And he should be given also the support he requires to make the sweeping thorough and effective in the election of a Congress that will not tie his hands.

"Thirty" Is Written For an Old Friend

THE LATE "HANK" HAYWARD, as he was affectionately known in the community, whose passing at Wellsley Farms, Mass., has been chronicled, was a lovable man, and the many who knew him in Cumberland and its surrounding territory are naturally made sorrowful that he is no more on earth.

Henry Sidney Hayward was a gentleman of the old school, always friendly, ever good-hearted and constantly loyal to his work and friends. He labored long and faithfully on the editorial staff of the old Daily News, and many Cumberlanders, as well as those who were formerly associated with him in work, can recall with pleasure many interesting events and incidences of his career here.

Failing health during the last few years forced "Hank" to forego the tempo of his former days, and that grieved him much, but he retained his even philosophy of life to the end. Cumberland knew him well; it feels the loss of a good friend in his passing.

If you haven't received cheerful letters from California friends recently, this may be the reason—the 1940 census shows Florida to be the fastest growing state.

Blackbird with a Scarlet Wing

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Long ago, in the spring of a year, between green fields where wild flowers grew, I walked barefooted down a dusty road.

Marshall Maslin

And suddenly out of one field and over my head and down into another field a blackbird flew.

A shiny blackbird with a slash of scarlet on his coal black wings.

Just like that. Into my sight and out again and hardly noticed. And for all I knew, soon forgotten. . . . It had no obvious significance for me then. He was just a blackbird and I'd seen thousands of them in my few years. Seen them in great mobs flying in the twilight. Seen them in long lines on the telephone wires. Seen them following the farmer's plough in many a field. Seen them stealing the grain from the chickens in my own back yard. . . . So why should I remember this impudent fellow merely because he had a touch of scarlet on his wing?

And yet I remember HIM and forget all the rest. This one bird, a little different from those I usually saw, but still a blackbird, has come into my memory again and again at the oddest moments. . . . Once in a classroom in college. Once in a dugout in France. Once when I was walking through a crowded store. Once when I saw a baby acting "silly" to make his parents laugh. . . . Many a time that blackbird with the scarlet wing has flown across my life.

He's been dead these many years. All his aucacity and impudence are gone, have been gone, and his little body is part of the fields from whence he flew. . . . And yet, for me he is still alive.

I think he returns to me whenever I see a man or woman or even a child that wears a dash of scarlet on his spirit. . . . When I see an old woman who has known many sorrows lift her head in challenge to the darkness. When I see a man surrounded by enemies flash challenge from his story eyes. When I see youth or maiden or even a crawling baby make a gallant gesture. Whenever I catch a glimpse of that invisible plume that waves above the dauntless brow, I'm likely to think of that small bird with the scarlet on his wing — and wear for an instant that same brave badge upon my sleeve!

Free Leadership Is Defense Need, Gen. Johnson Says

Hugh Johnson

NEW YOR KCITY, Oct. 2—Some of my columnar war crying colleagues say that American industry ought to be put on a war basis right now. Their argument is that one reason why France fell was that, under a peace structure, she couldn't mobilize her industry for war production, had to declare war to pep up the nation and did it all leisurely and far too late. They say also that "business as usual" kept England from getting ready soon enough and, finally, they point to the snail-like slowness of our present rearmament program.

With all that about France, England and our slow progress I agree. Perhaps I could agree also with the conclusion about putting our industry on a "war basis", if I knew what the words mean—or if they did. Of that I am in doubt.

Two Meanings Seen

If it means that American industry should now be put under an imitation Nazi yoke to this inept and bureaucratic administration of industrial amateurs, I know of no more certain way to slow or even paralyze war production. If it means that we should get some dynamic and experienced leadership of the industrial war effort and give it appropriate authority, no comment was ever more significant—or more correct.

The kind of leadership and administration would not, however, as some of this comment suggests, be obliged just to set all peacetime production aside in a kind of adjournment to make way for our war needs. There is plenty of industrial capacity in this country for both needs. For eleven years, our great economic machine has been dreamily waltzing along in a sort of "Love in Three-Quarter Time" tempo. That was because demand lagged behind supply.

Must Be Managed

The war effort will give plenty of increased demand and the sudden advance must be managed. Our industry needs an orchestra leader with a real baton who can keep it in harmony and rhythm for the new tune—but it doesn't need to be chained to the benches of any slave galley with a sort of Romanized Simon Legree to increase the stroke with a cat-o'-nine-tails.

One trivial World war experience may be informing. Our speedup of shipbuilding, both of merchant and warcraft, approached the miraculous. Charlie Schwab had charge of it. In a plant where all parts of a fabricated ship were being assembled and the engine department was far ahead of the coordinated schedule for it and other departments, he took time out for a short picnic for the workers in the yards.

A Big Incentive

There were no speeches but, when the time for them, Charlie pulled a surprise — the complete engine, mounted on truck wheels, gay with flags and preceded by a band came rolling out under a large transparency which read "All dressed up and no place to go." That plant speeded up production immediately.

Of course, we can't do this job with ballyhoo, but ballyhoo is part of it. We need every incentive and pressure of "go-get-it", unified, experienced and inspired leadership to get speed without confusion and waste. We have none of this kind of industrial leadership, only political leadership which insists on retaining personalized control of everything.

Tragedy for Country Is Traced Back To New York Gubernatorial Election

While the New Deal is not modest in its claims of having restored to all of the people good health, peace and prosperity, the keystone of its whole asserted success is its thrilling rescue of the forgotten man and the laborer from serfdom.

Much is said about the higher wages which have been enforced and the reduction of hours, neither of which really amounts to much in view of the fact that ten million men still can't find work at any wage for any hour. But we are discussing now that fortunate man who still has employment and is able, above the present high cost of living, to save a little money.

It is too much to expect this man to understand the fiscal policies of the New Deal. Nobody, including the higher-ups in the administration, really pretends to do that. But it seems to be the idea to enforce low interest rates to enable the government to obtain cheap money and by creating artificially low rates on all forms of legal investments to force financial institutions to invest heavily in government securities through the lack of other state investments which pay as well.

Naturally, the banks cannot invest much money at the current yields of government securities and earn a profit. And it must be recalled that fine commercial loans, always available before the New Deal when the small business man had a business, are now almost a thing of the past.

Now this worker, whose case we are discussing, was taught in his youth to believe a savings account was a good place for his money. He saw the time when some banks paid as high as five per cent and none of them less than four per cent.

But the banks can't invest at one and a half or two per cent and pay four, so step by step the interest paid on savings has been reduced until today many are paying only one per cent interest.

So the worker who in the twenties and earlier was getting $40 or more every year for his $1,000 in savings is now getting $10.

If it makes him any happier, he can charge the other $30 as a contribution to the continuance of Mr. Roosevelt and his starry-eyed young advisors in office all of these years.

Third Term a Vital Issue

From the Johnstown,
Pa., Tribune

The European situation is being heavily underscored by the New Deal in its efforts to divert the attention of the American voters from the third-term issue. Domestic affairs, we have been given to understand, are of small moment compared with the Hitler threat to democracy and possible invasion of the United States.

We have no wish to minimize the seriousness of the situation in Europe, although we do believe the possibility of Hitler sending troops across the Atlantic to seize the United States is somewhat remote. We believe this country should give every possible aid to England, short of sending troops to Europe, to the end that Hitlerism and all that it stands for may be crushed and peace restored to the suffering peoples of that continent. Both candidates for the presidency are pledged on that issue.

Of primary concern to the American people just now, however, is the issue on which the two candidates are poles apart—the third-term issue with its threat of a dictatorship as repugnant to free Americans as that of Hitler to the democracies of Europe. Wendell Willkie has declared his unequivocal opposition to more than two terms for a President; he favors preservation of the American ideal of government. Franklin Delano Roosevelt has cast aside tradition and his stooges poke fun at those who cherish the ideals of the Founding Fathers. They pretend deep concern for the preservation of democracy in Europe while nursing the hope that it may be succeeded by a Roosevelt dictatorship in the United States.

The entire future of America rests upon the decision reached by the voters on November 5.

Political Hokum May Have Some Value, Hill Finds

By EDWIN C. HILL

If we were an Addison or a Swift we might try a serious essay to be called "In Defense of Political Hokum." This stray raveling of fancy is due to the fact that Wendell Willkie returns from his western trip without having worn a cowboy hat or having been made a member of an Indian tribe. We joined in the general chorus of approval for Mr. Willkie's decorum and restraint, but for reasons to be set forth we are inclined to believe that, taking the world as it is, a great deal of our political flummery is soundly based and defensible in democratic political tradition.

May Need Bolstering

At a time when the demand of the hour is for straightforward behavior and simple speech, this idea may require a bit of bolstering up. I believe sound sanctions for our inclination to campaign clowning will be found in an examination of our early beginnings.

It will be noticed that we rounded a sharp hairpin turn at the time when the Society of the Cincinnati was trying to get us rigged up in the trappings of royalty, and mighty near succeeding. After this narrow escape, our symbols, our ideals and our political techniques were those of unification, of fraternity and of genial, common, human intercourse rather than the fetiches of class distinction and authority.

In Sharp Contrast

There was a great deal of the essence of real democracy in the political intuition which led our early-day statesmen to try to be like as many people as possible rather than different from them.

We put this down in sharp contrast to the European model of statesmanship which always has been sharply set apart from the multitude rather than identified with it. There are some tricky psychological equations here. Many men have won votes and gained political eminence, even in our United States of America, by setting themselves apart from the mass and arousing admiration for their clothes, their possessions and their power.

Modern Force

It is true that it is a human inclination to "string with the winner." But perhaps an even stronger psychological force is that which is called, in modern times, the principle of sympathetic identification. People like to believe that the man who asks for their suffrage is one of them; that he is human, that he is unpretentious, that he is not set apart by pelf and power.

Calvin Coolidge was perhaps a bit ridiculous in that monstrous cowboy hat or the feathered bonnet of the Sioux. Nothing could have been more distasteful to Mr. Coolidge than such shenanigans, as the rotogravure pictures of his day clearly show, but he bravely took his medicine. It was his concession to the democratic process which brings men together rather than draws them apart.

I believe that this view implies no concession to demagoguery. If there ever was a man in the world who was not a demagogue it was Calvin Coolidge, but he had a deep realization of our fundamental ideal of unity and a deep regard for our symbols of fraternity and common understanding.

Between Few and Many

At this unhappy and critical turn of world history, the cleavage is between a strong few at the top and a voiceless multitude at the bottom. The few at the top decree the symbols and the behavior of the multitude. Right here is where, if we were writing that serious essay, we would swing in with our thesis on the efficacy of political hokum.

When the voters induce the candidate to go through a slap-stick lodge ritual, to don a ten-gallon hat, to wolf hot dogs or pie before the newsreel camera, to kiss babies, to address them in rough-and-ready speech, to be made a chief of the Kickapoos, they are imposing their symbols and their behaviour on the would-we top man, and that is a salutary proceeding in a democracy.

We would need a lot more space, probably, to make this seem plausible. Boiled down, the idea is that there is no harm in healthy tomfoolery when it tends to keep the political careerist down to the crowd level. And there is great virtue in it when it exalts, but forever holds close, an Abraham Lincoln.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Quotable Quotes

By United States Senator
Harry F. Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia

The sooner the Congress and the country realize that a business-like and sensible revision of the tax system must be effected, the better prepared we will be to prevent a collapse of our financial system, which is inevitable unless our fiscal policies are reformed and the operation of the government placed on a sounder basis.

THE RIVAL

A Rough and Ready Woodsman of the Old School Gets Tangled Up with a Few Members of the Smart Set

By MARY DRAKE

"Dad says that he really doesn't think you are," Laurette observed, "but in some ways, Peter, you're an awful chump!"

The boy relaxed his long, 19-year-old body more comfortably on the grassy hill upon which he and the girl had been lying in the sunshine and shrugged as he thought it over. His brows drew together at last.

"My name," he returned with a natural gravity, "is not Peter, but Pierre. The good Father Beaubien himself christened me so at the mission. And this . . . chump—I cannot understand what it is."

It's what you're being now, Pierre," the girl retorted a bit impatiently. "You can't seem to healize that you're on Long Island, U. S. A., now — not in a little backwoods camp somewhere up in Canada. You'll have to get wise to yourself before any of the gang get hold of you!"

"I am wise already, Miss Laurette. All my life since father took me to the Laurentides I have studied well."

"We'll skip it until some later date!" the girl desisted impatiently. She got up to stroll down to the courts where the club tournament was in progress. How could she turn on large amounts of perfected charm and get it across to a big, Greek-god dummy like Pierre?

The boy's supple body slid upward in a single, nicely co-ordinated movement as the girl moved off without further comment. She could see her distant cousin's mind struggling visibly with the complexities of plain, ordinary slang as he shuffled alongside her with his smooth woodsman's gait. He'd bear watching.

"This is one of my boy friends, Pierre, and here comes another. Try and act natural, will you?" she beseeched as two bronzed young men sauntered up from the courts swinging their racquets and talking. The girl met them casually.

"My cousin Peter, Frank," she introduced them, "and this is Eddie, Peter. Samson here with the short locks is going to stay on with us for a while. His dad kicked the bucket up in the northern wilds and dad wanted him around our ranch until he gets straightened out."

"That's great stuff, Laurette!" Frank took Pierre over the first hurdle enthusiastically. "We've staked him out for our doubles, witness. With that arm, those shoulders, I'll sink my Saturday socks he can wham the old apple across the net like the Century going through the Hudson Tube!"

"I don't quite understand, please," the big stranger pleaded with a smile. Laurette forestalled more.

"This chiseling ape thinks he ca hogtie you for his crumby team she interpreted and quickly recov ed herself with, "He wants you play tennis with him, Pierre. B I already have a spot picked you . . . I mean a team."

Pierre's broad grin broke ing uously. "But I cannot play tenni he protested with a pleading shr "Lacrosse, yes. Put a skiff over t white water, the rapids, yes. Bu do not know a thing of tennis!"

"We'll teach you!" Eddie sai The girl looked dangerously at he two friends and stopped their raillery.

"Pierre has been earmarked already, you lugs." She appeared mysterious. "I don't want any of you bums or any of your conniving friends to get any ideas about my private property, understand? How about dropping over to the clubhouse for a tall lemonade?"

"You call the shots. What have we poor Greeks to do but hear and obey?" Eddie pantomimed Ulysses bound to an imaginary mast with a hopeless look in his eyes. Pierre frowned and listened in bewilderment to the fast interchange of patter between the young people. He had spoken English since birth, but this was an alien tongue to his simple ears.

The foursome ambled over to the clubhouse through the hot sun and seated themselves in fashionable boneless attitudes in the sunchairs. Pierre sat warily upright and listened. He realized that his cousin wished him to appear as these other young men, but the task appeared to be a great one!

"Say, Laurette, you certainly know how to annex the best bets, don't you?" Frank was complaining. "Why don't you give us a break and release this young bonebreaker you're holding out on us?"

"What I said still goes, my dear children," she refused with a superior smile. "My parents' children were each and every one born with the parental guile. In other words, no soap!"

Frank got up peevishly, followed by Eddie. Their chances of annexing a potential challenger for their team had definitely glimmered out.

"Once we thought you favored us with some of the milk of human kindness, pal," Eddie said glumly. "Now, and very confidentially, Laurette, we think you're a louse!" Pierre slid to his feet quickly. This talk was something not over his uncomplicated understanding.

"These men then, Laurette," he queried anxiously, "are not at all your so-fine friends? Like what you said?" Laurette laughed unsuspectingly.

"Not any more! They can go fly a ite, for all of me!" Pierre reacted n a flash to the simplicities of his pbringing. Grasping Eddie's sweat- in one hand and Frank's in the her in his powerful grip, he lifte em and brought their astonished dies together and dropped them "You will go and fly the kite, as ss Laurette commands," he shout- "You have insulted my woman h words!"

"You mean you've liked me all e time?" the girl demanded incedulously.

Pierre smiled his widest smile at er naivete. He was learning fast.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

GUN'S GUARD awaited him outside. But as they turned to move away Gun caught, through the closed window, the murmur of voices. In the room he had just left, Otto was speaking.

"Just a minute," said Gun to the guard.

He bent as though to do up his shoe lace, and in doing so leaned quite naturally against the wooden wall of the bungalow. Otto was saying:

"This appliance of Hazeldeane's will be valuable in many ways. It can be sold—or maybe it will be useful in possible future operations. But for this we cannot wait—this coup of ours must come off on the 25th at the latest."

The guard made an impatient movement.

"All right," said Gun, straightening himself. "Off we go!"

He had heard enough. The crime was to be perpetrated on the 25th, and it was now the 10th. So he had fifteen days in which to make his escape, if he was to prevent one of the vilest crimes which had ever been planned for gain.

When Tommy Hazeldeane heard the news he chuckled delightedly.

"Why, that's better. A good meal and a drink and a pretty girl—what in hell does a man want more than that? But, I say, we'll have to have a wash and brush up first, you know!"

"Oh, I don't doubt they'll provide for that," Gun answered dryly. Tommy's "live for the moment only" attitude annoyed him, in the circumstances, so that he had half a mind to tell him the truth. But he was still fearful of Tommy's impetuousness.

Trent conveyed the news officially (Gun, of course, not being supposed to know anything about it) the following morning, and shortly afterward they were allowed back in the bungalow, where they found Sambo installed once more in the kitchen, and the hot water functioning again. They both immediately reveled in hot baths and shaves and, in the end, looked something more like themselves again—though both needed a haircut, and their suits showed considerable signs of wear and tear.

The dinner party, as such, was a success. Coral was the life and soul of the party, and Tommy backed her up well. Trent and Gun both did their best, and even Otto seemed to relax a little.

But over the coffee and liqueurs Otto suddenly came to business.

"Let us not beat about the bush, gentlemen. You have some knowledge which we require—WHY, doesn't matter at all to you. For this we are prepared to pay. We will pay for it twenty-five thousand pounds, which you can divide between you as you think fit. And we will send you to America, or anywhere you like at our own expense. If you refuse—then I am afraid we shall have to make things even more uncomfortable for you than they have been hitherto. I am not, it seems, so gentle and refined as my friend Trent here—and I have methods of—shall we say physical persuasion?—which I think will be effective. If not, we shall have to shoot you. Which will be a pity. Now, I want you to think this over carefully."

Coral broke in:

"Why, it doesn't want any thinking over, does it, big boy?" She was addressing Tommy. "Gee, you could do a lot with your share of twenty-five thousand smackers! And if you wanted any help in spending 'em, I guess I could show you a thing or two—in New York. O boy! O boy!"

It was all rather crude and blatant, and Otto frowned. But before he could say anything there came a tap at the door, which Trent answered. He spoke to someone outside, and then turned to Otto.

"Afraid you and I will have to run over the road for a few minutes, Chief. There's something needs our attention. But we needn't be long."

He looked inquiringly at Coral, who immediately responded:

"Oh, that's all right with me! I'll stay here and wait for you! I guess these two boys will look after me."

"Oh, rather!" cried Tommy, gallantly.

"Very good, then. Let's go," said Otto, and the two men went out.

Gun felt a little excited. He had already decided that he would sound this girl as to what she knew of the gang's plans. If, as he suspected, she was not aware of the full extent of their ruthless villainy, she might yet, in her revulsion of feeling, prove an invaluable ally. She might be a tough case, he thought, but it was difficult to regard her as a human monster—which she certainly would be if she were a party to this plot, the full extent of which, he believed, only he knew.

For a few moments after the departure of Trent and Otto silence reigned. Then Coral spoke in a low voice:

"Now," she said—and she was looking at Gun, and not Tommy. "I want to talk to you two."

"It's not safe to talk here," put in Gun, quickly. "I have notions of concealed microphones. Let's walk in the garden. You have a wrap, haven't you?"

She pointed to where it lay over a chair, and he got it for her. Then they went out into the faintly moonlit garden, and walked on to the lawn where they were safe from eavesdroppers.

Gun was just thinking how to frame his opening, when Coral took the wind completely out of his sails.

"I suppose"—again she was addressing Gun—"you think I'm a pretty tough proposition."

Gun was conscious that her voice had changed, and that she was speaking once more in the soft, low tones he had heard once before.

"Well, that's rather a leading question, isn't it?"

She laughed softly.

"Oh, I don't mind what you say, because, you see, really I'm not so tough—at least, not in the way you think. Now, let me tell you something—they call you Mr. Gunston here, don't they? And they think you are Commander Hazeldeane's assistant? But, really, you are in quite a different business, and your real name is Cotton, isn't it?"

Gun was suddenly very much on his guard. So, in some way, they suspected his real identity, and this girl was to trick him into admitting it?

"You'll forgive me," he said. "But I don't quite understand. Who is Mr. Cotton?"

"Why, you are, of course! Now, don't be silly about it—you see, I'm a friend, actually."

"I'm glad to hear that," retorted Gun. "But I feel that you must be very clever at disguises, and dissembling, and all that sort of thing. As for this Mr. Cotton—well, I'm sorry to disappoint you, but I'm afraid I've never heard of him."

The girl chuckled again, rather surprisingly.

"You do it very well, you know," she said. "But really, it's a wasted effort. You'll tell me next that you have never heard of—X."

Gun was becoming more and more astonished. Assuredly these people—this girl—knew quite a lot. But he answered, in a semi-bantering tone:

"Well, I can't say that, you know. It's the twenty-fourth letter of the alphabet—and a useful alias for gentlemen who get mixed up in sticky blackmail cases."

"And it is also," said the girl, quietly, "a useful alias for the man who is your chief—and mine."

"Very interesting, I'm sure," Gun countered. "But I still don't know what you're talking about, I'm afraid."

The girl was grave now, for she realized what was in Gun's mind.

"I assure you, Mr. Cotton," she said, seriously, "that you're being overcautious. I am myself one of X's people, officially known, by the way, as No. 23. And part of my business here is to find you, and to give you any possible assistance you may need. But if you won't believe me, it puts us both in rather a mess, doesn't it?"

"It isn't a question of not believing, I promise you, Miss Coral," said Gun, with the utmost politeness. "It is merely that I am afraid that I haven't the least notion of what you're talking about, that's all. And now, if you'll excuse me, I think I hear our—ahem—guests returning, so I think I'd better join them."

Gun turned abruptly on his heel, and walked back to the bungalow with his mind in something of a whirl. If the girl was an impostor—and how could she be anything else, in view of what he and Prescott had seen—how the devil did she get to know as much as she had? Was it possible that he had run up against her at some other time, when engaged on some other business, and that she had recognized him, or thought she had?

So far as he could see there was only one comforting thing about it. He had not given himself away at all, and if it was only suspicion?

He went into the empty room and flung himself into a chair. He poured himself out a whiskey and soda, and lit a cigaret. And it was just as he sent the first puff of blue smoke curling ceilingward that a rather startling thought came to him:

If this girl knew him, or suspected that she knew him, why had she approached him, instead of going to Otto or Trent, who would have had no hesitation in cutting on the merest suspicion that he was a secret agent?

If, on the other hand, her story was true, he was deliberately throwing away his great chance of getting the better of the gang.

And, in any case, even if she was one of the gang, the fact that she had approached him direct argued that she was, to some degree, his friend.

Feverishly he sought in his mind for some theory that would account for the situation if what she had said was true. And almost instantly he hit on one.

X's confounded habit of never letting his right hand know what his left was doing. It wouldn't be the first time he had found people who were complete strangers to him working on the same job as himself.

He remembered then how X had shown that he knew quite a lot about Pullinger when he first went to him with the story. Of course, that could have come from this girl. The fact that she was with Otto, and that she had been to Watson's house, could mean nothing more than that she was working on X's behalf.

Gun realized fully what a thin chance he had of getting free in time to stop the crime that was contemplated by the gang without outside assistance. He suddenly made up his mind that he would take a chance on it. After all, he might just as well. It seemed about the only chance, and even if the girl betrayed him, he might as well be dead as useless.

Confound it, he'd do it—right away.

He got to his feet and was just moving to the door to go and find the others when the door itself was thrust open and Otto and Trent stood on the threshold.

"Hullo!" said Trent. "Where are the others?"

"In the garden—according to program," Gun answered.

"Good!" said Trent. "Let's hope she's having some luck with your rather difficult friend."

Otto nodded, and grunted a sort of "Amen."

As they came into the room Gun was thinking how he could possibly get one word with Coral to let her know that he was prepared to trust her. He got an idea.

"Shall I go out and fetch them in?" he asked.

Otto shot a quick glance at him, that might have been one of suspicion. Otto was the sort of man who was suspicious of almost everything.

"No," he said shortly. "In a minute I will call out to them myself. Better give them time."

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T ASK PERFECTION

IN EVERYTHING we attempt, perfection is the goal we would like to attain, but something we never reach. It is absurd to expect your side always to reach the best possible contract on every hand it gets. Plenty of them are not susceptible of bidding that reaches the ideal spot. Some wind up with what amounts practically to good old-fashioned guesses, which turn out wrongly about as often as they do rightly.

That deal was bid a lot of different ways at the various tables of a duplicate game, but nobody reached the ideal contract of 7-No Trumps, which is a laydown with thirteen solid tricks to be run. Some people forced on the second round with 3-Diamonds instead of 2-No Trumps, but that bid had its drawbacks. Over that North had no idea whether or not South had any fit at all for his suit, whereas after the 2-No Trumps he could be sure of a good enough fit.

With the bidding as shown, North was now able to invite slam safely in his own suit by jumping to game instead of merely calling 3-Spades to be followed by an additional rebid of them. After that jump South used the Blackwood convention, which informed him his partner had one king. That king, however, might be in another suit than spades. Furthermore, there was no way North could let South know about the diamond holding. He would have bid exactly the same with that holding in clubs instead.

In view of North's bidding, South could not even safely venture the small slam in No Trumps. As near as he could tell, an ace might get knocked out by the lead, and there might be a second round trick to be lost somewhere. The spade contract was the sounder, even though some players got better scores with 6-No Trumps, bid wildly.

Women's Fickle Minds Have Retailers Worried

NEW YORK (AP) — Nobody knows why women return so many of the things they buy, but the National Retail Dry Goods Association is trying to find out.

The association has found that returns in 1939 were the highest in five years. Especially high were returns of blouses and skirts, causing a loss of twenty per cent on sales.

"Is something wrong with the way blouses and skirts are sized?" researchers ask, "or should the stores persuade more customers to try on blouses and skirts before purchasing?"

Returns are less of a problem in small stores than in large ones. "Does this mean large stores make more selling mistakes or do they accept returned goods more cheerfully than small stores?"

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T ASK PERFECTION

IN EVERYTHING we attempt, perfection is the goal we would like to attain, but something we never reach. It is absurd to expect your side always to reach the best possible contract on every hand it gets. Plenty of them are not susceptible of bidding that reaches the ideal spot. Some wind up with what amounts practically to good old-fashioned guesses, which turn out wrongly about as often as they do rightly.

That deal was bid a lot of different ways at the various tables of a duplicate game, but nobody reached the ideal contract of 7-No Trumps, which is a laydown with thirteen solid tricks to be run. Some people forced on the second round with 3-Diamonds instead of 2-No Trumps, but that bid had its drawbacks. Over that North had no idea whether or not South had any fit at all for his suit, whereas after the 2-No Trumps he could be sure of a good enough fit.

With the bidding as shown, North was now able to invite slam safely in his own suit by jumping to game instead of merely calling 3-Spades to be followed by an additional rebid of them. After that jump South used the Blackwood convention, which informed him his partner had one king. That king, however, might be in another suit than spades. Furthermore, there was no way North could let South know about the diamond holding. He would have bid exactly the same with that holding in clubs instead.

In view of North's bidding, South could not even safely venture the small slam in No Trumps. As near as he could tell, an ace might get knocked out by the lead, and there might be a second round trick to be lost somewhere. The spade contract was the sounder, even though some players got better scores with 6-No Trumps, bid wildly.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

GUN'S GUARD awaited him outside. But as they turned to move away Gun caught, through the closed window, the murmur of voices. In the room he had just left, Otto was speaking.

"Just a minute," said Gun to the guard.

He bent as though to do up his shoe lace, and in doing so leaned quite naturally against the wooden wall of the bungalow. Otto was saying:

"This appliance of Hazeldeane's will be valuable in many ways. It can be sold—or maybe it will be useful in possible future operations. But for this we cannot wait—this coup of ours must come off on the 25th at the latest."

The guard made an impatient movement.

"All right," said Gun, straightening himself. "Off we go!"

He had heard enough. The crime was to be perpetrated on the 25th, and it was now the 10th. So he had fifteen days in which to make his escape, if he was to prevent one of the vilest crimes which had ever been planned for gain.

When Tommy Hazeldeane heard the news he chuckled delightedly.

"Why, that's better. A good meal and a drink and a pretty girl—what in hell does a man want more than that? But, I say, we'll have to have a wash and brush up first, you know!"

"Oh, I don't doubt they'll provide for that," Gun answered dryly. Tommy's "live for the moment only" attitude annoyed him, in the circumstances, so that he had half a mind to tell him the truth. But he was still fearful of Tommy's impetuousness.

Trent conveyed the news officially (Gun, of course, not being supposed to know anything about it) the following morning, and shortly afterward they were allowed back in the bungalow, where they found Sambo installed once more in the kitchen, and the hot water functioning again. They both immediately reveled in hot baths and shaves and, in the end, looked something more like themselves again—though both needed a haircut, and their suits showed considerable signs of wear and tear.

The dinner party, as such, was a success. Coral was the life and soul of the party, and Tommy backed her up well. Trent and Gun both did their best, and even Otto seemed to relax a little.

But over the coffee and liqueurs Otto suddenly came to business.

"Let us not beat about the bush, gentlemen. You have some knowledge which we require—WHY, doesn't matter at all to you. For this we are prepared to pay. We will pay for it twenty-five thousand pounds, which you can divide between you as you think fit. And we will send you to America, or anywhere you like at our own expense. If you refuse—then I am afraid we shall have to make things even more uncomfortable for you than they have been hitherto. I am not, it seems, so gentle and refined as my friend Trent here—and I have methods of—shall we say physical persuasion?—which I think will be effective. If not, we shall have to shoot you. Which will be a pity. Now, I want you to think this over carefully."

Coral broke in:

"Why, it doesn't want any thinking over, does it, big boy?" She was addressing Tommy. "Gee, you could do a lot with your share of twenty-five thousand smackers! And if you wanted any help in spending 'em, I guess I could show you a thing or two—in New York. O boy! O boy!"

It was all rather crude and blatant, and Otto frowned. But before he could say anything there came a tap at the door, which Trent answered. He spoke to someone outside, and then turned to Otto.

"Afraid you and I will have to run over the road for a few minutes, Chief. There's something needs our attention. But we needn't be long."

He looked inquiringly at Coral, who immediately responded:

"Oh, that's all right with me! I'll stay here and wait for you! I guess these two boys will look after me."

"Oh, rather!" cried Tommy, gallantly.

"Very good, then. Let's go," said Otto, and the two men went out.

Gun felt a little excited. He had already decided that he would sound this girl as to what she knew of the gang's plans. If, as he suspected, she was not aware of the full extent of their ruthless villainy, she might yet, in her revulsion of feeling, prove an invaluable ally. She might be a tough case, he thought, but it was difficult to regard her as a human monster—which she certainly would be if she were a party to this plot, the full extent of which, he believed, only he knew.

For a few moments after the departure of Trent and Otto silence reigned. Then Coral spoke in a low voice:

"Now," she said—and she was looking at Gun, and not Tommy. "I want to talk to you two."

"It's not safe to talk here," put in Gun, quickly. "I have notions of concealed microphones. Let's walk in the garden. You have a wrap, haven't you?"

She pointed to where it lay over a chair, and he got it for her. Then they went out into the faintly moonlit garden, and walked on to the lawn where they were safe from eavesdroppers.

Gun was just thinking how to frame his opening, when Coral took the wind completely out of his sails.

"I suppose"—again she was addressing Gun—"you think I'm a pretty tough proposition."

Gun was conscious that her voice had changed, and that she was speaking once more in the soft, low tones he had heard once before.

"Well, that's rather a leading question, isn't it?"

She laughed softly.

"Oh, I don't mind what you say, because, you see, really I'm not so tough—at least, not in the way you think. Now, let me tell you something—they call you Mr. Gunston here, don't they? And they think you are Commander Hazeldeane's assistant? But, really, you are in quite a different business, and your real name is Cotton, isn't it?"

Gun was suddenly very much on his guard. So, in some way, they suspected his real identity, and this girl was to trick him into admitting it?

"You'll forgive me," he said. "But I don't quite understand. Who is Mr. Cotton?"

"Why, you are, of course! Now, don't be silly about it—you see, I'm a friend, actually."

"I'm glad to hear that," retorted Gun. "But I feel that you must be very clever at disguises, and dissembling, and all that sort of thing. As for this Mr. Cotton—well, I'm sorry to disappoint you, but I'm afraid I've never heard of him."

The girl chuckled again, rather surprisingly.

"You do it very well, you know," she said. "But really, it's a wasted effort. You'll tell me next that you have never heard of—X."

Gun was becoming more and more astonished. Assuredly these people—this girl—knew quite a lot. But he answered, in a semi-bantering tone:

"Well, I can't say that, you know. It's the twenty-fourth letter of the alphabet—and a useful alias for gentlemen who get mixed up in sticky blackmail cases."

"And it is also," said the girl, quietly, "a useful alias for the man who is your chief—and mine."

"Very interesting, I'm sure," Gun countered. "But I still don't know what you're talking about, I'm afraid."

The girl was grave now, for she realized what was in Gun's mind.

"I assure you, Mr. Cotton," she said, seriously, "that you're being overcautious. I am myself one of X's people, officially known, by the way, as No. 23. And part of my business here is to find you, and to give you any possible assistance you may need. But if you won't believe me, it puts us both in rather a mess, doesn't it?"

"It isn't a question of not believing, I promise you, Miss Coral," said Gun, with the utmost politeness. "It is merely that I am afraid that I haven't the least notion of what you're talking about, that's all. And now, if you'll excuse me, I think I hear our—ahem—guests returning, so I think I'd better join them."

Gun turned abruptly on his heel, and walked back to the bungalow with his mind in something of a whirl. If the girl was an impostor—and how could she be anything else, in view of what he and Prescott had seen—how the devil did she get to know as much as she had? Was it possible that he had run up against her at some other time, when engaged on some other business, and that she had recognized him, or thought she had?

So far as he could see there was only one comforting thing about it. He had not given himself away at all, and if it was only suspicion?

He went into the empty room and flung himself into a chair. He poured himself out a whiskey and soda, and lit a cigaret. And it was just as he sent the first puff of blue smoke curling ceilingward that a rather startling thought came to him:

If this girl knew him, or suspected that she knew him, why had she approached him, instead of going to Otto or Trent, who would have had no hesitation in cutting on the merest suspicion that he was a secret agent?

If, on the other hand, her story was true, he was deliberately throwing away his great chance of getting the better of the gang.

And, in any case, even if she was one of the gang, the fact that she had approached him direct argued that she was, to some degree, his friend.

Feverishly he sought in his mind for some theory that would account for the situation if what she had said was true. And almost instantly he hit on one.

X's confounded habit of never letting his right hand know what his left was doing. It wouldn't be the first time he had found people who were complete strangers to him working on the same job as himself.

He remembered then how X had shown that he knew quite a lot about Pullinger when he first went to him with the story. Of course, that could have come from this girl. The fact that she was with Otto, and that she had been to Watson's house, could mean nothing more than that she was working on X's behalf.

Gun realized fully what a thin chance he had of getting free in time to stop the crime that was contemplated by the gang without outside assistance. He suddenly made up his mind that he would take a chance on it. After all, he might just as well. It seemed about the only chance, and even if the girl betrayed him, he might as well be dead as useless.

Confound it, he'd do it—right away.

He got to his feet and was just moving to the door to go and find the others when the door itself was thrust open and Otto and Trent stood on the threshold.

"Hullo!" said Trent. "Where are the others?"

"In the garden—according to program," Gun answered.

"Good!" said Trent. "Let's hope she's having some luck with your rather difficult friend."

Otto nodded, and grunted a sort of "Amen."

As they came into the room Gun was thinking how he could possibly get one word with Coral to let her know that he was prepared to trust her. He got an idea.

"Shall I go out and fetch them in?" he asked.

Otto shot a quick glance at him, that might have been one of suspicion. Otto was the sort of man who was suspicious of almost everything.

"No," he said shortly. "In a minute I will call out to them myself. Better give them time."

Serrano Suner had a farewell alk this afternoon with Foreign inister Count Galeazzo Ciano and a brief communique said merely that it was "cordial."

Attack United States

Commentator Mario Appelius, writing in Il Duce's Il Popolo Di Roma, bitterly attacked the United States, England and France as great enemies of Spain and its history.

"The people of the world have two wishes," he said. "First, to free themselves from English domination; and, second, to free themselves from the plutocratic tyranny represented by the United States.

"The panorama of the world is clear. On one side are the British empire, North American plutocracy and their clients and international servants. On the other side is the entire civilized humanity. Naturally, Spain is on the side of civilization.

Calls American Ignorant

"North American people are the most ignorant of the white race. The present tragic isolation of the English speaking people comes precisely from their ignorance of the history of civilization."

Then writing at length at the prospect of Spain becoming a greater power with the help of the Axis powers, Appelius said that one formula in Italian-Spanish friendship is "the Mediterranean for Mediterranean peoples." The future of this formula, he added, "has three great open roads, the Mediterranean, Africa and Iberian-Latin America."

Other sections of the press and authoritative Fascists emphasized the hope the United States would keep out of the European war as a result of Japan's alliance with Germany and Italy.

New Airport Plans Killed in Senate

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP) — Eliminating a proposed expenditure of $80,000,000 to start construction of 4,000 new airports, the Senate appropriations committee approved two appropriation bills totaling $1,682,112,364 today. The bulk of the money is for national defense.

One was a $1,482,693,636 defense measure carrying funds to feed, clothe, pay, equip and train a fighting force of 1,024,441 conscripts and national guardsmen to supplement the army's regulars. The Senate is scheduled to take it up tomorrow.

The other was a $199,418,728 civil functions bill, containing funds to train 700,000 civilian defense workers. Rich Families Hold Control of Large American Concerns

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) said today that a securities commission study showed that the duPont, Mellon and Rockefeller families had shareholdings valued at nearly $1,400,000,000 and "so placed as to give them considerable influence if not control" over fifteen of the nation's 200 largest non-financial corporations.

The study was submitted to the Monopoly Committee of which he is chairman, O'Mahoney said.

Thirteen family groups, O'Mahoney said, were shown to have holdings worth $2,700,000,000, representing eight per cent of the stock of the 200 corporations. The duPont, Mellon and Rockefeller interests, he said, were among the thirteen.

"The twenty largest shareholdings in each of the 200 corporations," O'Mahoney continued in a statement, "account on the average for nearly one-third of the total stock. In the average corporation the majority of the voting power is concentrated in the hands of approximately one per cent of the stockholders."

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 2. (AP)—Associate Judge J. Owen Knotts of the second judicial circuit today declined an appointment as chief judge of the circuit.

He notified Governor O'Conor he would be unable to accept the appointment, which carries with it membership on the Court of Appeals, because of "certain personal considerations."

O'Conor, who had asked Judge Knotts to succeed the late Chief Judge W. Mason Shehan, is expected to fill the vacancy before next Tuesday, when the Appellate Court reconvenes for its fall session.

Two other associate judges of the circuit—James F. Evans and Thomas J. Keating—are looked upon as possible candidates for the chief judgeship.

Farmer Finds Hog Far Down in Well

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 2. (AP)—C. Lease Bussard didn't relish the job of climbing down the well on his Frederick county farm and fixing the pump.

But, the pump broke down mysteriously yesterday and had to be fixed. So, today, Bussard got a ladder and started down.

It was ticklish business and close work. Then, suddenly, the shaft of the well got downright crowded. What with grunting, squealing, and sounds of a heavy bodys, Bussard came up the ladder far faster than he went down.

He hadn't he explained, been doing the grunting and squealing.

Armed with a flashlight, and backed by farmhands, Bussard went down again. On a ledge, thirty feet below ground and fourteen feet above water level, he found a 200-pound hog.

Farmhands said the hog, missing from the pens since Saturday, apparently had fallen through the well covering and put the pump out of commission. When they hauled it out later today with a rope sling, there wasn't a scratch on it.

The hog was simply hungry—and mightly mad.

Vandals Loot Many Cottages, Break Windows

ELKTON, Md., Oct. 2 (AP)—Cecil County Sheriff David Randolph and his deputies were kept busy today attempting to solve a series of burglaries at summer cottages in the area and run down vandals who smashed windows and looted the new high school building here.

Owners of cottages at Blair's shore and Hack's Point on the Elk river have reported several thefts in the past week. Chief deputy Ralph Robinson said he believed the culprits used a boat in making off with their loot.

Forty windows were broken in the high school building on North street, the county school board reported to Randolph.

In addition, thieves entered the school cafeteria, emptying the cash register of small change and stealing several articles from the same department.

Randolph said clues pointed to the same gang of boys who recently shot holes in many school windows with air rifles.

Mussolini's Newspaper Declares Americans Most Ignorant Whites

ROME, Oct. 2 (AP) — Premier Mussolini's own newspaper criticized the people of the United States today as "the most ignorant of the white race" and hinted strongly that Germany and Italy are counting on Spain to offset American and British influence in Latin America.

Just how Spain would play her part and the precise role she would have in the new Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis remained unanswered, however, as Spanish minister of government Ramon Serrano Suner wound up a series of Rome-Berlin conferences.

Serrano Suner had a farewell talk this afternoon with Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano and a brief communique said merely that it was "cordial."

Moorefield Child Dies of Polio; Doctor Warns against Hysteria

'Don't Be Afraid, but Don't Take Chances, Says Health Officer

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Oct. 2—Prompt action on the part of the West Virginia Department of Health averted a wave of hysteria in Moorefield when it was announced Sunday that the infant daughter of Reed Williams died of poliolmyelitis, the first case in Hardy county.

Dr. W. H. Riheldaffer, state health physician at Romney, immediately quarantined the home and Monday afternoon met with the teachers and parents at the school for an explanatory lecture and round table discussion of polio. Dr. Riheldaffer said "the State Health Department never questions the diagnosis of the attending physician in cases of this kind, and we immediately take steps as if an epidemic had broken out. This has been done at Moorefield."

Not Contagious

Dr. Riheldaffer admitted that medical authorities know very little about poliomyelitis, commonly miscalled infantile paralysis, by laymen, but that they do not consider it contagious.

Dr. Riheldaffer pointed out that so far this year in West Virginia, only thirteen deaths had occurred from polio, whereas 390 deaths resulted from typhoid fever, and approximately the same number from diphtheria and from whooping cough.

"Typhoid, diphtheria and whooping cough are preventable," said Dr. Riheldaffer, "yet the public does not get concerned about them, and they kill thirty times as many children as polio."

Cites Statistics

He went on to point out the mathematical odds against another case of polio in this community by showing only 461 cases were reported out of West Virginia's population of 1,800,000, or one for each 4,000. The thirteen deaths are in a ratio of one to each 18,000. Only two out of each hundred with the disease die.

He noted other figures showing that sixty-seven per cent of those who contract the disease are under four years old, two per cent over twenty years old and fourteen per cent are between thirteen and nineteen.

Dr. Riheldaffer went into a semi-technical explanation of the stages of the disease, the symptoms and the results of the disease.

Keep Schools Open

"Closing schools and keeping the children at home is the worst possible thing that could be done," said the physician, "for the simple reason that in school every child is under constant observation and the minute a child shows a sign of illness it can be sent home and a physician notified. The disease is not communicable at that stage."

He said the health department had arranged for children becoming ill to be transported home and

Elkins Celebrates Fiftieth Birthday

Golden Jubilee To Merge into Annual Forest Festival Thursday

ELKINS, W. Va., Oct. 2, (AP)—A mountain city born in the age of the lumber and railroad barons counted off its fiftieth birthday today with a celebration which two days hence will merge into the traditional Mountain State Forest Festival.

While townsfolk awaited the arrival tomorrow of Eloise Campbell Long, Queen Silvia XI, of the forests, they gathered tonight at a reception to commemorate the incorporation of their city in 1890.

Named for Stephen B. Elkins, West Virginia financier and U. S. Senator from 1895 to 1911, the community which is now the gateway to the Monongahela National Forest knew its early prosperity because empire builders found the region a great source of timber.

The golden jubilee reception actually ushered in Festival Week, and a historic exhibit of Elkins, old and new, will be a prominent part of the displays already set up for thousands of visitors expected before Saturday.

The three-day festival itself will open Thursday.

Miss Long of Huntington, the first of eleven queens to make her entry to her domain by plane, is scheduled to arrive tomorrow afternoon from Washington, where she will deliver a personal invitation to President Roosevelt to repeat the visit to Elkins he made in 1936.

The queen was met in Washington today by her father, Walker Long, general manager of the Huntington Publishing Company, her mother, and her grandfather, Col. J. H. Long. She was honor guest at a reception to West Virginia congressmen given by Representative and Mrs. Jennings Randolph.

Tonight Queen Silvia and Randolph spoke over a Washington radio station telling about the fall celebration which has become a tradition with West Virginians.

Colcock of Charlottesville, Va., announced the engagement of their daughter, Betty Blair Colcock, to Benjamin Kump, youngest son of former Governor and Mrs. H. G. Kump of Elkins. Kump is an engineer for an Ashland, Ky., firm. The couple will be married this month.

Weirton, Biggest 'Company Town' In U. S., against Incorporation

WEIRTON, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP) — The residents of Weirton, largest unincorporated community in the country, made it known that they don't want to take over their municipal affairs, a tabulation disclosed today.

They voted 1,276 to 637 against a proposal to merge with three adjoining towns and form an incorporated "Greater Weirton," thus leaving control of the town in the hands of the Weirton Steel Company, which founded it on the site of an apple orchard.

The incorporated town of Hollidays Cove favored annexation 555 to 508.

Had Weirton approved the merger plan, the two nearby incorporated towns of Marlin Heights and Weirton Heights would have voted on whether to join in a "Greater Weirton" embracing a population of approximately 40,000.

Only the residents of Hollidays Cove and Weirton ballotted "yes" or "no" on the proposal.

The call for the election specified that the plan must carry by a majority in both communities.

The steel company, which operates the utilities in Weirton and supplies virtually all other municipal services, said it was "strictly neutral" in the election.

The village "grew up" around the steel mill built here by Ernest T. Weir in 1900.

Oakland Doctor Goes on Trial On Morals Count

Dr. C. P. Berger Denies Charges Brought by Hutton Woman

OAKLAND, Oct. 2 — The Garrett County Circuit court reconvened here today, with both Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judge W. A. Huster on the bench, to hear the case against Dr. C. P. Berger, Oakland physician, accused by Mrs. Ruby Elliott, of Hutton of unnatural and perverted practices.

The recent grand jury found four indictments against Dr. Berger, who had been a practicing physician here since the fall of 1938, coming to Oakland from Waterford, Va. He attended George Washington university and Virginia Medical school and interned at Sibley hospital, Washington. He was admitted to practice in 1936.

The charges are denied by Dr. Berger, and the case is being tried before two judges. Character witnesses were brought in today by the defense from Oakland, from Waterford, and also from his former home at Schuylkillhaven, Pa.

Mrs. Elliott and her mother-in-law were on the stand this morning. Mrs. Elliott testified that the unnatural act was committed when she went to Dr. Berger's office for an examination. She was accompanied by her mother-in-law, who, according to the testimony, was in an adjoining room.

Miss Florence Browning, the physician's office nurse, testified she was within five feet of the parties during the examination in an adjoining room, with the door ajar, and also came into the room upon two occasions during the examination. She asserted the charge could not be true.

Other witnesses are called for tomorrow. Among the character witnesses today were former associates and classmates of Dr. Berger, now practicing in Loudoun and Frederick counties in Virginia.

Defending Dr. Berger are William A. Gunter, Cumberland, and Walter W. Dawson, Oakland. State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley, is the prosecutor.

Hitler Will Attack U. S. Immediately If Britain Falls, Neely Predicts

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP) —A prediction that Adolf Hitler will make an immediate attack on the United States if he conquers England was made today by U. S. Senator M. M. Neely of Fairmont.

Speaking at the opening session of the West Virginia Oil and Natural Gas Association convention, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate asserted:

"You can depend upon him (Hitler) beginning to transport his motorized units to Canada on our north and to the islands of the Carribbean immediately after a European victory."

The association will conclude its two-day meeting tomorrow with election of officers. If precedent is followed, Vice-President W. B. Gribbles of Clarksburg, retired general superintendent of the Hope Natural Gas Company, will be elevated to the presidency.

Senator Neely, devoting most of his address to international affairs, said many persons fear that Russia soon will join the Axis powers. This, he said, would leave only the United States and England "to defend democracy."

Of internal affairs, he said: "The man or woman has not yet been born who can solve the unemployment problem. I believe in the capitalistic form of government, if you please, with private property rights and individual freedom, but the time has come when we must do something about it."

Moorefield Child Dies of Polio; Doctor Warns against Hysteria

'Don't Be Afraid, but Don't Take Chances, Says Health Officer

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Oct. 2—Prompt action on the part of the West Virginia Department of Health averted a wave of hysteria in Moorefield when it was announced Sunday that the infant daughter of Reed Williams died of poliolmyelitis, the first case in Hardy county.

Dr. W. H. Riheldaffer, state health physician at Romney, immediately quarantined the home and Monday afternoon met with the teachers and parents at the school for an explanatory lecture and round table discussion of polio. Dr. Riheldaffer said "the State Health Department never questions the diagnosis of the attending physician in cases of this kind, and we immediately take steps as if an epidemic had broken out. This has been done at Moorefield."

Not Contagious

Dr. Riheldaffer admitted that medical authorities know very little about poliomyelitis, commonly miscalled infantile paralysis, by laymen, but that they do not consider it contagious.

Dr. Riheldaffer pointed out that so far this year in West Virginia, only thirteen deaths had occurred from polio, whereas 390 deaths resulted from typhoid fever, and approximately the same number from diphtheria and from whooping cough.

"Typhoid, diphtheria and whooping cough are preventable," said Dr. Riheldaffer, "yet the public does not get concerned about them, and they kill thirty times as many children as polio."

Cites Statistics

He went on to point out the mathematical odds against another case of polio in this community by showing only 461 cases were reported out of West Virginia's population of 1,800,000, or one for each 4,000. The thirteen deaths are in a ratio of one to each 18,000. Only two out of each hundred with the disease die.

He noted other figures showing that sixty-seven per cent of those who contract the disease are under four years old, two per cent over twenty years old and fourteen per cent are between thirteen and nineteen.

Dr. Riheldaffer went into a semi-technical explanation of the stages of the disease, the symptoms and the results of the disease.

Keep Schools Open

"Closing schools and keeping the children at home is the worst possible thing that could be done," said the physician, "for the simple reason that in school every child is under constant observation and the minute a child shows a sign of illness it can be sent home and a physician notified. The disease is not communicable at that stage."

He said the health department had arranged for children becoming ill to be transported home and

Elkins Celebrates Fiftieth Birthday

Golden Jubilee To Merge into Annual Forest Festival Thursday

ELKINS, W. Va., Oct. 2, (AP)—A mountain city born in the age of the lumber and railroad barons counted off its fiftieth birthday today with a celebration which two days hence will merge into the traditional Mountain State Forest Festival.

While townsfolk awaited the arrival tomorrow of Eloise Campbell Long, Queen Silvia XI, of the forests, they gathered tonight at a reception to commemorate the incorporation of their city in 1890.

Named for Stephen B. Elkins, West Virginia financier and U. S. Senator from 1895 to 1911, the community which is now the gateway to the Monongahela National Forest knew its early prosperity because empire builders found the region a great source of timber.

The golden jubilee reception actually ushered in Festival Week, and a historic exhibit of Elkins, old and new, will be a prominent part of the displays already set up for thousands of visitors expected before Saturday.

The three-day festival itself will open Thursday.

Miss Long of Huntington, the first of eleven queens to make her entry to her domain by plane, is scheduled to arrive tomorrow afternoon from Washington, where she will deliver a personal invitation to President Roosevelt to repeat the visit to Elkins he made in 1936.

The queen was met in Washington today by her father, Walker Long, general manager of the Huntington Publishing Company, her mother, and her grandfather, Col. J. H. Long. She was honor guest at a reception to West Virginia cvongressmen given by Representative and Mrs. Jennings Randolph.

Tonight Queen Silvia and Randolph spoke over a Washington radio station telling about the fall celebration which has become a tradition with West Virginians.

Weirton, Biggest 'Company Town' In U. S., against Incorporation

WEIRTON, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP) — The residents of Weirton, largest unincorporated community in the country, made it known that they don't want to take over their municipal affairs, a tabulation disclosed today.

They voted 1,276 to 637 against a proposal to merge with three adjoining towns and form an incorporated "Greater Weirton," thus leaving control of the town in the hands of the Weirton Steel Company, which founded it on the site of an apple orchard.

The incorporated town of Hollidays Cove favored annexation 555 to 508.

Had Weirton approved the merger plan, the two nearby incorporated towns of Marlin Heights and Weirton Heights would have voted on whether to join in a "Greater Weirton" embracing a population of approximately 40,000.

Only the residents of Hollidays Cove and Weirton ballotted "yes" or "no" on the proposal.

The call for the election specified that the plan must carry by a majority in both communities.

The steel company, which operates the utilities in Weirton and supplies virtually all other municipal services, said it was "strictly neutral" in the election.

The village "grew up" around the steel mill built here by Ernest T. Weir in 1900.

He attended George Washington university and Virginia Medical school and interned at Sibley hospital, Washington. He was admitted to practice in 1936.

The charges are denied by Dr. Berger, and the case is being tried before two judges. Character witnesses were brought in today by the defense from Oakland, from Waterford, and also from his former home at Schuylkillhaven, Pa.

Mrs. Elliott and her mother-in-law were on the stand this morning. Mrs. Elliott testified that the unnatural act was committed when she went to Dr. Berger's office for an examination. She was accompanied by her mother-in-law, who, according to the testimony, was in an adjoining room.

Miss Florence Browning, the physician's office nurse, testified she was within five feet of the parties during the examination in an adjoining room, with the door ajar, and also came into the room upon two occasions during the examination. She asserted the charge could not be true.

Other witnesses are called for tomorrow. Among the character witnesses today were former associates and classmates of Dr. Berger, now practicing in Loudoun and Frederick counties in Virginia.

Defending Dr. Berger are William A. Gunter, Cumberland, and Walter W. Dawson, Oakland. State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley, is the prosecutor.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP)—Thirteen new cases of infantile paralysis, nine of them in Fayette county, swelled to at least 475 today the year's total in West Virginia's worst outbreak of the disease.

The State Health Department received a belated report of one new case last week in Mercer county, raising to 460 the number of officially reported cases.

County health officers received reports of nine cases in Fayette county this week, two in Kanawha and one each in Raleigh and Greenbrier counties. Huntington already had reported one new case this week.

'Queen Silvia XI' To Be Crowned Today as Forest Festival Opens

Colorful Three-Day Celebration at Elkins To Draw Huge Crowd

ELKINS, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP) — Eloise Campbell Long, eleventh in the line of queens who have ruled over the hill country's fall-colored forestlands, came to her domain today to preside over the Mountain State Forest Festival and also help this highland city celebrate its golden jubilee.

Miss Long as "Queen Silvia XI," became the first of the royal lineage to arrive by plane. A crowd of more than 1,000 persons greeted her at the Elkins airport after a flight from Washington, where she invited President Roosevelt to visit the festival once more.

The queen and Representative Jennings Randolph of Elkins were received at the capital by Col. E. M. Watson, presidential aide, who regretfully told them business would not permit the President to make the trip.

Smiling gaily, the 18-year-old golden-haired queen stepped from the airliner to greet her mother, Mrs. Walker Long of Huntington. Accompanying Miss Long from Washington were her father, Walker Long, her grandfather, Col. J. H. Long and Randolph.

"I'm so happy and proud to be here," the queen exclaimed to the crowd. Standing beside her were her maids of honor, Miss Patricia Prechnik of Washington and Miss Dorothy Slaymaker of Philadelphia.

Elkins, more in holiday mood than ever because this is its fiftieth year as a city, was decorated from one end to the other while the surrounding mountains were described by the visitors as the brightest in many years.

There has been just enough frost in the uplands to tint the woods without leaving them drab.

Queen Silvia was honored at a reception this evening at the home of A. Spates Brady, and tonight she took part in festivities by which Elkins is commemorating its founding in 1890 in the heydey of the lumber and railroad barons.

Tomorrow afternoon she will receive her crown from Governor Homer A. Holt, who will fly here from Charleston in the morning.

The coronation in its tree-girdled setting in the Davis-Elkins college amphitheater will begin formally the three days of pageantry which ends Saturday with an aviation and defense program.

Festival Director Richard Hall, citing the full day's events scheduled for Saturday, predicted the largest three-day attendance since the forest festival was started in 1930.

The queen, her thirty-two princesses and two maids of honor will be guests at a reception following the coronation pageant and tomorrow night will attend the queen's ball. The festival parade is scheduled Friday.

Helping the city to observe its jubilee was former Senator Davis Elkins, son of Stephen Elkins for whom the city was named, who was accompanied by Mrs. Elkins and their daughters, Katherine and Maurine.

Miss Katherine Elkins will be "Miss Elkins" on the city's jubilee float in the Friday parade.

Fifteen Jones Boys Outnumbered by 20 Colombo Children

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP) — Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Batiste Colombo of Nutter Fort, tonight challenged the publicity given Schoolmaster and Mrs. Grover Jones of Peterstown as parents of West Virginia's largest family.

The Joneses, parents of fifteen sons, will be honored with an appointment with President Roosevelt and the designation of "Grover Jones Day" at the New York World's Fair.

The Colombos, contend their supporters, are parents of twenty children — eleven boys and nine girls, including one set of twins.

W. Va. Lists 13 New Polio Cases; Total Now 475

Romney Deaf-Blind School Opens, but Children Are Quarantined

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP) —Thirteen new cases of infantile paralysis, nine of them in Fayette county, swelled to at least 475 today the year's total in West Virginia's worst outbreak of the disease.

The State Health Department received a belated report of one new case last week in Mercer county, raising to 460 the number of officially reported cases.

County health officers received reports of nine cases in Fayette county this week, two in Kanawha and one each in Raleigh and Greenbrier counties. Huntington already had reported one new case this week.

Superintendent E. R. Vawter of Fayette county schools said a scheduled holiday to permit teachers to attend the State Education Association convention at Huntington November 7-9 will be cancelled, because of time already lost in the school year.

The West Virginia School for the Blind and Deaf at Romney opened today, but the State Health Department said children will be quarantined on the school grounds for an indefinite period.

Residents of Romney had protested against the assembling of children from all parts of the state. The quarantine does not apply to teachers.

Colorful Three-Day Celebration at Elkins To Draw Huge Crowd

ELKINS, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP) — Eloise Campbell Long, eleventh in the line of queens who have ruled over the hill country's fall-colored forestlands, came to her domain today to preside over the Mountain State Forest Festival and also help this highland city celebrate its golden jubilee.

Miss Long as "Queen Silvia XI," became the first of the royal lineage to arrive by plane. A crowd of more than 1,000 persons greeted her at the Elkins airport after a flight from Washington, where she invited President Roosevelt to visit the festival once more.

The queen and Representative Jennings Randolph of Elkins were received at the capital by Col. E. M. Watson, presidential aide, who regretfully told them business would not permit the President to make the trip.

Smiling gaily, the 18-year-old golden-haired queen stepped from the airliner to greet her mother, Mrs. Walker Long of Huntington. Accompanying Miss Long from Washington were her father, Walker Long, her grandfather, Col. J. H. Long and Randolph.

"I'm so happy and proud to be here," the queen exclaimed to the crowd. Standing beside her were her maids of honor, Miss Patricia Prechnik of Washington and Miss Dorothy Slaymaker of Philadelphia.

Elkins, more in holiday mood than ever because this is its fiftieth year as a city, was decorated from one end to the other while the surrounding mountains were described by the visitors as the brightest in many years.

There has been just enough frost in the uplands to tint the woods without leaving them drab.

Queen Silvia was honored at a reception this evening at the home of A. Spates Brady, and tonight she took part in festivities by which Elkins is commemorating its founding in 1890 in the heydey of the lumber and railroad barons.

Tomorrow afternoon she will receive her crown from Governor Homer A. Holt, who will fly here from Charleston in the morning.

The coronation in its tree-girdled setting in the Davis-Elkins college amphitheater will begin formally the three days of pageantry which ends Saturday with an aviation and defense program.

Festival Director Richard Hall, citing the full day's events scheduled for Saturday, predicted the largest three-day attendance since the forest festival was started in 1930.

The queen, her thirty-two princesses and two maids of honor will be guests at a reception following the coronation pageant and tomorrow night will attend the queen's ball. The festival parade is scheduled Friday.

Helping the city to observe its jubilee was former Senator Davis Elkins, son of Stephen Elkins for whom the city was named, who was accompanied by Mrs. Elkins and their daughters, Katherine and Maurine.

Miss Katherine Elkins will be "Miss Elkins" on the city's jubilee float in the Friday parade.

Rails and Steels Lead Sharp Rally of Whole Stock Market

Prices Advance for the Fourth Consecutive Session

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—Rails and steels followed the lead of chemicals today in a late advance which carried the whole stock market higher.

The Associated Press advance of sixty selected stocks rose .3 of a point to 45.4. It was the fourth consecutive rising session. Transactions totaled 769,900 shares compared with 207,100 yesterday.

All indices of domestic business and industrial activities continued to show improvement; freight car loadings were estimated at a new peak for the year and electric power output increased. The price of steel scrap rose fifty cents a ton.

Leaders in the stock upturn were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible Steel, Chrysler, Case, Owens-Illinois, Allied Chemical, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, Phelps Dodge, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, Cerro De Pasco and Electric Boat.

Among the gainers of a point or more in the curb—where the turnover was 107,000 shares compared with 111,000 yesterday—were American Cyanamid "B," Aviation and Transportation, Midwest Pipe and Supply, Pioneer Gold and Sherwin Williams.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Getting on with New Neighbors Is Discussed

New Problems Often Face Children when the Family Moves

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

When the family move, new problems face the growing children over three or four, especially those of school age. For the lad between six and ten or twelve, adjustment to the other children of the neighborhood may prove a serious ordeal. His courage will be tried. If he is able to stand in his own defense with his fists most of his problems will be ended. On the other hand, if he ranks high in many play skills, excels in craftmanship and creative fun, he may be able to win a comfortable place without a test by physical combat.

Handling Bullies

His parents will make it easier for him if they will welcome the children of the neighborhood to the premises and guide them in satisfying activities there, making clear that a few rules must be observed. These wise parents will win the respect of the children and their parents of the neighborhood. Especially will they win the good graces of the bullies of the neighborhood. To this end the parents will be careful not to rebuke these roughnecks on the neighborhood playground. Rather these parents will find ways to hire one or two of the gang leaders to run some errands and to praise them honestly in the presence of their own parents.

There will be the new bullies at school and on the way to it. Fortunate your child if he learns not to fear them. Your daughter will have similar experiences, for there are girl bullies as well as boy bullies; and girls must learn to get along with the boys as well as with other girls.

Entering a new school, even in the same city, will require the learning of many new ways and new methods of school work. When your child moves from country or village to city or vice versa to adjustments to be made will be big.

Be Tactful

Be careful not to compare the new neighborhood and school unfovorably with the old one. Try to induce your child also to be cautious in this respect. Rather he and you should look for the superior items in the new setting and let others know you have observed them. We like people, you see, who make us feel that where we live, and what we have and do, are worth while. Other people like us for a similar reason. We and our children will get on best in a new school and community as we and our children find ways of making our new neighbors, teachers and friends like us.

You might find some good suggestions in my booklet, Learning to be Likeable, which I trust is in your public library. If you would like to have a list of books on getting along with other people, cultivating good personality and good mental health, write me at 235 East Forty-fifth street, N. Y. City enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

MAISIE PLEADS FOR A JOB

Theaters Today

Freddie Bartholomew Is Featured in Classic

Freddie Bartholomew, who recently appeared in "Swiss Family Robinson," has a featured role in the picturization of "Tom Brown's School Days," a Gene Towne-Graham Baker production, now showing at the New Liberty theater.

As Harry East, loyal companion to Tom Brown, young Bartholomew is said to top his gripping performances in "Captain Courageous" and "Lord Jeff." East, it will be recalled by those who have read the Thomas Hughes classic, is the lad who takes Tom Brown into tow when the latter comes to Rugby.

The pair become chums immediately, plotting to counter the bullying regime engineered by Flashman, the school terror, portrayed by Billy Halop, a Dead End Kid. Their plans lead to night rides, fist fights and other fast-packed adventures which provide the movie with an abundance of exciting entertainment.

The role of Tom Brown is portrayed by sixteen-year-old Jimmy Lydon. Sir Cedric Hardwicke, character player, is cast as Dr. Arnold, the martinet schoolmaster who believed in building a strong empire by building the characters of the future citizens. The picture features Josephine Hutchinson, Ernest Cossart, Gale Storm and Hughie Green.

Stage Revue Is Booked at Strand

Harry Clark's "Pan American Revue," a stage show will open at midnight tonight at the Strand also appearing tomorrow and Saturday.

Clark has secured a number of vaudeville acts that have appeared in North and South America. The opening act is by the Taketas, three orientals who perform atop a high pole and who do foot juggling. Bob Hopkins is a mimic and song stylist and in his act he impersonates Walter Winchell, Ben Bernie, Fred Allen, Bing Crosby and other famous stars. Van and Arvola are dancers and also play the xylophone.

Another act is by Shay and Prosper, who offer comedy acrobatics Francine is a singer of swing songs from Brazil, who was featured with Earl Carroll's Hollywood Revue. The beauty chorus comprises twelve girls picked for beauty as well as dancing ability. They execute the rhumba, the tango, the congo and other colorful dances. Carlos and his South American rhumba band will furnish the music.

The screen show will be Akim Tamiroff and Gladys George in Paramount's "The Way of All Flesh." A program of featurettes is in the program.

Card Game a Highlight In Garden Feature

A card game is a highlight sequence in Universal's Bob Burns comedy, "Alias the Deacon," now at the Garden theater.

Burns in the title role appears as an amiable card sharp who masquerades as a deacon while he solves the troubles of his friends. The story reaches its climax when Bob turns the tables on a couple of small town crooks and relieves them of their money.

Jack Carson and Thurston Hall play Bob's adversaries in the historic poker game. Also in "Alias the Deacon" are Mischa Auer, Dennis O'Keefe, Peggy Moran, Spencer Charters, and Guinn "Big Boy" Williams.

A veteran character actor of the screen, C. Aubrey Smith appears as "The Judge," a gentleman gambler of the old school, in "City of Chance," Twentieth Century-Fox drama also showing at the Garden theater. Lynn Bari, Donald Woods and Amanda Duff are also featured.

Ates Has Comedy Role In Feature at Garden

Roscoe Ates plays the comic Gloomy in Monogram's "Cowboy from Sundown," opening tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

Ates played role after role in which stuttering was about the only thing he was called upon to do. Then, determined to prove that he could act as well as stutter, he stopped stuttering completely. Now he is a straight comic.

What few people know, however, is that Roscoe Ates used to stutter naturally, and cured himself. Ates has also cured others, and definitely states that there is no such thing as a "hopeless" case of stuttering. He firmly believes that he can cure anyone.

Ates plays the role of Gloomy, Tex Ritter's deputy sheriff. His romance with "Prunella Wallaby," an old maid with a terrible temper, causes most of the laughs in this picture, which is the story of a feud between the law and the cattlemen, after a mysterious plague strikes the community.

Others in the cast include Slim Andrews, Carleton Young, Dave O'Brien, Patsy Moran, and Pauline Haddon.

Adventures of Maisie Are Depicted in Film

Highlights of "Gold Rush Maisie," now at the Maryland theater, include the demise of Maisie's ancient jallopy, her return to the ghost town at night in the equally dilapidated car of the itinerant farmers, her accidental discovery of gold ore and the party celebrating the prospectors' strike. Maisie both sings and dances at the party.

Based on an original story by Wilson Collison, the screen play is the work of Betty Reinhardt and Mary C. McCall, Jr.

IN PARAMOUNT FILM

Glady George is featured with Akim Tamiroff in Paramount's "Way of All Flesh" showing Friday and Saturday at the Strand theater.

There are no colored units army air service nor in naval tion.

Prices Advance for the Fourth Consecutive Session

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—Rails and steels followed the lead of chemicals today in a late advance which carried the whole stock market higher.

The Associated Press advance of sixty selected stocks rose .3 of a point to 45.4. It was the fourth consecutive rising session. Transactions totaled 769,900 shares compared with 207,100 yesterday.

All indices of domestic business and industrial activities continued to show improvement; freight car loadings were estimated at a new peak for the year and electric power output increased. The price of steel scrap rose fifty cents a ton.

Leaders in the stock upturn were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible Steel, Chrysler, Case, Owens-Illinois, Allied Chemical, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, Phelps Dodge, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, Cerro De Pasco and Electric Boat.

Among the gainers of a point or more in the curb—where the turnover was 107,000 shares compared with 111,000 yesterday—were American Cyanamid "B," Aviation and Transportation, Midwest Pipe and Supply, Pioneer Gold and Sherwin Williams.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Getting on with New Neighbors Is Discussed

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

When the family move, new problems face the growing children over three or four, especially those of school age. For the lad between six and ten or twelve, adjustment to the other children of the neighborhood may prove a serious ordeal. His courage will be tried. If he is able to stand in his own defense with his fists most of his problems will be ended. On the other hand, if he ranks high in many play skills, excels in craftmanship and creative fun, he may be able to win a comfortable place without a test by physical combat.

Handling Bullies

His parents will make it easier for him if they will welcome the children of the neighborhood to the premises and guide them in satisfying activities there, making clear that a few rules must be observed. These wise parents will win the respect of the children and their parents of the neighborhood. Especially will they win the good graces of the bullies of the neighborhood. To this end the parents will be careful not to rebuke these roughnecks on the neighborhood playground. Rather these parents will find ways to hire one or two of the gang leaders to run some errands and to praise them honestly in the presence of their own parents.

There will be the new bullies at school and on the way to it. Fortunate your child if he learns not to fear them. Your daughter will have similar experiences, for there are girl bullies as well as boy bullies; and girls must learn to get along with the boys as well as with other girls.

Entering a new school, even in the same city, will require the learning of many new ways and new methods of school work. When your child moves from country or village to city or vice versa to adjustments to be made will be big.

Be Tactful

Be careful not to compare the new neighborhood and school unfovorably with the old one. Try to induce your child also to be cautious in this respect. Rather he and you should look for the superior items in the new setting and let others know you have observed them. We like people, you see, who make us feel that where we live, and what we have and do, are worth while. Other people like us for a similar reason. We and our children will get on best in a new school and community as we and our children find ways of making our new neighbors, teachers and friends like us.

You might find some good suggestions in my booklet, Learning to be Likeable, which I trust is in your public library. If you would like to have a list of books on getting along with other people, cultivating good personality and good mental health, write me at 235 East Forty-fifth street, N. Y. City enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

MAISIE PLEADS FOR A JOB

Theaters Today

Freddie Bartholomew Is Featured in Classic

Freddie Bartholomew, who recently appeared in "Swiss Family Robinson," has a featured role in the picturization of "Tom Brown's School Days," a Gene Towne-Graham Baker production, now showing at the New Liberty theater.

As Harry East, loyal companion to Tom Brown, young Bartholomew is said to top his gripping performances in "Captain Courageous" and "Lord Jeff." East, it will be recalled by those who have read the Thomas Hughes classic, is the lad who takes Tom Brown into tow when the latter comes to Rugby.

The pair become chums immediately, plotting to counter the bullying regime engineered by Flashman, the school terror, portrayed by Billy Halop, a Dead End Kid. Their plans lead to night rides, fist fights and other fast-packed adventures which provide the movie with an abundance of exciting entertainment.

The role of Tom Brown is portrayed by sixteen-year-old Jimmy Lydon. Sir Cedric Hardwicke, character player, is cast as Dr. Arnold, the martinet schoolmaster who believed in building a strong empire by building the characters of the future citizens. The picture features Josephine Hutchinson, Ernest Cossart, Gale Storm and Hughie Green.

Stage Revue Is Booked at Strand

Harry Clark's "Pan American Revue," a stage show will open at midnight tonight at the Strand also appearing tomorrow and Saturday.

Clark has secured a number of vaudeville acts that have appeared in North and South America. The opening act is by the Taketas, three orientals who perform atop a high pole and who do foot juggling. Bob Hopkins is a mimic and song stylist and in his act he impersonates Walter Winchell, Ben Bernie, Fred Allen, Bing Crosby and other famous stars. Van and Arvola are dancers and also play the xylophone.

Another act is by Shay and Prosper, who offer comedy acrobatics. Francine is a singer of swing songs from Brazil, who was featured with Earl Carroll's Hollywood Revue. The beauty chorus comprises twelve girls picked for beauty as well as dancing ability. They execute the rhumba, the tango, the congo and other colorful dances. Carlos and his South American rhumba band will furnish the music.

The screen show will be Akim Tamiroff and Gladys George in Paramount's "The Way of All Flesh." A program of featurettes is in the program.

Card Game a Highlight In Garden Feature

A card game is a highlight sequence in Universal's Bob Burns comedy, "Alias the Deacon," now at the Garden theater.

Burns in the title role appears as an amiable card sharp who masquerades as a deacon while he solves the troubles of his friends. The story reaches its climax when Bob turns the tables on a couple of small town crooks and relieves them of their money.

Jack Carson and Thurston Hall play Bob's adversaries in the historic poker game. Also in "Alias the Deacon" are Mischa Auer, Dennis O'Keefe, Peggy Moran, Spencer Charters, and Guinn "Big Boy" Williams.

A veteran character actor of the screen, C. Aubrey Smith appears as "The Judge," a gentleman gambler of the old school, in "City of Chance," Twentieth Century-Fox drama also showing at the Garden theater. Lynn Bari, Donald Woods and Amanda Duff are also featured.

Ates Has Comedy Role In Feature at Garden

Roscoe Ates plays the comic Gloomy in Monogram's "Cowboy from Sundown," opening tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

Ates played role after role in which stuttering was about the only thing he was called upon to do. Then, determined to prove that he could act as well as stutter, he stopped stuttering completely. Now he is a straight comic.

What few people know, however, is that Roscoe Ates used to stutter naturally, and cured himself. Ates has also cured others, and definitely states that there is no such thing as a "hopeless" case of stuttering. He firmly believes that he can cure anyone.

Ates plays the role of Gloomy, Tex Ritter's deputy sheriff. His romance with "Prunella Wallaby," an old maid with a terrible temper, causes most of the laughs in this picture, which is the story of a feud between the law and the cattlemen, after a mysterious plague strikes the community.

Others in the cast include Slim Andrews, Carleton Young, Dave O'Brien, Patsy Moran, and Pauline Haddon.

Adventures of Maisie Are Depicted in Film

Highlights of "Gold Rush Maisie," now at the Maryland theater, include the demise of Maisie's ancient jallopy, her return to the ghost town at night in the equally dilapidated car of the itinerant farmers, her accidental discovery of gold ore and the party celebrating the prospectors' strike. Maisie both sings and dances at the party.

Based on an original story by Wilson Collison, the screen play is the work of Betty Reinhardt and Mary C. McCall, Jr.

IN PARAMOUNT FILM

Glady George is featured with Akim Tamiroff in Paramount's "Way of All Flesh" showing Friday and Saturday at the Strand theater.

There are no colored units army air service nor in naval tion.

Army Coach Is Pleased with Mazur's Work

Sophomore Back Runs, Passes and Kicks with Best Players in East

By WHITNEY MARTIN

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 2 (AP) — The Army doesn't make a practice of speaking above a whisper about its yearling, or sophomore, football players. If a combination of Grange, Thorpe and Gipp bobbed up he would be referred to casually as "a fairly promising candidate."

In view of this time-honored policy, a sturdy second-year man named Henry Mazur must be pretty good. No matter how they try to hide it, the name of Mazur keeps bulging out here and there in the conversation of the Cadet followers.

"All-America sure for next year," said one fan.

Captain Bill Wood, Army coach, is more reticent, but it's obvious he thinks rather highly of the lad from Lowell, Mass., who can do everything on a football field.

Backfield Is Light

He's a little on the light side—around 170—but he runs, passes and kicks with the best. Even so, he may not start the first game, so firm is the Army conviction that a man must prove himself first. But the general idea is that once he gets in it will take a team of mules to get him out.

Mazur is a welcome addition to a backfield which will be light, and which will place more stress on passing than usual. Frank Waddell, John Hatch and Dick Hennessy, all veterans, loom as possible running mates for Mazur in the eventual starting lineup.

Captain Wood lost ten lettermen, including seven starters, but he is used to that and the outlook is not too dreary. He has the foundation for a line in Captain Bill Gillis at center, Ray Murphy at guard, and Al Muzyk, transplanted from guard to tackle, and Stan Hutson is a sure bet for one end with Tom Farrell and Ken Hanst, both capable, battling for the other wing job.

Fine Pleb Squad

A very good 1939 Plebe squad is expected to provide other valuable raw material.

Just what the finished product will be when Wood gets through polishing this mixture of experience, inexperience and spirit remains to be seen, but the Cadets in a couple of early season scrimmages gave a hint that they might be worth watching. It has seeped out that they gave Columbia a pretty good going over in a practice scrimmage, and also outscored New York U.

The schedule, perhaps the toughest Army ever had, has Wood worried as much as anything. Starting with Williams next Saturday, the Cadets take on Cornell, Harvard, Lafayette, Notre Dame, Brown, Penn, Princeton and Navy.

About the Two Leaders

CINCINNATI — Thinking of Del Baker of Detroit and Bill McKechnie of the Reds, the two rival leaders, I turned back the clock thirty-five years to the first world series of 1905 when we had McGraw and Mack.

Many things can happen in thirty-five years. Wars come and go. Nations rise and fall and disappear.

In 1905 McGraw and Mack were two exact opposites. McGraw was a harsh, hard-driving leader. Connie Mack was on the milder, gentler side. Between them they won 19 pennants. And a flock of world series shows.

Today there is little difference between Baker and McKechnie in this present series. McKechnie is known as the Deacon. Baker could be known as the Bishop.

Both are mild, quiet people who rarely lift their voices. Both are distinctly leaders, not drivers. Neither believes in invective or abuse. Both believe in encouraging their athletes after some mistake, not in bawling them out.

Two Big Jobs

Both have turned in two great jobs this season. After the 1939 debacle against the crushing Yankees, few believed the Reds would come back with any steam. McKechnie told me differently at Tampa late last March.

"This club is too game for any such cave-in," he said. "We'll be back there again. We have too good a ball club to crack up. You don't crack up with Derringer, Walters and Thompson out there working."

Certainly not with Whitey Moore, Beggs and Turner on guard. McKechnie proved his point by taking the Reds to 100 victories, something few teams have won.

"We broke all fielding records," Bill tells you proudly. "We romped home."

The point is that Bill is proud of his team and the team is proud of Bill. What a difference from the Vitt-Cleveland layout.

The Baker Angle

I sat for an hour with both Baker and McKechnie together. Hot rivals on the field, they are close friends off the field.

Del Baker did an even more remarkable job. Back in March at Florida's Lakeland, Baker's Tigers were picked no better than fifth.

The infield looked to be shot with the waning Bartell and Gehringer at short and second—both supposed to be fading veterans. The pitching staff bordered along joke lines. Few believed the once famous Schoolboy Rowe would win six games. Bridges was over the hill. Buck Newsom was the main hope.

This Tiger outfit was a terrible looking affair last April as it started North. The whole team was loaded with melancholy "ifs".

But the crafty and soothing influence of Del Baker, plus the natural game qualities of the entire squad, overcome all obstacles.

Early rains gave Bartell and Gehringer a chance to use their ailing legs and stick around. Rowe's arm came back, and Del Baker was one of the few—almost the only one—who believed in Rowe.

"I just knew the Schoolboy still had it," Baker said no later than yesterday.

How many believed Hank Greenberg would be a good outfielder. Here was a veteran tackling a new job. But Hank did. One of the reasons was Del Baker's faith and support. Hank knew he could make his share of natural mistakes and Baker would understand. So he never had to press.

On the Spot

Bill McKechnie is the only one on the spot in this series. Not for himself—but for the National League. The National League hasn't won a big series since 1934. The main reason has been the Yankees. But the multitude doesn't figure on that.

If the Reds are beaten there will be the usual cry that the National League is still second rate. The National League proved the case to be different [illegible] 1935 both all-star games [illegible] season—Tampa in [illegible] leave [illegible] in July.

But the crowd only remembers today—not yesterday.

Baker and his Tigers are walking on velvet. They have already turned in one miracle. If they turn in another it will be that much more velvet. So McKechnie carries the greater pressure.

The main point is that Old Bill sheds pressure. It has been a big part of his life and he merely keeps the so-called even tenor of his way through it all. Bill has been around too long to crack under any strain. He takes it all in his easy-going stride. He has won four pennants—for three different clubs—and you don't need any alibi after that record.

Knowing both men, this is one series in which you hate to see either lose.

Newark Beats Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 1 (AP) — Blasting three Louisville pitchers for 15 hits behind the four-hit hurling of lanky George Washburn, Newark won the first game of the Little World Series tonight, 10 to 5, before a crowd of 7,700.

Cubs Even Series With White Sox

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP) — The Chicago Cubs, behind seven-hit pitching of rookie Vern Olsen and wobbly defensive work by their American League opponents, defeated the White Sox 8 to 2 today to square the city championship series at one victory apiece.

The Cubs collected nine hits off Thornton Lee, the losing hurler, and Pete Appleton, who relieved in the sixth. The White Sox blundered five times to the Cubs' one.

The National Leaguers picked up single runs in the second and third, and sent three across in the fifth on four hits and two errors. They got three more runs in the sixth on one hit, an error, a sacrifice and a base on balls.

Joe Kuhel's single, Julius Solters' triple and an infield out accounted for the two Sox runs in the sixth inning. Southpaw Olsen allowed two hits in the seventh but set the South Siders down in order in the final two innings.

Bill Herman, Cub second sacker, pulled a muscle and retired in the fifth inning and may be out tomorrow night.

Sidelights on Opening Game Of World Series

Cy Young and Noodles Hahn, Famous Old Pitchers, Attend Contest

By JOHN FRYE

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2 (AP) — Taking one thing with another, the Cincinnati Red fans would have settled to have the New York Yankees back again.

In the club house after the game, Manager Bill McKechnie of the local favorites, however, refused to be dazed or even to compare the Detroit Tigers with the Yankees.

"That's something I never do," said Bill.

The day's firsts:

First strikeout—Dick Bartell, first man up, by Paul Derringer.

First assist—Derringer, on Charlie Gehringer's hopper in the first.

First one-handed catch—By Barney McCosky, Tiger centerfielder, of Frank McCormick's liner that looked like the McCoy.

First error—By Bill Werber, Red third baseman, on Bruce Campbell's second inning bunt.

First run—By Hank Greenberg on Pinky Higgins' single.

First fireman—Whitey Moore, relieving Derringer in the big second.

First home run—Campbell.

Sights for sore eyes department: Cy Young, the Peolo, O., farmer, and Noodles Hahn, just a couple of old no-hit pitchers, chewing the rag in the Reds' dugout before the game. Noodles, who quit pitching when the first spitball he ever tried hurt his arm thirty or thirty-five years ago, is a retired government meat inspector. He works out with the Reds every day.

The second inning demonstrated that the Tigers, sluggers and otherwise, COULD hit curve ball pitching. This was debated previously. Also that the Reds' crack infield could crack. Witness errors by the Bills, Werber and Myers.

Campbell discovered that Jimmy Wilson, the Reds' reserve catcher, still can throw to second base at the age of forty. Jimmy cut him down like a saw-log when Bruce tried to steal a base in the third, and it was a double play, because Higgins had just missed a hot third strike.

Whitey Moore got a whale of a hand when he struck out Greenberg to open the fifth. Whitey proved that this was something else that could be done. Rudy York took the edge off, however, by following with a triple and Campbell killed it with a homer.

Harry Thobe, the Oxford, O., bricklayer and perennial clown, was on the field before the game with his red umbrella and half a uniform. So was Al Schacht, as usual. A lot of Red fans wished they would come back after that second inning.

Army Coach Is Pleased with Mazur's Work

Sophomore Back Runs, Passes and Kicks with Best Players in East

By WHITNEY MARTIN

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 2 (AP) — The Army doesn't make a practice of speaking above a whisper about its yearling, or sophomore, football players. If a combination of Grange, Thorpe and Gipp bobbed up he would be referred to casually as "a fairly promising candidate."

In view of this time-honored policy, a sturdy second-year man named Henry Mazur must be pretty good. No matter how they try to hide it, the name of Mazur keeps bulging out here and there in the conversation of the Cadet followers.

"All-America sure for next year," said one fan.

Captain Bill Wood, Army coach, is more reticent, but it's obvious he thinks rather highly of the lad from Lowell, Mass., who can do everything on a football field.

Backfield Is Light

He's a little on the light side—around 170—but he runs, passes and kicks with the best. Even so, he may not start the first game, so firm is the Army conviction that a man must prove himself first. But the general idea is that once he gets in it will take a team of mules to get him out.

Mazur is a welcome addition to a backfield which will be light, and which will place more stress on passing than usual. Frank Waddell, John Hatch and Dick Hennessy, all veterans, loom as possible running mates for Mazur in the eventual starting lineup.

Captain Wood lost ten lettermen, including seven starters, but he is used to that and the outlook is not too dreary. He has the foundation for a line in Captain Bill Gillis at center, Ray Murphy at guard, and Al Muzyk, transplanted from guard to tackle, and Stan Hutson is a sure bet for one end with Tom Farrell and Ken Hanst, both capable, battling for the other wing job.

Fine Pleb Squad

A very good 1939 Plebe squad is expected to provide other valuable raw material.

Just what the finished product will be when Wood gets through polishing this mixture of experience, inexperience and spirit remains to be seen, but the Cadets in a couple of early season scrimmages gave a hint that they might be worth watching. It has seeped out that they gave Columbia a pretty good going over in a practice scrimmage, and also outscored New York U.

The schedule, perhaps the toughest Army ever had, has Wood worried as much as anything. Starting with Williams next Saturday, the Cadets take on Cornell, Harvard, Lafayette, Notre Dame, Brown, Penn, Princeton and Navy.

About the Two Leaders

CINCINNATI—Thinking of Del Baker of Detroit and Bill McKechnie of the Reds, the two rival leaders, I turned back the clock thirty-five years to the first world series of 1905 when we had McGraw and Mack.

Many things can happen in thirty-five years. Wars come and go. Nations rise and fall and disappear.

In 1905 McGraw and Mack were two exact opposites. McGraw was a harsh, hard-driving leader, Connie Mack was on the milder, gentler side. Between them they won 19 pennants. And a flock of world series shows.

Today there is little difference between Baker and McKechnie in this present series. McKechnie is known as the Deacon. Baker could be known as the Bishop.

Both are mild, quiet people who rarely lift their voices. Both are distinctly leaders, not drivers. Neither believes in invective or abuse. Both believe in encouraging their athletes after some mistake, not in bawling them out.

Two Big Jobs

Both have turned in two great jobs this season. After the 1939 debacle against the crushing Yankees, few believed the Reds would come back with any steam. McKechnie told me differently at Tampa late last March.

"This club is too game for any such cave-in," he said. "We'll be back there again. We have too good a ball club to crack up. You don't crack up with Derringer, Walters and Thompson out there working."

Certainly not with Whitey Moore, Beggs and Turner on guard. McKechnie proved his point by taking the Reds to 100 victories, something few teams have won.

"We broke all fielding records," Bill tells you proudly. "We romped home."

The point is that Bill is proud of his team and the team is proud of Bill. What a difference from the Vitt-Cleveland layout.

The Baker Angle

I sat for an hour with both Baker and McKechnie together. Hot rivals on the field, they are close friends off the field.

Del Baker did an even more remarkable job. Back in March at Florida's Lakeland, Baker's Tigers were picked no better than fifth.

The infield looked to be shot with the waning Bartell and Gehringer at short and second—both supposed to be fading veterans. The pitching staff bordered along joke lines. Few believed the once famous Schoolboy Rowe would win six games. Bridges was over the hill. Buck Newsom was the main hope.

This Tiger outfit was a terrible looking affair last April as it started North. The whole team was loaded with melancholy "ifs".

But the crafty and soothing influence of Del Baker, plus the natural game qualities of the entire squad, overcome all obstacles.

Early rains gave Bartell and Gehringer a chance to use their ailing legs and stick around. Rowe's arm came back, and Del Baker was one of the few—almost the only one—who believed in Rowe.

"I just knew the Schoolboy still had it," Baker said no later than yesterday.

How many believed Hank Greenberg would be a good outfielder. Here was a veteran tackling a new job. But Hank did. One of the reasons was Del Baker's faith and support. Hank knew he could make his share of natural mistakes and Baker would understand. So he never had to press.

On the Spot

Bill McKechnie is the only one on the spot in this series. Not for himself—but for the National League. The National League hasn't won a big series since 1934. The main reason has been the Yankees. But the multitude doesn't figure on that.

If the Reds are beaten there will be the usual cry that the National League is still second rate. The National League proved the case to be different by winning [illegible] both all-star games [illegible] season—[illegible] Tampa in [illegible] leave [illegible] in July.

But the crowd only remembers today—not yesterday.

Baker and his Tigers are walking on velvet. They have already turned in one miracle. If they turn in another it will be that much more velvet. So McKechnie carries the greater pressure.

The main point is that Old Bill sheds pressure. It has been a big part of his life and he merely keeps the so-called even tenor of his way through it all. Bill has been around too long to crack under any strain. He takes it all in his easy-going stride. He has won four pennants—for three different clubs—and you don't need any alibi after that record.

Knowing both men, this is one series in which you hate to see either lose.

Cubs Even Series With White Sox

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP) — The Chicago Cubs, behind seven-hit pitching of rookie Vern Olsen and wobbly defensive work by their American League opponents, defeated the White Sox 8 to 2 today to square the city championship series at one victory apiece.

The Cubs collected nine hits off Thornton Lee, the losing hurler, and Pete Appleton, who relieved in the sixth. The White Sox blundered five times to the Cubs' one.

The National Leaguers picked up single runs in the second and third, and sent three across in the fifth on four hits and two errors. They got three more runs in the sixth on one hit, an error, a sacrifice and a base on balls.

Joe Kuhel's single, Julius Solters' triple and an infield out accounted for the two Sox runs in the sixth inning. Southpaw Olsen allowed two hits in the seventh but set the South Siders down in order in the final two innings.

Bill Herman, Cub second sacker, pulled a muscle and retired in the fifth inning and may be out tomorrow night.

Sidelights on Opening Game Of World Series

By JOHN FRYE

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2 (AP) — Taking one thing with another, the Cincinnati Red fans would have settled to have the New York Yankees back again.

In the club house after the game, Manager Bill McKechnie of the local favorites, however, refused to be dazed or even to compare the Detroit Tigers with the Yankees.

"That's something I never do," said Bill.

The day's firsts:

First strikeout—Dick Bartell, first man up, by Paul Derringer.

First assist—Derringer, on Charlie Gehringer's hopper in the first.

First one-handed catch—By Barney McCosky, Tiger centerfielder, of Frank McCormick's liner that looked like the McCoy.

First error—By Bill Werber, Red third baseman, on Bruce Campbell's second inning bunt.

First run—By Hank Greenberg on Pinky Higgins' single.

First fireman—Whitey Moore, relieving Derringer in the big second.

First home run—Campbell.

Sights for sore eyes department: Cy Young, the Peolo, O. farmer, and Noodles Hahn, just a couple of old no-hit pitchers, chewing the rag in the Reds' dugout before the game. Noodles, who quit pitching when the first spitball he ever tried hurt his arm thirty or thirty-five years ago, is a retired government meat inspector. He works out with the Reds every day.

The second inning demonstrated that the Tigers, sluggers and otherwise, COULD hit curve ball pitching. This was debated previously. Also that the Reds' crack infield could crack. Witness errors by the Bills, Werber and Myers.

Campbell discovered that Jimmy Wilson, the Reds' reserve catcher, still can throw to second base at the age of forty. Jimmy cut him down like a saw-log when Bruce tried to steal a base in the third, and it was a double play, because Higgins had just missed a hot third strike.

Whitey Moore got a whale of a hand when he struck out Greenberg to open the fifth. Whitey proved that this was something else that could be done. Rudy York took the edge off, however, by following with a triple and Campbell killed it with a homer.

Harry Thobe, the Oxford, O., bricklayer and perennial clown, was on the field before the game with his red umbrella and half a uniform. So was Al Schacht, as usual. A lot of Red fans wished they would come back after that second inning.

Tigers Crush Reds in Opening Game 7 to 2

Derringer Driven From the Mound In Second Inning

Buck Newsom Turns Cincinnati Back with Eight Scattered Hits

Tigers Send Ten Men To Bat in Second Inning Scoring Five Runs

By JUDSON BAILEY

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2 (AP)—The powerhouse of the Detroit Tigers switched on a shocking five-run rally against Paul Derringer today and crushed the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 2, in the first game of the 1940 World Series as a crowd of 31,793 stricken Rhineland fans looked on aghast.

The ease with which the Tiger sluggers swept over the heroic National League righthander with five bunched singles in the second inning took all the sparkle out of the remainder of the game and the crowd was hardly awed by the triple and home run that Rudy York and Bruce Campbell hit in succession in the fifth inning.

Buck Newsom, the Giant, glowering righthander who set the pace for the Tigers in their prowl to the American League championship, backed up the hitting of his teammates with an eight-hit pitching job that kept the feeble Reds shut out except in the fourth and eighth stanzas.

It was as uneven a struggle as any test between two champions could be.

Ten Men Bat in Second

In the big second inning ten Tigers went to bat as Derringer desperately tried to stem the tide and finally had to give way to Whitey Moore after all the runs were in and only one out.

Hank Greenberg, who was handcuffed all the rest of the afternoon, led off the bambardment by smacking the first pitch into the left field corner for what would ordinarily have been a double, although Jim Ripple sent his scurrying back to first with a tremendous throw.

Then York singled into center, and Bill Werber made a high throw on Campbell's sacrifice bunt and the bases were loaded. Pinky Higgins singled the two leading runners home and Billy Sullivan walked to again jam the stations.

Newsom forced Campbell at the plate, but Dick Bartell singled for two runs and Barney McCosky hit home another before Moore finally was flagged out of the bull pen to choke off the Tigers.

Derringer, who had pitched a magnificent though losing game against the New York Yankees in the opener last year, showed no sign of weakness as he retired the first three men in order in the first inning and the explosion in the second was all the more spectacular because of its surprise.

Moore pitched effectively until removed for a pinch-hitter in the last of the eighth, although he gave up the othe rtwo runs when Detroit began to solve his fast ball and once walked three men in the seventh inning to load the bases. He gave up five hits, but struck out seven sluggers, including Greenberg twice to the intense enjoyment of the home crowd.

Elmer Riddle, a rookie righthander, who didn't figure ever to get closer to the series that the bull pen, came into the game in the ninth and retired the Tigers in order, Greenberg popping up a foul to rookie catcher Bill Baker and York and Campbell striking out.

Detroit's Attack Devastating

The effect of this finish, however, was only to keep up the Reds' self respect, because Detroit's dynamite was so devastating that little hope could be held out for the crippled Cincinnati club at the end. Even the Reds vaunted fielding collapsed today as Werber, Billy Myers and Baker each make errors.

In contrast the Tigers were a near perfect club as they rolled to their opening victory. Only in the two innings in which the Reds scored did Newsom, a 21 and 5 winner during the regular season, give more than one hit in an inning and the only error by the reputedly poor fielding Bengals was a dropped ball by shortstop Bartell on an attempted steal.

In the fourth inning when Cincinnati chalked up its first run, Ival Goodman slammed the first pitch into center field for a two-bagger and scored two plays later on a single to right by Jim Ripple. In between Buck McCormick popped up and afterward 40-year-old Jim Wilson, the Reds' starting catcher, grounded into a double play.

The Redlegs' parting gesture in the eighth started when Werber doubled between McCosky and Campbell, advanced on Mike McCormick's grounder and tallied easily on Goodman's line single to center.

Cincinnati managed to get runners on base in all but two of the other frames, but were held helpless just the same as Newsom snuffed out little rays of hope one by one.

Joost Makes Two Hits

Mike McCormick doubled in the first but never got off the bag. Eddie Joost, the slim little second baseman, who was subbing for the injured Lonney Frey but was not

STARS IN OPENING GAME OF SERIES

Buck Newsom

Newsom held Cincinnati to eight scattered hits yesterday as he pitched Detroit to a 7 to 2 victory in the opening game of the 1940 World Series.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—If past years are an accurate barometer, the World Series this year will be played before two or three hundred thousand fans and two or three ball players.

It's an odd commentary on the mental gymnastics of the Major League ball players that, when the sport puts on its greatest show, the athletes are present only unless they are fortunate enough to be in the cast.

The postman take a walk on his day off, the motorman takes a street car ride, the actor takes in a show, and a faster takes in his belt, but your ball player takes nothing but the first train home. You'd think the sheriff was after them the way they fade into the woodwork immediately after the final game of the season.

There is some extenuation for this seeming snubbing of the World Series. In the first place, they are anxious to get home after a long season, and can't be blamed for that. In the second place, they've seen so much baseball the World Series is just another bowl of rice to them.

However, the World Series is their show. If the fans who pay the ball players' salaries took the same attitude as the non-participating players the event would be pretty much of a washout.

The fact that the players would have to pay their way in also might be a factor in their snubbing. They probably reason, quite logically, that it's too much like a woodchopper paying to watch another guy chop wood.

Ball players, as a class, are not what might be called speedy men with a dollar. The more they can get for nothing the better.

Their bread and butter is free publicity, but they are curt, if not actually hostile, when approached for stories. You'd think they had just fanned on a low curvfie, outside, with the bases full.

Two or three months ago the New York sports writers held an outing The three Metropolitan teams were in town, and it was an off day. In fact, the outing was arranged on that date so the players, all invited, would be able to attend.

The turnout of ball players was terrific. It consisted of Jake Powell, Yankee outfielder. The others just couldn't be bothered although the party was given by the boys whose scribbling paints the ball players in romantic colors and lures the fans who pay the money that pays the fat salaries.

Naturally there are welcome exceptions to the general classification. Hank Greenberg, when not participating, is a regular attendant at series games, and Moe Berg usually is among those present.

Also, some of the players are as affable gentlemen as you might hope to meet. This is particularly true of the older players, who have figured out that maybe, after all, they are just fortune's children and that perhaps they owe the public as much as the public owes them.

(The roar of the crowd is music to the ears of the players, but what most of them need is a class in music appreciation.

Western Maryland Practices Hard

WESTMINSTER, Md., Oct. 2 (AP)—A cold rain and a soggy field failed to slow down practice in the Western Maryland Terrors' grid camp today, and Coach Charlie Havens put his squad through a strenuous two hour session.

Pass defense, tackling and blocking were stressed, indicating Havens believes his charges still need more work in these departments. The backfield men, however, got an additional workout on some of the fine points of attack, and Havens expressed satisfaction with their progress.

Only casualty of the week was Macpike, the Terrors' All-Maryland fullback, who has been taking it easy because of bumps suffered in practice.

York singled into short right center and Greenberg started for third but was forced to slide back to second base by Goodman's return throw. Higgins singled into center scoring Greenberg and York and sending Campbell to second. Sullivan walked again filling bases. Whitey Moore went into action in the Reds' bull pen. Newsom sent a bounder to F. McCormick who threw to Wilson forcing Campbell and leaving the bases filled. Bartell lined a single past Derringer's head and into center field scoring Higgings and Sullivan and putting Newsom on second. McCosky singled to deep left scoring Newsom and putting Bartell on second.

Moore relieved Derringer as the crowd gave a complimentary cheer.

Bi-State Loop Series Will Resume Sunday

The second clash in the final three-game series for the Bi-State Baseball League championship will be played next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Keyser, W. Va., instead of on Saturday, it was announced yesterday by President Arthur G. Ramey.

Ramey said that both managers —Enoch Price of the Frostburg American Legion outfit and Joe Carbacio of the Keyser Moose —had requested that the contest be moved back one day.

The final series between the Legion, which won two straight from the Midland Red Sox in the preliminary playoff, and the Moose, who went to the finals by turning back the Cumberland Colts two games to one, opened last Sunday with Frostburg the winner.

Secretary Don Shires said today that if Sunday's game is postponed, the series must be concluded by Sunday, October 13. If necessary, a doubleheader will be played then.

Boys Too Strong; Loose Their Shirts

RICHMOND, Va., (AP)—This is a shirt tale.

Tennessee and Duke To Meet On Saturday

Game Expected To Be One of Hardest Fought of the Season

By FRANK B. GILBRETH

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 1 (AP)—Anyone who thinks that absence makes the heart grow fonder, or that time heals all wounds, might take a squint at the tropical disturbances centered around the campuses of Duke and Tennessee universities.

After foregoing each other's company for two years, the Blue Devils and the Vols have made a date in Knoxville Saturday to renew a football feud which makes that little fracas between the Hatfields and the McCoys look like a sorority initiation.

The feud actually is based on the rivalry of two of the south's greatest coaches, Wallace Wade of Duke and his No. 1 Jonah, Bob Neyland of Tennessee. It's no secret that the Duke thin man would rather whip Major Bob than to come out with bingo in Pasadena on New Year's.

Game Is a [illegible]

The fans apparently consider the game a natural, for all 33,000 seats in the Tennessee stadium have been sold out for weeks.

The game already is being billed as the Rose Bowl consolation, and this Bowl business explains why Duke and Tennessee have not grown fonder in absentia.

In 1938, the first year that the schools decided they could get along without each other very well, both teams were undefeated but Duke was unscored upon and got the Bowl bid.

Many Tennessee supporters com-

Prices Advance for the Fourth Consecutive Session

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—Rails and steels followed the lead of chemicals today in a late advance which carried the whole stock market higher.

The Associated Press advance of sixty selected stocks rose .3 of a point to 45.4. It was the fourth consecutive rising session. Transactions totaled 769,900 shares compared with 207,100 yesterday.

All indices of domestic business and industrial activities continued to show improvement; freight car loadings were estimated at a new peak for the year and electric power output increased. The price of steel scrap rose fifty cents a ton.

Leaders in the stock upturn were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible Steel, Chrysler, Case, Owens-Illinois, Allied Chemical, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, Phelps Dodge, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania Railroad, Cerro De Pasco and Electric Boat.

Among the gainers of a point or more in the curb—where the turnover was 107,000 shares compared with 111,000 yesterday—were American Cyanamid "B," Aviation and Transportation, Midwest Pipe and Supply, Pioneer Gold and Sherwin Williams.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Getting on with New Neighbors Is Discussed

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

When the family move, new problems face the growing children over three or four, especially those of school age. For the lad between six and ten or twelve, adjustment to the other children of the neighborhood may prove a serious ordeal. His courage will be tried. If he is able to stand in his own defense with his fists most of his problems will be ended. On the other hand, if he ranks high in many play skills, excells in craftmanship and creative fun, he may be able to win a comfortable place without a test by physical combat.

Handling Bullies

His parents will make it easier for him if they will welcome the children of the neighborhood to the premises and guide them in satisfying activities there, making clear that a few rules must be observed. These wise parents will win the respect of the children and their parents of the neighborhood. Especially will they win the good graces of the bullies of the neighborhood. To this end the parents will be careful not to rebuke these roughnecks on the neighborhood playground. Rather these parents will find ways to hire one or two of the gang leaders to run some errands and to praise them honestly in the presence of their own parents.

There will be the new bullies at school and on the way to it. Fortunate your child if he learns not to fear them. Your daughter will have similar experiences, for there are girl bullies as well as boy bullies; and girls must learn to get along with the boys as well as with other girls.

Entering a new school, even in the same city, will require the learning of many new ways and new methods of school work. When your child moves from country or village to city or vice versa to adjustments to be made will be big.

Be Tactful

Be careful not to compare the new neighborhood and school unfovorably with the old one. Try to induce your child also to be cautious in this respect. Rather he and you should look for the superior items in the new setting and let others know you have observed them. We like people, you see, who make us feel that where we live, and what we have and do, are worth while. Other people like us for a similar reason. We and our children will get on best in a new school and community as we and our children find ways of making our new neighbors, teachers and friends like us.

You might find some good suggestions in my booklet, Learning to be Likeable, which I trust is in your public library. If you would like to have a list of books on getting along with other people, cultivating good personality and good mental health, write me at 235 East Forty-fifth street, N. Y. City enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

MAISIE PLEADS FOR A JOB

Theaters Today

Freddie Bartholomew Is Featured in Classic

Freddie Bartholomew, who recently appeared in "Swiss Family Robinson," has a featured role in the picturization of "Tom Brown's School Days," a Gene Towne-Graham Baker production, now showing at the New Liberty theater.

As Harry East, loyal companion to Tom Brown, young Bartholomew is said to top his gripping performances in "Captain Courageous" and "Lord Jeff." East, it will be recalled by those who have read the Thomas Hughes classic, is the lad who takes Tom Brown into tow when the latter comes to Rugby.

The pair become chums immediately, plotting to counter the bullying regime engineered by Flashman, the school terror, portrayed by Billy Halop, a Dead End Kid. Their plans lead to night rides, fist fights and other fast-packed adventures which provide the movie with an abundance of exciting entertainment.

The role of Tom Brown is portrayed by sixteen-year-old Jimmy Lydon. Sir Cedric Hardwicke, character player, is cast as Dr. Arnold, the martinet schoolmaster who believed in building a strong empire by building the characters of the future citizens. The picture features Josephine Hutchinson, Ernest Cossart, Gale Storm and Hughie Green.

Stage Revue Is Booked at Strand

Harry Clark's "Pan American Revue," a stage show will open at midnight tonight at the Strand also appearing tomorrow and Saturday.

Clark has secured a number of vaudeville acts that have appeared in North and South America. The opening act is by the Taketas, three orientals who perform atop a high pole and who do foot juggling. Bob Hopkins is a mimic and song stylist and in his act he impersonates Walter Winchell, Ben Bernie, Fred Allen, Bing Crosby and other famous stars. Van and Arvola are dancers and also play the xylophone.

Another act is by Shay and Prosper, who offer comedy acrobatics. Francine is a singer of swing songs from Brazil, who was featured with Earl Carroll's Hollywood Revue. The beauty chorus comprises twelve girls picked for beauty as well as dancing ability. They execute the rhumba, the tango, the congo and other colorful dances. Carlos and his South American rhumba band will furnish the music.

The screen show will be Akim Tamiroff and Gladys George in Paramount's "The Way of All Flesh." A program of featurettes is in the program.

Card Game a Highlight In Garden Feature

A card game is a highlight sequence in Universal's Bob Burns comedy, "Alias the Deacon," now at the Garden theater.

Burns in the title role appears as an amiable card sharp who masquerades as a deacon while he solves the troubles of his friends. The story reaches its climax when Bob turns the tables on a couple of small town crooks and relieves them of their money.

Jack Carson and Thurston Hall play Bob's adversaries in the historic poker game. Also in "Alias the Deacon" are Mischa Auer, Dennis O'Keefe, Peggy Moran, Spencer Charters, and Guinn "Big Boy" Williams.

A veteran character actor of the screen, C. Aubrey Smith appears as "The Judge," a gentleman gambler of the old school, in "City of Chance," Twentieth Century-Fox drama also showing at the Garden theater. Lynn Bari, Donald Woods and Amanda Duff are also featured.

Ates Has Comedy Role In Feature at Garden

Roscoe Ates plays the comic Gloomy in Monogram's "Cowboy from Sundown," opening tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

Ates played role after role in which stuttering was about the only thing he was called upon to do. Then, determined to prove that he could act as well as stutter, he stopped stuttering completely. Now he is a straight comic.

What few people know, however, is that Roscoe Ates used to stutter naturally, and cured himself. Ates has also cured others, and definitely states that there is no such thing as a "hopeless" case of stuttering. He firmly believes that he can cure anyone.

Ates plays the role of Gloomy, Tex Ritter's deputy sheriff. His romance with "Prunella Wallaby," an old maid with a terrible temper, causes most of the laughs in this picture, which is the story of a feud between the law and the cattlemen, after a mysterious plague strikes the community.

Others in the cast include Slim Andrews, Carleton Young, Dave O'Brien, Patsy Moran, and Pauline Haddon.

Adventures of Maisie Are Depicted in Film

Highlights of "Gold Rush Maisie," now at the Maryland theater, include the demise of Maisie's ancient jallopy, her return to the ghost town at night in the equally dilapidated car of the itinerant farmers, her accidental discovery of gold ore and the party celebrating the prospectors' strike. Maisie both sings and dances at the party.

Based on an original story by Wilson Collison, the screen play is the work of Betty Reinhardt and Mary C. McCall, Jr.

IN PARAMOUNT FILM

Glady George is featured with Akim Tamiroff in Paramount's "Way of All Flesh" showing Friday and Saturday at the Strand theater.

There are no colored units in army air service nor in naval a tion.

Capital Handicap At Laurel Taken By Jay Jay

Seven-year-old Horse Owned by Howard Bruce Pays Backers $12.30

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 2 (AP)—Jay Jay, seven-year-old chestnut gelding owned by Howard Bruce of Baltimore, won the $7,500-added Capital Handicap, Laurel's opening day feature, for the second time today.

Charging through the mud and mist as though he were treading on velvet, Jay Jay scored a half-length triumph over W. L. Brann's speedy mud-runner, Pictor, while the heavily favored Roman, owned by Joseph E. Widener, finished third.

It was back in 1936 when Jay Jay first won the Capital. Younger and faster then, he ran the six furlongs in 1:11 4-5. Today, what with mud and weight of four more years, it took him 1:13 2-5 to cover the distance.

At that, he made the same time that Sun Egret did in winning last year. And to those among the crowd of about 8,000 who bet $2 on his nose and got $12.30 back, Jay Jay's time was only incidental.

The victory was worth $6,675 to Bruce, former Maryland Democratic National Committeeman.

Out of fifteen sprinters named overnight, only seven went postward for the twenty-first running of the Capital. Roman was made the 6-to-5 favorite, with Pictor held at 7 to 2 and Jay Jay at 5 to 1.

pick up the dust on the mound between pitches. Goodman popped to Bartell. Newsom got two strikes on F. McCormick and then walked him. Ripple raised a pop foul near the Detroit dugout and Sullivan gathered it in.

Seventh Inning Tigers

Moore walked Gehringer, the fourth beind a wild pitch but Gehringer was not able to get beyond first. Greenberg struck out for the second straight time as the crowd hooted, Moore throwing his fast ball past the slugger twice. York got behind two and nothing but waited out a base on balls. The paid attendance was announced as 31,793. Moore, his control apparently gone, walked Campbell on five pitches to fill the bases. Joe Beggs, Cincinnati's ace relief pitcher, immediately went into action in the bull pen. Higgins popped to F. McCormick near the pitcher's box. Goodman made a sensational one-handed catch of Sullivan's liner into deep right field.

No runs, no hits, no errors, three left.

Seventh Inning Reds

Riggs batted for Wilson and struck out on four pitches. Joost lined to left field and Greenberg reached up and speared the ball. Myers raised a high fly to Campbell.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Eighth Inning Tigers

Baker entered the game as catcher for the Reds. Myers came over behind second base to get Newsom's grounder and throw him out. Bartell singled sharply to right center. McCosky forced M. McCormick back almost to the bleachers in right center to catch his fly. Bartell attempted to steal second and Baker's throw was low, bounding into center field and Bartell reached third. (No stolen base). Gehringer lined to M. McCormick.

Eighth Inning Reds

Craft batted for Moore. Craft flied high to Greenberg just inside the left field foul line. Werber drove a double between McCosky and Campbell in right center as both fielders slowed up. M. McCormick grounded to York, who beat him to first to make the out unassisted. Werber took third on the play. Goodman smashed a clean single into center field scoring Werber. F. McCormick raised a high fly to McCosky.

One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

Ninth Inning Tigers

Riddle came in to pitch for Cincinnati. Baker ran up to the edge Cincinnati's dugout to take Greenberg's foul. York was called out on strikes. Campbell struck out.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Ninth Inning Reds

Ripple flied to Greenberg. Baker singled off Newsom's glove, barely beating the pitcher's throw to first. Joost grounded to Higgins forcing Baker at second, Higgins to Gehringer, beating the throw to first. Myers flied to Campbell.

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 2—Plans for a talking-match between Louis Norman Newsom, of Detroit and Leland Stanford MacPhail of Brooklyn, baseball's two most eminent barbers, the winner to match tonsils with Max Baer at three paces, have fallen through. The press of World Series business on Mr. Newsom is too great.

"While I concede nothing to MacPhail at his best," said the extensive right-handed pitcher, tersely cutting down his statement to four thousand words, "I owe it to my supporters to stick to pitching at this time. No doubt I could outstay MacPhail with one lung tied behind me, but it couldn't be my best effort, and the public deserves nothing but my best. Meanwhile, why don't this MacPhail go out and get himself a reputation?"

So saying, Mr. Newsom told the story about the three mules and the story about the two punch-drunk Portuguese sailors and hurried off to whip himself into shape for his next World Series start.

When Mr. Newsom suggests that Mr. MacPhail get himself a reputation it merely shows that he is a provincial American Leaguer, and does not know who is in the National League.

Why Durocher Lost Weight

In the National League, Mr. MacPhail's sound-box, which contains a special device for changing the needle without pausing, is the envy and despair of all rivals. Mr. Leo Durocher, the Brooklyn manager, formerly a non-stop conversationalist, has lost thirty pounds since he became associated with Mr. MacPhail, and wears a beaten, hangdok look. Mr. Durocher has not got a word in edgewise since November of 1939, when Mr. MacPhail stopped to use a toothpick on a gold filling in the lower right mezzanine.

Out here the day before the World Series began, Mr. MacPhail told a story, no doubt the product of his fevered imagination, which caused his hearers to swoon dead away with astonishment. True, their resistance was already badly weakened. They were in no kind of shape to stand a shock.

"Speaking of Lombardi," said Mr. MacPhail, in the course of his late forenoon address, "Here's a funny thing that came off when I was with the Cincinnati Club. I had to sign Lombardi up. I knew he was famous for not talking, so I decided to outwit him, make him speak first. We sat in my office for forty-five minutes without saying a word, till he finally broke down and made the first remark."

At this point Mr. MacPhail's listeners slid gently under the table, paralyzed with shock. The idea of Mr. MacPhail abstaining for forty-five minutes was too much for them in their feeble condition.

"That's a fact," said Leland Stanford, turning to pot a couple of helpless sitters on his left. "Forty-five minutes of silence. Lombardi was the first to speak. I forgot what he said."

The Phenomenon Explained

The only explanation for this phenomenon, if it really occurred, is that Mr. MacPhail, under the influence of some powerful narcotic like vanilla, fell asleep for three-quarters of an hour, and that Mr. Lombardi let him lie. During waking hours, a pause of forty-five seconds in Mr. MacPhail's flow of patter is enough to send his relatives flying for the coroner.

In spite of Mr. Newsom's default, it may be possible to bring these two ear-benders together later in the season. The match should be close, though the styles are different. MacPhail has volume and intensity. Newsom, by droning in low tones like a wasp with a hangover, conserves his stamina. Neither of them has ever been known to listen, which is a weakness of many otherwise promising ear-chewers.

The winner, as I said, would be entitled to a match with Max Baer, who won the title by pinning James J. Johnston to a wall with a four-syllable word and leaving him for dead after four hours and fifteen minutes of gruelling struggle, without megaphones.

Baer vs. MacPhail! There's a match to make a promoter's heart leap so long as he doesn't have to listen to it.

Mountaineers Scrimmage For Fordham Game

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP) — Coach Bill Kern pushed the West Virginia Mountaineers through their third hard scrimmage of the week today and announced Charley Seabright, of Benwood, W. Va., quarterback for the past two years, will be acting captain for Saturday's game in New York against Fordham.

A squad of thirty players will leave tomorrow at 7:30 p. m., travelling by bus to Greensburg to board a train for the East. They will work out late Friday at Randall's Island, where the game will be played, then go to the Knollwood country club at White Plains for the night.

Excepting for Vic Peelish, Sophomore guard who was hurt in the Westminster game, the team appeared to be in good condition. If Peelish is unable to play Kern said Sophomore Vincent Cinino likely would take his place.

About 18,000 fans are expected to witness the game in which the heavy Rams will be heavy favorites to win.

Foundling Wins a Prize

COOK, Neb. (AP)—Robert Johns picked up a lost pig on the highway last spring. At the county fair, "Orphan Annie" won a blue ribbon.

BETTY DOES IT AGAIN

Derringer

expected to make his bat heard, singled with two out in the second and again to lead off the fifth when he got as far as second by Bartell's dropping catcher Sullivan's throw.

In the ninth Baker, who had taken over the catching duties after Wilson was removed for a pinch batter in the sixth, singled with one out but was forced at second on the next play.

Newsom, besides keeping his hits spaced, gave up only one base on balls, this going to Buck McCormick with two out in the sixth.

The Reds made fine fielding plays occasionally and most of their hits were clean and sharp. But there was not the slightest continuity in their attack and the failure of Derringer, their surest pitching bet, was heart-breaking to Cincinnati players and their followers.

Derringer had performed hurling wonders against American League batters for many years, in the World Series and the all-Star games.

Tomorrow the Reds will have to come out with Bucky Walters, whose record of 22 and 10 is not much better than Derringer's 20 and 12 and whose fast sinker proved a delight to the Yankees a year ago. Whether he can stop the Tigers was problematical and whether it would do any good to slow them up was doubtful.

Walters and Rowe Today

The Tigers had Schoolboy Rowe, hero of Detroit's last two trips into the big baseball classic, ready to go to the mound. He won 16 and lost only 3 during the regular season and although incapable of working as often as Newsom, has generally been more effective.

He will have Birdie Tebbetts, a better catcher than Sullivan, working with him.

Greenberg was something less than a glamour boy, never getting the ball out of the infield except for the single that started Detroit's big blast.

But Frank McCormick, the clean-up man and only "power" hitter in the Reds' lineup, failed to get even one hit, being blanked with Wilson, Myers and all the pitchers and pinch-hitters McKechnie used.

The "Deacon" said he did not expect to use Ernie Lombardi, his lumbering but hard-hitting catcher, unless a hit meant the ball game. Lombardi is on the sidelines because of a sprained angle. Wilson returns to the receiving line tomorrow and Joost remains at second.

After this second game the clubs will leave immediately for Detroit for two, and if necessary three, other contests. The prospect of returning to Crosley Field later wasn't mentioned.

Tennessee and

plained that the Devils had played a pushover schedule, and allowed as how Texas Christian or Tennessee would have been a better selection.

And when Duke lost to Southern Cal in Pasadena, even though the winning touchdown came in the last minute of play, there were those at Knoxville who said "I told you so."

Situation Reversed

The situation was reversed last year. Duke supporters admitted that their team was out of the Rose Bowl picture, because of a one-point defeat by Pittsburgh, but declared Tennessee had played an easy schedule. They also let it be known that in their opinion, if Duke had played Tennessee, the Vols would have spent the Christmas holidays at home.

When Tennessee was whipped by Southern Cal, Duke fans admitted none too reluctantly that they were not exactly flabbergasted.

Wade never has defeated Neyland at Knoxville, even while Wade was coaching at Alabama. Neyland defeated Wade once at Alabama, but never has whipped him in Duke stadium. In a nine-game series between the coaches, Neyland won six, lost two and tied one.

A Wade-coached Duke team pinned a good licking on Tennessee in 1935. The score was 19-6.

You may remember that 1935 was the year Neyland was on leave from Tennessee.

Five Navy Grid Players Dropped To "B" Squad

Middies Work on Soggy Field in Preparation for Cincinnati

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 2 (AP)—Five players were dropped to the "B" Squad today as Navy's gridiron forces worked on a soggy field to perfect offensive formations for the Cincinnati game Saturday.

Chester Lee and John Schmitz, ends; George Ringenberg and Bob Nye, guards and Charlie Smith, center, of Baltimore, were demoted and Mike McTighe, end; Bob Day, guard; Joe Donahue, tackle, and Bill Weyrauch, center, were elevated to the varsity.

Willis Maxson, reserve end who "clicked" in the William and Mary battle, was at left end today in place of Bob Zoeller, who is nursing bruises.

Joe Sliwka has recovered from his facial injury and was in the lineup at guard. The backs today were Harrell, quarterback; Busik, left half; Boothe, right half, and Werner, fullback.

When the "B" Squad ran off Cincinnati plays against the Varsity, Gebert replaced Busik, who hasn't sufficiently recovered from a leg injury sustained last Saturday.

Maryland Gridders Prepare for Penn

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 2 (AP)—University of Maryland gridders went through a long, but light drill today in preparation for the Pennsylvania game Saturday at Philadelphia.

The Terps spent about two hours on the field, working on defense and offense. Both were conducted by dummy scrimmage.

Coaches were particularly pleased with the return of Jack Gillmore, sophomore triple threat back. This will give them a capable player to back up Mearle Duvall, junior letterman, who will start at left half, and who is an able passer and runner. Gillmore can also help quarterback Joe Murphy with the kicking.

Tutor Conrad, probably the fastest man on the squad, has been shaping up nicely at running guard, and with Frank Heyer gives the Terps two active men in this position. Both are comparatively light, but agile.

Tigers Crush Reds in Opening Game 7 to 2

Derringer Driven From the Mound In Second Inning

Buck Newsom Turns Cincinnati Back with Eight Scattered Hits

Tigers Send Ten Men To Bat in Second Inning Scoring Five Runs

By JUDSON BAILEY

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2 (AP)—The powerhouse of the Detroit Tigers switched on a shocking five-run rally against Paul Derringer today and crushed the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 2, in the first game of the 1940 World Series as a crowd of 31,793 stricken Rhineland fans looked on aghast.

The ease with which the Tiger sluggers swept over the heroic National League righthander with five bunched singles in the second inning took all the sparkle out of the remainder of the game and the crowd was hardly awed by the triple and home run that Rudy York and Bruce Campbell hit in succession in the fifth inning.

Buck Newsom, the Giant, glowering righthander who set the pace for the Tigers in their prowl to the American League championship, backed up the hitting of his teammates with an eight-hit pitching job that kept the feeble Reds shut out except in the fourth and eighth stanzas.

It was as uneven a struggle as any test between two champions could be.

Ten Men Bat in Second

In the big second inning ten Tigers went to bat as Derringer desperately tried to stem the tide and finally had to give way to Whitey Moore after all the runs were in and only one out.

Hank Greenberg, who was handcuffed all the rest of the afternoon, led off the bambardment by smacking the first pitch into the left field corner for what would ordinarily have been a double, although Jim Ripple sent his scurrying back to first with a tremendous throw.

Then York singled into center, and Bill Werber made a high throw on Campbell's sacrifice bunt and the bases were loaded. Pinky Higgins singled the two leading runners home and Billy Sullivan walked to again jam the stations.

Newsom forced Campbell at the plate, but Dick Bartell singled for two runs and Barney McCosky hit home another before Moore finally was flagged out of the bull pen to choke off the Tigers.

Derringer, who had pitched a magnificent though losing game against the New York Yankees in the opener last year, showed no sign of weakness as he retired the first three men in order in the first inning and the explosion in the second was all the more spectacular because of its surprise.

Moore pitched effectively until removed for a pinch-hitter in the last of the eighth, although he gave up the othe rtwo runs when Detroit began to solve his fast ball and once walked three men in the seventh inning to load the bases. He gave up five hits, but struck out seven sluggers, including Greenberg twice to the intense enjoyment of the home crowd.

Elmer Riddle, a rookie righthander, who didn't figure ever to get closer to the series that the bull pen, came into the game in the ninth and retired the Tigers in order, Greenberg popping up a foul to rookie catcher Bill Baker and York and Campbell striking out.

Detroit's Attack Devastating

The effect of this finish, however, was only to keep up the Reds' self respect, because Detroit's dynamite was so devastating that little hope could be held out for the crippled Cincinnati club at the end. Even the Reds' vaunted fielding collapsed today as Werber, Billy Myers and Baker each make errors.

In contrast the Tigers were a near perfect club as they rolled to their opening victory. Only in the two innings in which the Reds scored did Newsom, a 21 and 5 winner during the regular season, give more than one hit in an inning and the only error by the reputedly poor fielding Bengals was a dropped ball by shortstop Bartell on an attempted steal.

In the fourth inning when Cincinnati chalked up its first run, Ival Goodman slammed the first pitch into center field for a two-bagger and scored two plays later on a single to right by Jim Ripple. In between Buck McCormick popped up and afterward 40-year-old Jim Wilson, the Reds' starting catcher, grounded into a double play.

The Redlegs' parting gesture in the eighth started when Werber doubled between McCosky and Campbell, advanced on Mike McCormick's grounder and tallied easily on Goodman's line single to center.

Cincinnati managed to get runners on base in all but two of the other frames, but were held helpless just the same as Newsom snuffed out little rays of hope one by one.

Joost Makes Two Hits

Mike McCormick doubled in the first but never got off the bag. Eddie Joost, the slim little second baseman, who was subbing for the injured Lonney Frey but was not

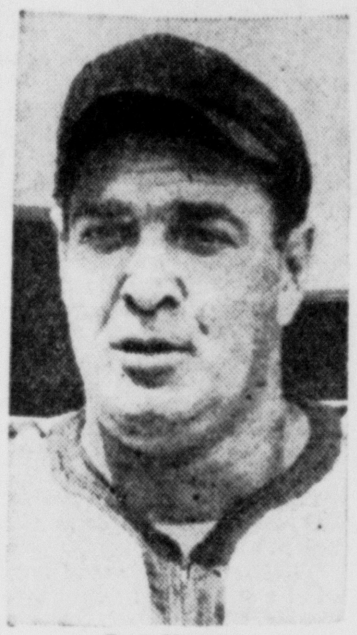
STARS IN OPENING GAME OF SERIES



Buck Newsom

Newsom held Cincinnati to eight scattered hits yesterday as he pitched Detroit to a 7 to 2 victory in the opening game of the 1940 World Series.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—If past years are an accurate barometer, the World Series this year will be played before two or three hundred thousand fans and two or three ball players.

It's an odd commentary on the mental gymnastics of the Major League ball players that, when the sport puts on its greatest show, the athletes are present only unless they are fortunate enough to be in the cast.

The postman take a walk on his day off, the motorman takes a street car ride, the actor takes in a show, and a faster takes in his belt, but your ball player takes nothing but the first train home. You'd think the sheriff was after them the way they fade into the woodwork immediately after the final game of the season.

There is some extenuation for this seeming snubbing of the World Series. In the first place, they are anxious to get home after a long season, and can't be blamed for that. In the second place, they've seen so much baseball the World Series is just another bowl of rice to them.

However, the World Series is their show. If the fans who pay the ball players' salaries took the same attitude as the non-participating players the event would be pretty much of a washout.

The fact that the players would have to pay their way in also might be a factor in their snubbing. They probably reason, quite logically, that it's too much like a woodchopper paying to watch another guy chop wood.

Ball players, as a class, are not what might be called speedy men with a dollar. The more they can get for nothing the better.

Their bread and butter is free publicity, but they are curt, if not actually hostile, when approached for stories. You'd think they had just fanned on a low curvfie, outside, with the bases full.

Two or three months ago the New York sports writers held an outing. The three Metropolitan teams were in town, and it was an off day. In fact, the outing was arranged on that date so the players, all invited, would be able to attend.

The turnout of ball players was terrific. It consisted of Jake Powell, Yankee outfielder. The others just couldn't be bothered although the party was given by the boys whose scribbling paints the ball players in romantic colors and lures the fans who pay the money that pays the fat salaries.

Naturally there are welcome exceptions to the general classification. Hank Greenberg, when not participating, is a regular attendant at series games, and Moe Berg usually is among those present.

Also, some of the players are as affable gentlemen as you might hope to meet. This is particularly true of the older players, who have figured out that maybe, after all, they are just fortune's children and that perhaps they owe the public as much as the public owes them.

(The roar of the crowd is music to the ears of the players, but what most of them need is a class in music appreciation.

Western Maryland Practices Hard

WESTMINSTER, Md., Oct. 2 (AP)—A cold rain and a soggy field failed to slow down practice in the Western Maryland Terrors' grid camp today, and Coach Charlie Havens put his squad through a strenuous two hour session.

Pass defense, tackling and blocking were stressed, indicating Havens believes his charges still need more work in these departments. The backfield men, however, got an additional workout on some of the fine points of attack, and Havens expressed satisfaction with their progress.

Only casualty of the week was Macpike, the Terrors' All-Maryland fullback, who has been taking it easy because of bumps suffered in practice.

Play by Play Account of Detroit's Victroy in Opening Game of Series

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2 (AP)—The following is a play-by-play account of the first World Series game of 1940 which Detroit won 7 to 2:

First Inning Tigers

Bartell worked the count to two and two and then went down swinging. McCosky lifted a high fly to Ripple in short left. Gehringer looked at three of Derringer's curves, lifted a foul into the left field stands and then grounded out, Derringer to F. McCormick.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

First Inning Reds

Werber slapped the first pitch directly at Higgins and was thrown out.

After taking a count of two strikes, M. McCormick sent a liner just over York's head that was good for two bases when the ball rolled up against the railing along the right field foul line. Goodman, hit a chance of pace ball to Higgins and was thrown out, McCormick holding second. F. McCormick took one strike and then drove the ball on a direct line to center field and McCosky made a spectacular catch by jumping into the air with his back almost against the wall.

Second Inning Tigers

Greenberg smashed the first pitch into the left field corner but was held to one base by Ripple's magnificent throw to Myers. York singled into short right center and Greenberg started for third but was forced to slide back to second base by Goodman's return throw. Campbell laid a sacrifice bunt down the third base line but was safe at first when Werber's throw pulled McCormick off the bag and the bases were filled. Higgins singled into center scoring Greenberg and York and sending Campbell to second. Sullivan walked again filling bases. Whitey Moore went into action in the Reds' bull pen. Newsom sent a bounder to F. McCormick who threw to Wilson forcing Campbell and leaving the bases filled. Bartell lined a single past Derringer's head and into center field scoring Higgings and Sullivan and putting Newsom on second. McCosky singled to deep left scoring Newsom and putting Bartell on second.

Moore relieved Derringer as the crowd gave a complimentary cheer.

Moore trapped Bartell off second but Myers dropped the ball for an error as Bartell slid back into the bag and was safe. Gehringer popped to Werber. Greenberg worked the count to two and two and then grounded out, Werber to F. McCormick.

Five runs, five hits, two errors, two left.

Second Inning Reds

Ripple waited out a three and two count and then grounded to Gehringer. Wilson lifted a high fly to Greenberg in short left. Joost lined a single to right. Myers grounded to Gehringer who threw to Bartell forcing Joost at second.

Third Inning Tigers

York struck out on five pitches, the last one a fast ball through the middle. Campbell shot a vicious single into center field. Higgins struck out and Campbell was doubled trying to steal second, W[illegible] Joost.

No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Third Inning Reds

Moore was loudly applauded as he came to the plate, but grounded out, York to Newsom who covered first. Werber flied to Campbell in right center. M. McCormick fouled off the first two pitches, and struck out but had to be thrown out, Sullivan to York.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Fourth Inning Tigers

Sullivan raised a high fly to Joost on the outfield grass behind second. Newsom raised three fouls and struck out. Bartell walked on five pitches. McCosky drove a single that struck second base and rolled into center field, advancing Bartell to third. Gehringer grounded to Joost.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Fourth Inning Reds

Goodman led off by driving the first pitch into center field for a double. F. McCormick popped to Gehringer behind first base. Ripple singled sharply to right, scoring Goodman from second base. Wilson grounded into a double play, Higgings to Gehringer to York.

One run, two hits, no errors, none left.

Fifth Inning Tigers

Greenberg struck out. York tripled against the right field fence about 370 feet from home plate. Campbell then lined a home run into the bleachers in right center field scoring York ahead of him. With the count two and two, Higgins lifted a high fly to Ripple who made the catch with his back almost against the center field scoreboard. Sullivan struck out.

Two runs, two hits, no errors, none left.

Fifth Inning Reds

Joost singled through the box and into center field. Myers was called out on strikes. Moore struck out, fanning on a bad pitch outside, and Sullivan threw to Bartell trying to double Joost in an attempted steal, but Bartell dropped the ball and Joost was safe. Werber waited out a three and two count and then grounded to Higgins, York taking the throw on the baseline and tagging Werber.

Sixth Inning Tigers

Newsom was thrown out by Werber. Bartell was called out on strike. F. McCormick came in running to take McCosky's pop up.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Sixth Inning Reds

M. McCormick swung late on the first pitch and popped to Gehringer on the outfield grass. Newsom was working slowly, taking time to

Bi-State Loop Series Will Resume Sunday

The second clash in the final three-game series for the Bi-State Baseball League championship will be played next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Keyser, W. Va., instead of on Saturday, it was announced yesterday by President Arthur G. Ramey.

Ramey said that both managers—Enoch Price of the Frostburg American Legion outfit and Joe Carbacio of the Keyser Moose—had requested that the contest be moved back one day.

The final series between the Legion, which won two straight from the Midland Red Sox in the preliminary playoff, and the Moose, who went to the finals by turning back the Cumberland Colts two games to one, opened last Sunday with Frostburg the winner.

Secretary Don Shires said today that if Sunday's game is postponed, the series must be concluded by Sunday, October 13. If necessary, a doubleheader will be played then.

Tennessee and Duke To Meet On Saturday

By FRANK B. GILBRETH

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 1 (AP)—Anyone who thinks that absence makes the heart grow fonder, or that time heals all wounds, might take a squint at the tropical disturbances centered around the campuses of Duke and Tennessee universities.

After foregoing each other's company for two years, the Blue Devils and the Vols have made a date in Knoxville Saturday to renew a football feud which makes that little fracas between the Hatfields and the McCoys look like a sorority initiation.

The feud actually is based on the rivalry of two of the south's greatest coaches, Wallace Wade of Duke and his No. 1 Jonah, Bob Neyland of Tennessee. It's no secret that the Duke thin man would rather whip Major Bob than to come out with bingo in Pasadena on New Year's.

Game Is a Natural

The fans apparently consider the game a natural, for all 33,000 seats in the Tennessee stadium have been sold out for weeks.

The game already is being billed as the Rose Bowl consolation, and this Bowl business explains why Duke and Tennessee have not grown fonder in absentia.

In 1938, the first year that the schools decided they could get along without each other very well, both teams were undefeated but Duke was unscored upon and got the Bowl bid.

Many Tennessee supporters com-

Army Coach Is Pleased with Mazur's Work

Sophomore Back Runs, Passes and Kicks with Best Players in East

By WHITNEY MARTIN

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 2 (AP) — The Army doesn't make a practice of speaking above a whisper about its yearling, or sophomore, football players. If a combination of Grange, Thorpe and Gipp bobbed up he would be referred to casually as "a fairly promising candidate."

In view of this time-honored policy, a sturdy second-year man named Henry Mazur must be pretty good. No matter how they try to hide it, the name of Mazur keeps bulging out here and there in the conversation of the Cadet followers.

"All-America sire for next year," said one fan.

Backfield Is Light

He's a little on the light side—around 170—but he runs, passes and kicks with the best. Even so, he may not start the first game, so firm is the Army conviction that a man must prove himself first. But the general idea is that once he gets in it will take a team of mules to get him out.

Mazur is a welcome addition to a backfield which will be light, and which will place more stress on passing than usual. Frank Waddell, John Hatch and Dick Hennessy, all veterans, loom as possible running mates for Mazur in the eventual starting lineup.

Captain Wood lost ten lettermen, including seven starters, but he is used to that and the outlook is not too dreary. He has the foundation for a line in Captain Bill Gillis at center, Ray Murphy at guard, and Al Muzyk, transplanted from guard to tackle, and Stan Hutson is a sure bet for one end with Tom Farrell and Ken Hanst, both capable, battling for the other wing job.

Fine Pleb Squad

A very good 1939 Plebe squad is expected to provide other valuable raw material.

Just what the finished product will be when Wood gets through polishing this mixture of experience, inexperience and spirit remains to be seen, but the Cadets in a couple of early season scrimmages gave a hint that they might be worth watching. It has seeped out that they gave Columbia a pretty good going over in a practice scrimmage, and also outscored New York U.

The schedule, perhaps the toughest Army ever had, has Wood worried as much as anything. Starting with Williams next Saturday, the Cadets take on Cornell, Harvard, Lafayette, Notre Dame, Brown, Penn, Princeton and Navy.

About the Two Leaders

CINCINNATI — Thinking of Del Baker of Detroit and Bill McKechnie of the Reds, the two rival leaders, I turned back the clock thirty-five years to the first world series of 1905 when we had McGraw and Mack.

Many things can happen in thirty-five years. Wars come and go. Nations rise and fall and disappear.

In 1905 McGraw and Mack were two exact opposites. McGraw was a harsh, hard-driving leader. Connie Mack was on the milder, gentler side. Between them they won 19 pennants. And a flock of world series shows.

Today there is little difference between Baker and McKechnie in this present series. McKechnie is known as the Deacon. Baker could be known as the Bishop.

Both are mild, quiet people who rarely lift their voices. Both are distinctly leaders, not drivers. Neither believes in invective or abuse. Both believe in encouraging their athletes after some mistake, not in bawling them out.

Two Big Jobs

Both have turned in two great jobs this season. After the 1939 debacle against the crushing Yankees, few believed the Reds would come back with any steam. McKechnie told me differently at Tampa late last March.

"This club is too game for any such cave-in," he said. "We'll be back there again. We have too good a ball club to crack up. You don't crack up with Derringer, Walters and Thompson out there working."

Certainly not with Whitey Moore, Beggs and Turner on guard. McKechnie proved his point by taking the Reds to 100 victories, something few teams have won.

"We broke all fielding records," Bill tells you proudly. "We romped home."

The point is that Bill is proud of his team and the team is proud of Bill. What a difference from the Vitt-Cleveland layout.

The Baker Angle

I sat for an hour with both Baker and McKechnie together. Hot rivals on the field, they are close friends off the field.

Del Baker did an even more remarkable job. Back in March at Florida's Lakeland, Baker's Tigers were picked no better than fifth.

The infield looked to be shot with the waning Bartell and Gehringer at short and second—both supposed to be fading veterans. The pitching staff bordered along joke lines. Few believed the once famous Schoolboy Rowe would win six games. Bridges was over the hill. Buck Newsom was the main hope.

This Tiger outfit was a terrible looking affair last April as it started North. The whole team was loaded with melancholy "ifs".

But the crafty and soothing influence of Del Baker, plus the natural game qualities of the entire squad, overcome all obstacles.

Early rains gave Bartell and Gehringer a chance to use their ailing legs and stick around. Rowe's arm came back, and Del Baker was one of the few—almost the only one—who believed in Rowe.

"I just knew the Schoolboy still had it," Baker said no later than yesterday.

How many believed Hank Greenberg would be a good outfielder. Here was a veteran tackling a new job. But Hank did. One of the reasons was Del Baker's faith and support. Hank knew he could make his share of natural mistakes and Baker would understand. So he never had to press.

On the Spot

Bill McKechnie is the only one on the spot in this series. Not for himself—but for the National League. The National League hasn't won a big series since 1934. The main reason has been the Yankees. But the multitude doesn't figure on that.

If the Reds are beaten there will be the usual cry that the National League is still second rate. The National League proved the case to be different [illegible] both all-[illegible] game [illegible] season—Tampa in [illegible] in July. But the crowd only remembers today—not yesterday.

Baker and his Tigers are walking on velvet. They have already turned in one miracle. If they turn in another it will be that much more velvet. So McKechnie carries the greater pressure.

The main point is that Old Bill sheds pressure. It has been a big part of his life and he merely keeps the so-called even tenor of his way through it all. Bill has been around too long to crack under any strain. He takes it all in his easy-going stride. He has won four pennants—for three different clubs—and you don't need any alibi after that record.

Knowing both men, this is one series in which you hate to see either lose.

Clary Club Cops County Crown by Beating North End

The Clary Club softball team beat the North End Merchants for the county championship yesterday by a 3-1 score although Allan Sheetz, Merchant hurler, gave up only three hits.

It was the second time in two days that Sheetz had hurled a three-hitter against the Clary Club batters.

W. Blank pitched good ball for the Clary Club in allowing but four bingles. No players was able to gain more than one hit in the tight battle. The boxscore:

Cubs Even Series With White Sox

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP) — The Chicago Cubs, behind seven-hit pitching of rookie Vern Olsen and wobbly defensive work by their American League opponents, defeated the White Sox 8 to 2 today to square the city championship series at one victory apiece.

The Cubs collected nine hits off Thornton Lee, the losing hurler, and Pete Appleton, who relieved in the sixth. The White Sox blundered five times to the Cubs' one.

The National Leaguers picked up single runs in the second and third, and sent three across in the fifth on four hits and two errors. They got three more runs in the sixth on one hit, an error, a sacrifice and a base on balls.

Joe Kuhel's single, Julius Solters' triple and an infield out accounted for the two Sox runs in the sixth inning. Southpaw Olsen allowed two hits in the seventh but set the South Siders down in order in the final two innings.

Bill Herman, Cub second sacker, pulled a muscle and retired in the fifth inning and may be out tomorrow night.

Sidelights on Opening Game Of World Series

By JOHN FRYE

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2 (AP) — Taking one thing with another, the Cincinnati Red fans would have settled to have the New York Yankees back again.

In the club house after the game, Manager Bill McKechnie of the local favorites, however, refused to be dazed or even to compare the Detroit Tigers with the Yankees.

"That's something I never do," said Bill.

The day's firsts:

First strikeout—Dick Bartell, first man up, by Paul Derringer.

First assist—Derringer, on Charlie Gehringer's hopper in the first.

First one-handed catch—By Barney McCosky, Tiger centerfielder, of Frank McCormick's liner that looked like the McCoy.

First error—By Bill Werber, Red third baseman, on Bruce Campbell's second inning bunt.

First run—By Hank Greenberg on Pinky Higgins' single.

First fireman—Whitey Moore, relieving Derringer in the big second.

First home run—Campbell.

Sights for sore eyes department: Cy Young, the Peolo, O., farmer, and Noodles Hahn, just a couple of old no-hit pitchers, chewing the rag in the Reds' dugout before the game. Noodles, who quit pitching when the first spitball he ever tried hurt his arm thirty or thirty-five years ago, is a retired government meat inspector. He works out with the Reds every day.

The second inning demonstrated that the Tigers, sluggers and otherwise, COULD hit curve ball pitching. This was debated previously. Also that the Reds' crack infield could crack. Witness errors by the Bills, Werber and Myers.

Campbell discovered that Jimmy Wilson, the Reds' reserve catcher, still can throw to second base at the age of forty. Jimmy cut him down like a saw-log when Bruce tried to steal a base in the third, and it was a double play, because Higgins had just missed a hot third strike.

Whitey Moore got a whale of a hand when he struck out Greenberg to open the fifth. Whitey proved that this was something else that could be done. Rudy York took the edge off, however, by following with a triple and Campbell killed it with a homer.

Harry Thobe, the Oxford, O., bricklayer and perennial clown, was on the field before the game with his red umbrella and half a uniform. So was Al Schacht, as usual. A lot of Red fans wished they would come back after that second inning.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant, a vinculo matrimonii. The bill states that the parties were married in Cumberland, Maryland, on October 9, 1936; that they lived together as husband and wife from April, 1937, to May 5, 1937, when the defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff and declared his intention to live with her no longer and that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly from that time down to the present time and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable hope of a reconciliation; that no children have been born to the parties to this marriage; that the plaintiff is a resident of the State of Maryland, Allegany County, though temporarily in the City of Washington, District of Columbia, and has been such a resident of the State of Maryland for more than two years last passed; that the defendant is a resident of the State of South Carolina and a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 17th day of September, 1940, ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, that the plaintiff, by causing this order to be inserted in some certain newspaper published in Allegany County, once a week for four successive weeks, before the [illegible] day of October, 1940, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 5th day of November, 1940, to show cause, if any he have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Capital Handicap At Laurel Taken By Jay Jay

Seven-year-old Horse Owned by Howard Bruce Pays Backers $12.30

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 2 (AP)—Jay Jay, seven-year-old chestnut gelding owned by Howard Bruce of Baltimore, won the $7,500-added Capital Handicap, Laurel's opening day feature, for the second time today.

Charging through the mud and mist as though he were treading on velvet, Jay Jay scored a half-length triumph over W. L. Brann's speedy mud-runner, Pictor, while the heavily favored Roman, owned by Joseph E. Widener, finished third.

It was back in 1936 when Jay Jay first won the Capital. Younger and faster then, he ran the six furlongs in 1:11 4-5. Today, what with mud and weight of four more years, it took him 1:13 2-5 to cover the distance.

At that, he made the same time that Sun Egret did in winning last year. And to those among the crowd of about 8,000 who bet $2 on his nose and got $12.30 back, Jay Jay's time was only incidental.

The victory was worth $6,675 to Bruce, former Maryland Democratic National Committeeman.

Out of fifteen sprinters named overnight, only seven went postward for the twenty-first running of the Capital. Roman was made the 6-to-5 favorite, with Pictor held at 7 to 2 and Jay Jay at 5 to 1.

ick up the dust on the mound between pitches. Goodman popped to Bartell. Newsom got two strikes on F. McCormick and then walked him. Ripple raised a pop foul near the Detroit dugout and Sullivan gathered it in.

Seventh Inning Tigers

Moore walked Gehringer, the fourth beind a wild pitch but Gehringer was not able to get beyond first. Greenberg struck out for the second straight time as the crowd hooted, Moore throwing his fast ball past the slugger twice. York got behind two and nothing but waited out a base on balls. The paid attendance was announced as 31,793. Moore, his control apparently gone, walked Campbell on five pitches to fill the bases. Joe Beggs, Cincinnati's ace relief pitcher, immediately went into action in the bull pen. Higgins popped to F. McCormick near the pitcher's box. Goodman made a sensational one-handed catch of Sullivan's liner into deep right field.

No runs, no hits, no errors, three left.

Seventh Inning Reds

Riggs batted for Wilson and struck out on four pitches. Joost lined to left field and Greenberg reached up and speared the ball. Myers raised a high fly to Campbell.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Eighth Inning Tigers

Baker entered the game as catcher for the Reds. Myers came over behind second base to get Newsom's grounder and throw him out. Bartell singled sharply to right center. McCosky forced M. McCormick back almost to the bleachers in right center to catch his fly. Bartell attempted to steal second and Baker's throw was low, bounding into center field and Bartell reached third. (No stolen base). Gehringer lined to M. McCormick.

Eighth Inning Reds

Craft batted for Moore. Craft flied high to Greenberg just inside the left field foul line. Werber drove a double between McCosky and Campbell in right center as both fielders slowed up. M. McCormick grounded to York, who beat him to first to make the out unassisted. Werber took third on the play. Goodman smashed a clean single into center field scoring Werber. F. McCormick raised a high fly to McCosky.

One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

Ninth Inning Tigers

Riddle came in to pitch for Cincinnati. Baker ran up to the edge of Cincinnati's dugout to take Greenberg's foul. York was called out on strikes. Campbell struck out.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Ninth Inning Reds

Ripple flied to Greenberg. Baker singled off Newsom's glove, barely beating the pitcher's throw to first. Joost grounded to Higgins forcing Baker at second, Higgins to Gehringer, beating the throw to first. Myers flied to Campbell.

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 2—Plans for a talking-match between Louis Norman Newsom, of Detroit and Leland Stanford MacPhail of Brooklyn, baseball's two most eminent barbers, the winner to match tonsils with Max Baer at three paces, have fallen through. The press of World Series business on Mr. Newsom is too great.

"While I concede nothing to MacPhail at his best," said the extensive right-handed pitcher, tersely cutting down his statement to four thousand words, "I owe it to my supporters to stick to pitching at this time. No doubt I could outstay MacPhail with one lung tied behind me, but it couldn't be my best effort, and the public deserves nothing but my best. Meanwhile, why don't this MacPhail go out and get himself a reputation?"

So saying, Mr. Newsom told the story about the three mules and the story about the two punch-drunk Portuguese sailors and hurried off to whip himself into shape for his next World Series start.

When Mr. Newsom suggests that Mr. MacPhail get himself a reputation it merely shows that he is a provincial American Leaguer, and does not know who is in the National League.

Why Durocher Lost Weight

In the National League, Mr. MacPhail's sound-box, which contains a special device for changing the needle without pausing, is the envy and despair of all rivals. Mr. Leo Durocher, the Brooklyn manager, formerly a non-stop conversationalist, has lost thirty pounds since he became associated with Mr. MacPhail, and wears a beaten, hangdok look. Mr. Durocher has not got a word in edgewise since November of 1939, when Mr. MacPhail stopped to use a toothpick on a gold filling in the lower right mezzanine.

Out here the day before the World Series began, Mr. MacPhail told a story, no doubt the product of his fevered imagination, which caused his hearers to swoon dead away with astonishment. True, their resistance was already badly weakened. They were in no kind of shape to stand a shock.

"Speaking of Lombardi," said Mr. MacPhail, in the course of his late forenoon address, "Here's a funny thing that came off when I was with the Cincinnati Club. I had to sign Lombardi up. I knew he was famous for not talking, so I decided to outwit him, make him speak first. We sat in my office for forty-five minutes without saying a word, till he finally broke down and made the first remark."

At this point Mr. MacPhail's listeners slid gently under the table, paralyzed with shock. The idea of Mr. MacPhail abstaining for forty-five minutes was too much for them in their feeble condition.

"That's a fact," said Leland Stanford, turning to pot a couple of helpless sitters on his left. "Forty-five minutes of silence. Lombardi was the first to speak. I forgot what he said."

The Phenomenon Explained

The only explanation for this phenomenon, if it really occurred, is that Mr. MacPhail, under the influence of some powerful narcotic like vanilla, fell asleep for three-quarters of an hour, and that Mr. Lombardi let him lie. During waking hours, a pause of forty-five seconds in Mr. MacPhail's flow of patter is enough to send his relatives flying for the coroner.

In spite of Mr. Newsom's default, it may be possible to bring these two ear-benders together later in the season. The match should be close, though the styles are different. MacPhail has volume and intensity. Newsom, by droning in low tones like a wasp with a hang-over, conserves his stamina. Neither of them has ever been known to listen, which is a weakness of many otherwise promising ear-chewers.

The winner, as I said, would be entitled to a match with Max Baer, who won the title by pinning James J. Johnston to a wall with a four-syllable word and leaving him for dead after four hours and fifteen minutes of gruelling struggle, without megaphones.

Baer vs. MacPhail! There's a match to make a promoter's heart leap so long as he doesn't have to listen to it.

Mountaineers Scrimmage For Fordham Game

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 2 (AP) — Coach Bill Kern pushed the West Virginia Mountaineers through their third hard scrimmage of the week today and announced Charley Seabright, of Benwood, W. Va., quarterback for the past two years, will be acting captain for Saturday's game in New York against Fordham.

A squad of thirty players will leave tomorrow at 7:30 p. m., travelling by bus to Greensburg to board a train for the East. They will work out late Friday at Randall's Island, where the game will be played, then go to the Knollwood country club at White Plains for the night.

Excepting for Vic Peelish, Sophomore guard who was hurt in the Westminster game, the team appeared to be in good condition. If Peelish is unable to play Kern said Sophomore Vincent Cinino likely would take his place.

About 18,000 fans are expected to witness the game in which the heavy Rams will be heavy favorites to win.

Foundling Wins a Prize

COOK, Neb. (AP)—Robert Johns picked up a lost pig on the highway last spring. At the county fair, "Orphan Annie" won a blue ribbon.

BETTY DOES IT AGAIN

Derringer

expected to make his bat heard, singled with two out in the second and again to lead off the fifth when he got as far as second by Bartell's dropping catcher Sullivan's throw.

In the ninth Baker, who had taken over the catching duties after Wilson was removed for a pinch batter in the sixth, singled with one out but was forced at second on the next play.

Newsom, besides keeping his hits spaced, gave up only one base on balls, this going to Buck McCormick with two out in the sixth.

The Reds made fine fielding plays occasionally and most of their hits were clean and sharp. But there was not the slightest continuity in their attack and the failure of Derringer, their surest pitching bet, was heart-breaking to Cincinnati players and their followers.

Derringer had performed hurling wonders against American League batters for many years, in the World Series and the all-Star games.

Tomorrow the Reds will have to come out with Bucky Walters, whose record of 22 and 10 is not much better than Derringer's 20 and 12 and whose fast sinker proved a delight to the Yankees a year ago. Whether he can stop the Tigers was problematical and whether it would do any good to slow them up was doubtful.

Walters and Rowe Today

The Tigers had Schoolboy Rowe, hero of Detroit's last two trips into the big baseball classic, ready to go to the mound. He won 16 and lost only 3 during the regular season and although incapable of working as often as Newsom, has generally been more effective.

He will have Birdie Tebbetts, a better catcher than Sullivan, working with him.

Greenberg was something less than a glamour boy, never getting the ball out of the infield except for the single that started Detroit's big blast.

But Frank McCormick, the clean-up man and only "power" hitter in the Reds' lineup, failed to get even one hit, being blanked with Wilson, Myers and all the pitchers and pinch-hitters McKechnie used.

The "Deacon" said he did not expect to use Ernie Lombardi, his lumbering but hard-hitting catcher, unless a hit meant the ball game. Lombardi is on the sidelines because of a sprained angle. Wilson returns to the receiving line tomorrow and Joost remains at second.

After this second game the clubs will leave immediately for Detroit for two, and if necessary three, other contests. The prospect of returning to Crosley Field later wasn't mentioned.

plained that the Devils had played a pushover schedule, and allowed as how Texas Christian or Tennessee would have been a better selection.

And when Duke lost to Southern Cal in Pasadena, even though the winning touchdown came in the last minute of play, there were those at Knoxville who said "I told you so."

Situation Reversed

The situation was reversed last year. Duke supporters admitted that their team was out of the Rose Bowl picture, because of a one-point defeat by Pittsburgh, but declared Tennessee had played an easy schedule. They also let it be known that in their opinion, if Duke had played Tennessee, the Vols would have spent the Christmas holidays at home.

When Tennessee was whipped by Southern Cal, Duke fans admitted none too reluctantly that they were not exactly flabbergasted.

Wade never has defeated Neyland at Knoxville, even while Wade was coaching at Alabama. Neyland defeated Wade once at Alabama, but never has whipped him in Duke stadium. In a nine-game series between the coaches, Neyland won six, lost two and tied one.

A Wade-coached Duke team pinned a good licking on Tennessee in 1935. The score was 19-6.

You may remember that 1935 was the year Neyland was on leave from Tennessee.

Five Navy Grid Players Dropped To "B" Squad

Middies Work on Soggy Field in Preparation for Cincinnati

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 2 (AP)—Five players were dropped to the "B" Squad today as Navy's gridiron forces worked on a soggy field to perfect offensive formations for the Cincinnati game Saturday.

Chester Lee and John Schmitz, ends; George Ringenberg and Bob Nye, guards, and Charlie Smith, center, of Baltimore, were demoted and Mike McTighe, end; Bob Day, guard; Joe Donahue, tackle, and Bill Weyrauch, center, were elevated to the varsity.

Willis Maxson, reserve end who "clicked" in the William and Mary battle, was at left end today in place of Bob Zoeller, who is nursing bruises.

Joe Sliwka has recovered from his facial injury and was in the lineup at guard. The backs today were Harrell, quarterback; Busik, left half; Boothe, right half, and Werner, fullback.

When the "B" Squad ran off Cincinnati plays against the Varsity, Gebert replaced Busik, who hasn't sufficiently recovered from a leg injury sustained last Saturday.

Maryland Gridders Prepare for Penn

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 2 (AP)—University of Maryland gridders went through a long, but light drill today in preparation for the Pennsylvania game Saturday at Philadelphia.

The Terps spent about two hours on the field, working on defense and offense. Both were conducted by dummy scrimmage.

Coaches were particularly pleased with the return of Jack Gillmore, sophomore triple threat back. This will give them a capable player to back up Mearle Duvall, junior letterman who will start at left half, and who is an able passer and runner. Gillmore can also help quarterback Joe Murphy with the kicking.

Tutor Conrad, probably the fastest man on the squad, has been shaping up nicely at running guard, and with Frank Heyer gives the Terps two active men in this position. Both are comparatively light, but agile.

Two Suits Asking $7,000 Damages Filed in Court

Accident on McMullen Highway in February Results in Legal Action

Two damage suits asking a total of $7,000 were docketed in circuit court yesterday as the result of injuries received by a young Cumberland woman in an auto accident in February.

The suits were brought by Mr. and Mrs. Russell S. Copeland who charge that Harry M. and Thomas B. Allen are responsible for injuries received by Mrs. Copeland in an accident on the McMullen highway on or about February 8.

According to the petition drawn up by Attorney Lewis M. Wilson, Mrs. Copeland was a passenger in a car operated by John Chapman. The car was en route to the Celanese plant where Mrs. Copeland was employed.

At approximately 2:45 p. m., the Chapman car collided with a machine operated by Harry M. Allen and owned by Thomas B. Allen, both of Cumberland, the petition claims.

Serious injuries received by Mrs. Copeland were due to the reckless, careless and negligent manner in which Allen was operating his car, it is charged.

As a result of the crash, Mrs. Copeland was confined to her bed for a long period, suffered great pain, incurred medical and nursing bills and lost her wages at the plant, the petition states.

Mrs. Copeland is suing for $5,000 damages and her husband for $2,000.

Registration Transfers Required for Some Voters, Election Clerk Warns

Persons in Allegany county who have lived outside the precincts in which they are registered for the last six months should obtain a transfer if they intend to vote in November, L. A. Hewitt, clerk of the Board of Election Supervisors, said last night.

The final registration day before election will be Tuesday, October 8.

On that day, persons who have lived outside the precinct in which they are registered for the last six months, should obtain a transfer from their former precinct and take it to the registration headquarters for the precinct in which they are now residing.

Unless this transfer is made, people who have lived outside the precincts in which they are registered for the last six months, are liable to lose their vote in November, Hewitt said.

Rawlings Couple Charges Attempt Is Made To Destroy Water Supply

Defendants Restrained from Interfering with Pipe Line

Charging that their new neighbors are attempting to destroy the water supply they have enjoyed for the last sixty years, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Hansel yesterday requested circuit court to restrain Mr. and Mrs. William C. Collins from carrying out their declared intentions.

The Hansels claim they are the owners of a piece of land at Rawlings that was conveyed to them by deed in 1921. Their predecessor in title was a Mrs. Mary M. Hudson who got the land in 1884 and whose husband, Lynn Hudson, owned the adjoining land recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Collins, the petition avers.

Fifty or sixty years ago, a dam was constructed up against the mountain on the Hudson land for a water supply, the petition docketed by Charles G. Watson continues. A two-inch pipe line was laid from the dam across the orator's property.

Recently, the defendants bought the adjoining land on which the dam is located and are now digging a ditch for the purpose of laying the pipeline around the orator's property, the petition declared.

Would Destroy Supply

If carried out, this move will destroy their water supply, the Hansels declare, adding that the defendants have announced their intention of carrying out their program.

Mr. and Mrs. Hansel contend that they have maintained the water line for a number of years at their own expense and that they and their predecessors in title have had the constant use and possession of the water line for some sixty years.

"The change in the water line in process of execution," the petition continues, "can in no way improve the water line or improve its use to the defendants but is being done for the purpose of destroying the benefits, use and possession of the water line belonging to your orators without any resulting benefits to the defendants."

On the other hand, the change "will result in irreparable injury to your orators and destroy a large portion of the value of your orator's property," the petition says.

For these reasons, the court has been asked to pass a decree adjoining the defendants from in any way interfering with the orator's use, possession and ownership of the water line and that a restraining order be passed by the court prohibiting the defendant from interfering with the pipe line or dam until the court can inquire into the situation.

Issues Restraining Order

Acting on the petition, Associate Judge William A. Huster ordered the defendants to show cause on or before October 31 and that in the meantime "the defendants are restrained from in any way interfering with the said pipe line or the plaintiff's water supply, except to make any necessary repairs."

Charles Sullivan Dies at His Home

Charles Clary Sullivan, Sr., 66, of 701 Fairmont avenue, died early yesterday. Mr. Sullivan was a native of Westernport and a retired employe of the Western Maryland railroad.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Virginia May Sullivan; six sons, Fred, Carroll, Joseph, James, Charles and John Sullivan; three daughters, Mrs. Leroy Rider, Mrs. Lymon Hutchinson, and Mrs. William Light; three brothers, William, Patrick, and Frank Sullivan; a sister, Mrs. George Sell, and four grandchildren.

Did you ever hear of the "Hickey Hollow Gang"?

Neither did Gateway until a few days ago. It's quite a unique outfit, composed of seven boys who live out on Fayette street in the 600 block.

The boys meet on Friday night, that is they have regular meetings once a week, but you can find them in their "Den", most any evening after school and on Saturdays.

The "Den" is in a tree seven and a half feet from the ground and the boys built it themselves. They found enough old planks to make the floor. It has a roof and sides to protect the youngsters from bad weather. Candles are used to light the "Den" at night. A homemade ladder is used to reach the shelter.

Uncle Sam's Army hasn't a thing on the boys when it comes to organization. There is a captain, lieutenant, sergeant, lookout, guard and only two 'regular members'.

Asked what was the purpose of the club, members said they were not old enough to be Boy Scouts yet and they wanted some kind of an organization, so they "just organized."

The membership is closed and they won't take in any more members. All the boys are under thirteen years of age.

Here's the members and the offices they hold: Claude Jones, captain; Jack Robinson, lieutenant; Ralph Sell, sergeant; David Schafer, guard; Bobbie Floyd, lookout; Danny Mars and Tommie Hutchinson members.

National Guard Has New Selling Point To Offer

Markey Points Out Conscriptee Is Subject To Call for 10 Years

A new selling point is expected to encourage enlistments in the National Guard was set forth last night at the State armory where General John D. Markey, of Frederick, dropped in for an important conference with officers of Company G prior to the regular Wednesday night drill.

General Markey pointed out that a National Guardsman is required to spend one year of active duty and two years of duty at the home station after which he will be completely through with his military obligations, except in case war is declared.

Conscriptee Requirements

On the other hand, General Markey declared that a conscriptee will be required to serve one year of active duty but will be placed on the regular army reserve, thus making him subject to call for a period of ten years.

General Markey told officers of the local unit that the National Guard of Maryland will be mobilized definitely January 3. Company G, he said, will be allowed to go to its regular strength of 105 men which will require the addition of twelve or fifteen recruits. After that the company can enlist men in the "inactive National Guard." These men will report for drill but will receive no pay before January 3. After that date the recruits will be taken on as active men. Under the new set-up Company G will be allowed to enlist fifty extra men, not including the drum corps, to boost the company's strength up to the 129 mark.

Plan Officers' School

Captain Randolph Millholland has been authorized to recommend four enlisted men for an Officers' Training school which will be conducted in Baltimore for two weeks, beginning November 15. If the men selected pass examinations at the school they will be eligible for commissions. Captain Millholland will name the four men before October 10. He announced last night that he had received a dozen applications.

At the present time Company G has openings for twelve recruits to fill vacancies left by the discharge of company members who had dependents. More openings will be made when other members with dependents receive their honorable discharges.

He now has headquarters at the New York offices of the Celanese Corporation and does special work for the company, visiting plants in Amcelle, Pearisburg, Va., and Drummondville, Que., Canada.

Need of Colored Cemetery Pointed Out by Cooper

Reginald Cooper has taken a thirty-day option on the Fesenmeier farm on Willow Brook road, off of Pine avenue, with the view of establishing a cemetery for colored residents of Cumberland and vicinity.

Cooper declared it would be necdefinite need here for a new cemetery for colored people as Sumner cemetery is nearly filled.

The land under option contains approximately three acres and Cooper said would meet the needs of colored people here for about 200 years.

Coooper declared it would be necessary to obtain thirty subscribers in order to take up the option and start work on the cemetery. In case the project goes through plans call for the income to be invested in a trust fund which will provide for perpetual care of the cemetery.

Persons interested in the project are requested to get in touch with Cooper in the near future.

Response from Regular Registration Officials Makes Action Necessary

Workers Will Not Be Paid for Registering Men October 16 Who Come Under Service Act

Due to the poor response from 450 paid registration workers in Allegany county, the Board of Election Supervisors will be forced to issue a call for "patriotic" volunteers willing to help register an estimated 12,000 young men for possible military duty on Oct. 16.

In an announcement to the registration workers, it was explained that registrars would not be paid for their services in this particular instance, since the job to be done should be regarded as a patriotic duty on the part of the registrars, as well as the 12,000 young men who may be asked to serve their country.

Of the 450 asked to serve, about 275 will be available on Oct. 16, according to L. A. Hewitt, clerk of the Board of Election Supervisors.

Volunteers Are Needed

For this reason it will be necessary to ask for volunteers since each registrant must be asked a series of questions and have two blanks made out for him. One registrar will be able to "sign up" only thirty men even though he work continuously from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Oct. 16.

While volunteers will be required to carry out the task on Oct. 16, Hewitt said that the chief registrars in each of the seventy-five polling places in the county would be "compelled" to serve regardless of whether they had offered their services or not.

Hewitt said that the newspapers will probably be asked to carry an application blank which persons willing to work could clip, fill out and send to the board. Details regarding this procedure were still in the formative stage last night but an early announcement will be made.

All male citizens of Allegany county between the ages of 21 and 35 are required to register Oct. 16 as stipulated by the Selective Training and Service Act.

Each man should register in his home precinct at the precinct's regular poling place.

Series of Questions

Each of the seventy-five poling places in the county will be open from 7 a. m., until 9 a. m. Registration places will be closed at 9 p. m., the hour required by the president's proclamation, providing there are no registrants waiting in line. If men are waiting in line at 9 p. m., they will be registered no matter how long it requires.

When a registrant appears in his polling place to sign up, he will sit down opposite a duly authorized registrar who will ask him a series of questions. The answers made will be written on a blank. When the blank is filled out, the registrar will read it back to the registrant after which the registrant will sign it.

Permanent Cards

A card will next be made out for the registrant and given to him. The registrant will be required to carry this card with him at all times and if he should be asked to produce it he must be able to do so.

The members of the election board, Harold A. Powell, James E. Kenny and Stanley O. Hamilton, are anxious that the registration be carried out without any hitches and are making all necessary plans Hewitt said.

Hewitt quoted a letter from Governor O'Conor to the election board in which the governor stated, "because of the grave nature of the situation confronting the nation, I am confident that the government will have the complete cooperation of everyone upon whom this work of registration devolves."

2,000 Bass Planted In County Streams

Fifty Chukor Partridges also Released, Joe Minke Reports

Two thousand small-mouthed bass three to four inches in length were planted in two Allegany streams this week under the supervision of Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden.

Minke said that 1,400 fish were placed in Town Creek and 600 were distributed in Fifteen Mile creek.

The bass were brought to Cumberland by Albert M. Powell, superintendent of the Lewistown State hatchery.

Liberation of fifty Egyptian Chukor partidges in Allegany county and eighty in Garrett county this week also was reported by Minke.

The partidges were planted in the state forest land of Allegany county at Green Ridge, Town Hill and Polish mountain. Allegany county has 20,000 acres and Garrett county 64,000 acres of land under the supervision of the state forestry department.

Chukor partridges originally came to this country from Egypt and were raised in captivity at the Maryland State Game farm, Gwynbrook.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

June D. Livingston vs. James F. Livingston.

No. 15,819 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant, a vinculo matrimonii. The bill states that the parties were married in Cumberland, Maryland, on October 9, 1936; that they lived together as husband and wife from April, 1937, to May 5, 1937, when the defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff and declared his intention to live with her no longer and that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly from that time down to the present time and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable hope of a reconciliation; that no children have been born to the parties to this marriage; that the plaintiff is a resident of the State of Maryland, Allegany County, though temporarily in the City of Washington, District of Columbia, and has been such a resident of the State of Maryland for more than two years last passed; that the defendant is a resident of the State of South Carolina and a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 17th day of September, 1940, ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, that the plaintiff, by causing this order to be inserted in some certain newspaper published in Allegany County, once a week for four successive weeks, before the [illegible] day of October, 1940, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 5th day of November, 1940, to show cause, if any he have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Two Suits Asking $7,000 Damages Filed in Court

Accident on McMullen Highway in February Results in Legal Action

Two damage suits asking a total of $7,000 were docketed in circuit court yesterday as the result of injuries received by a young Cumberland woman in an auto accident in February.

The suits were brought by Mr. and Mrs. Russell S. Copeland who charge that Harry M. and Thomas B. Allen are responsible for injuries received by Mrs. Copeland in an accident on the McMullen highway on or about February 8.

According to the petition drawn up by Attorney Lewis M. Wilson, Mrs. Copeland was a passenger in a car operated by John Chapman. The car was en route to the Celanese plant where Mrs. Copeland was employed.

At approximately 2:45 p. m., the Chapman car collided with a machine operated by Harry M. Allen and owned by Thomas B. Allen, both of Cumberland, the petition claims.

Serious injuries received by Mrs. Copeland were due to the reckless, careless and negligent manner in which Allen was operating his car, it is charged.

As a result of the crash, Mrs. Copeland was confined to her bed for a long period, suffered great pain, incurred medical and nursing bills and lost her wages at the plant, the petition states.

Mrs. Copeland is suing for $5,000 damages and her husband for $2,000.

Registration Transfers Required for Some Voters, Election Clerk Warns

Persons in Allegany county who have lived outside the precincts in which they are registered for the last six months should obtain a transfer if they intend to vote in November, L. A. Hewitt, clerk of the Board of Election Supervisors, said last night.

The final registration day before election will be Tuesday, October 8.

On that day, persons who have lived outside the precinct in which they are registered for the last six months, should obtain a transfer from their former precinct and take it to the registration headquarters for the precinct in which they are now residing.

Unless this transfer is made, people who have lived outside the precincts in which they are registered for the last six months, are liable to lose their vote in November, Hewitt said.

Did you ever hear of the "Hickey Hollow Gang"?

Neither did Gateway until a few days ago. It's quite a unique outfit, composed of seven boys who live out on Fayette street in the 600 block.

The boys meet on Friday night, that is they have regular meetings once a week, but you can find them in their "Den", most any evening after school and on Saturdays.

The "Den" is in a tree seven and a half feet from the ground and the boys built it themselves. They found enough old planks to make the floor. It has a roof and sides to protect the youngsters from bad weather. Candles are used to light the "Den" at night. A homemade ladder is used to reach the shelter.

Uncle Sam's Army hasn't a thing on the boys when it comes to organization. There is a captain, lieutenant, sergeant, lookout, guard and only two 'regular members'.

Asked what was the purpose of the club, members said they were not old enough to be Boy Scouts yet and they wanted some kind of an organization, so they "just organized."

The membership is closed and they won't take in any more members. All the boys are under thirteen years of age.

Here's the members and the offices they hold: Claude Jones, captain; Jack Robinson, lieutenant; Ralph Sell, sergeant; David Schafer, guard; Bobbie Floyd, lookout; Danny Mars and Tommie Hutchinson members.

Rawlings Couple Charges Attempt Is Made To Destroy Water Supply

Defendants Restrained from Interfering with Pipe Line

Charging that their new neighbors are attempting to destroy the water supply they have enjoyed for the last sixty years, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Hansel yesterday requested circuit court to restrain Mr. and Mrs. William C. Collins from carrying out their declared intentions.

The Hansels claim they are the owners of a piece of land at Rawlings that was conveyed to them by deed in 1921. Their predecessor in title was a Mrs. Mary M. Hudson who got the land in 1884 and whose husband, Lynn Hudson, owned the adjoining land recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Collins, the petition avers.

Fifty or sixty years ago, a dam was constructed up against the mountain on the Hudson land for a water supply, the petition docketed by Charles G. Watson continues. A two-inch pipe line was laid from the dam across the orator's property.

Recently, the defendants bought the adjoining land on which the dam is located and are now digging a ditch for the purpose of laying the pipeline around the orator's property, the petition declared.

Would Destroy Supply

If carried out, this move will destroy their water supply, the Hansels declare, adding that the defendants have announced their intention of carrying out their program.

Mr. and Mrs. Hansel contend that they have maintained the water line for a number of years at their own expense and that they and their predecessors in title have had the constant use and possession of the water line for some sixty years.

"The change in the water line in process of execution," the petition continues, "can in no way improve the water line or improve its use to the defendants but is being done for the purpose of destroying the benefits, use and possession of the water line belonging to your orators without any resulting benefits to the defendants."

On the other hand, the change "will result in irreparable injury to your orators and destroy a large portion of the value of your orator's property," the petition says.

For these reasons, the court has been asked to pass a decree adjoining the defendants from in any way interfering with the orator's use, possession and ownership of the water line and that a restraining order be passed by the court prohibiting the defendant from interfering with the pipe line or dam until the court can inquire into the situation.

Issues Restraining Order

Acting on the petition, Associate Judge William A. Huster ordered the defendants to show cause on or before October 31 and that in the meantime "the defendants are restrained from in any way interfering with the said pipe line or the plaintiff's water supply, except to make any necessary repairs."

National Guard Has New Selling Point To Offer

Markey Points Out Conscriptee Is Subject To Call for 10 Years

A new selling point is expected to encourage enlistments in the National Guard was set forth last night at the State armory where General John D. Markey, of Frederick, dropped in for an important conference with officers of Company G prior to the regular Wednesday night drill.

General Markey pointed out that a National Guardsman is required to spend one year of active duty and two years of duty at the home station after which he will be completely through with his military obligations, except in case war is declared.

Conscriptee Requirements

On the other hand, General Markey declared that a conscriptee will be required to serve one year of active duty but will be placed on the regular army reserve, thus making him subject to call for a period of ten years.

General Markey told officers of the local unit that the National Guard of Maryland will be mobilized definitely January 3. Company G, he said, will be allowed to go to its regular strength of 105 men which will require the addition of twelve or fifteen recruits. After that the company can enlist men in the "inactive National Guard." These men will report for drill but will receive no pay before January 3. After that date the recruits will be taken on as active men. Under the new set-up Company G will be allowed to enlist fifty extra men, not including the drum corps, to boost the company's strength up to the 129 mark.

Plan Officers' School

Captain Randolph Millholland has been authorized to recommend four enlisted men for an Officers' Training school which will be conducted in Baltimore for two weeks, beginning November 15. If the men selected pass examinations at the school they will be eligible for commissions. Captain Millholland will name the four men before October 10. He announced last night that he had received a dozen applications.

At the present time Company G has openings for twelve recruits to fill vacancies left by the discharge of company members who had dependents. More openings will be made when other members with dependents receive their honorable discharges.

Need of Colored Cemetery Pointed Out by Cooper

Reginald Cooper has taken a thirty-day option on the Fesenmeier farm on Willow Brook road, off of Pine avenue, with the view of establishing a cemetery for colored residents of Cumberland and vicinity.

Cooper declared it would be necdefinite need here for a new cemetery for colored people as Sumner cemetery is nearly filled.

The land under option contains approximately three acres and Cooper said would meet the needs of colored people here for about 200 years.

Coooper declared it would be necessary to obtain thirty subscribers in order to take up the option and start work on the cemetery. In case the project goes through plans call for the income to be invested in a trust fund which will provide for perpetual care of the cemetery.

Persons interested in the project are requested to get in touch with Cooper in the near future.

Workers Will Not Be Paid for Registering Men October 16 Who Come Under Service Act

Due to the poor response from 450 paid registration workers in Allegany county, the Board of Election Supervisors will be forced to issue a call for "patriotic" volunteers willing to help register an estimated 12,000 young men for possible military duty on Oct. 16.

In an announcement to the registration workers, it was explained that registrars would not be paid for their services in this particular instance, since the job to be done should be regarded as a patriotic duty on the part of the registrars, as well as the 12,000 young men who may be asked to serve their country.

Of the 450 asked to serve, about 275 will be available on Oct. 16, according to L. A. Hewitt, clerk of the Board of Election Supervisors.

Volunteers Are Needed

For this reason it will be necessary to ask for volunteers since each registrant must be asked a series of questions and have two blanks made out for him. One registrar will be able to "sign up" only thirty men even though he work continuously from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Oct. 16.

While volunteers will be required to carry out the task on Oct. 16, Hewitt said that the chief registrars in each of the seventy-five polling places in the county would be "compelled" to serve regardless of whether they had offered their services or not.

Hewitt said that the newspapers will probably be asked to carry an application blank which persons willing to work could clip, fill out and send to the board. Details regarding this procedure were still in the formative stage last night but an early announcement will be made.

All male citizens of Allegany county between the ages of 21 and 35 are required to register Oct. 16 as stipulated by the Selective Training and Service Act.

Each man should register in his home precinct at the precinct's regular poling place.

Series of Questions

Each of the seventy-five poling places in the county will be open from 7 a. m., until 9 a. m. Registration places will be closed at 9 p. m., the hour required by the president's proclamation, providing there are no registrants waiting in line. If men are waiting in line at 9 p. m., they will be registered no matter how long it requires.

When a registrant appears in his polling place to sign up, he will sit down opposite a duly authorized registrar who will ask him a series of questions. The answers made will be written on a blank. When the blank is filled out, the registrar will read it back to the registrant after which the registrant will sign it.

Permanent Cards

A card will next be made out for the registrant and given to him. The registrant will be required to carry this card with him at all times and if he should be asked to produce it he must be able to do so.

The members of the election board, Harold A. Powell, James E. Kenny and Stanley O. Hamilton, are anxious that the registration be carried out without any hitches and are making all necessary plans Hewitt said.

Hewitt quoted a letter from Governor O'Conor to the election board in which the governor stated, "because of the grave nature of the situation confronting the nation, I am confident that the government will have the complete cooperation of everyone upon whom this work of registration devolves."
